Prof. Ferrero Sees "ALL EUROPE AS A WAR CAMP IF GERMANY WINS FROM ALLIES"

"If One People Become Strong Enough to Rule Others, It Would Become the Nebachaddezzor of Nations and Would Succumb to a Delirium of Pride and Its Own Folly."

"William II Would Become the Model for Sovereigns and the Annihilation of Belgium Would Pass for an Act of Heroism," Famous Historian Says in Second Article of His Great War Series.

By Guglielmo Ferrero

The Noted Italian Historian.

THE secret report of the German Council of State to the Emperor, of March 19, 1913, that the French Government succeeded in obtaining and publishing in its "Yellow Book," closes with this conclusion:

> Such are the duties of our army. They demand large effectives. If the enemy attacks us, or if we wish to tame him, we shall do as did our brothers one hundred years ago. The aroused eagle will take its flight, and, seizing the enemy in its sharpened claws, render him harmless. We shall then remember that the provinces of the old German Empire, the Country of Burgundy, and a large portion of Lorraine are still in the hands of the Franks, that thousands of our German brothers groan under the yoke of the Slav. It is a national matter to give back to Germany what she formerly possessed.

There is no doubt that if Germany conquers she will not only annex Belgium and a part of France, as I said in my last article, but also the Baltic provinces that today belong to the Moscovite empire. But if Germany wins, Austria-Hungary will also win with her and Austria will annex Servia. And who can doubt that after their victory Germany and Austria would tighten their alliance better to enjoy the fruit of their bloody conquest.

Now, it is only necessary to give a glance at the map of Europe to know that in case Europe were thus sliced up by the two formidable German empires, next door to each other, they would form a great German bridge from the Baltic to the Adriatic, and need only bide their time to extend themselves to the Aegean Sea. Placed in the heart of Europe, in a central position, united one with the other, populated by perhaps 140,000,000, swollen in prestige, formidable in arms by land and by sea, owning the richest mines of coal and iron, dominating communications between the North and South, between the East and West of Europe, the two German empires could not only speedily take possession of the Slavs and Latins that populated the rest of the Old Continent, but also raise up their heads and speak threateningly to all other continents!

Bismarck Mania Afflicts Statesman.

I HAVE said they are now side by side in a CENTRAL POSITION. It is a particular to which I again call the attention of my readers, because it is of capital importance. Two allied states which are side by side, assailed and encircled by adversaries who surround them, as is the case in this war, find themselves either in a very good or very bad position. Very good if they are the strongest, and winning, because from their central position they can try to beat their enemies one by one, and, succeeding, get all the fruit possible out of the victory from the separated allies. The position, however, is very bad if they are weak and losing, because then at the decisive moment, they will be assailed on different sides at the same time.

So, if the German empire wins they must win most decisively, because of their geographical position; as Rome, for the same reason, was forced thoroughly to beat and subjugate all the coalitions of Italian peoples that formed against her.

What moral, political and intellectual consequences would this have? They would be many and grave. The war of 1870 was enough greatly to reinforce the monarchical traditions and the principles of authority that had been declining since the French Revolution. Very few are the European statesmen who have come into prominence since 1870 who have not nourished the secret dream of copying the model of Bismarck.

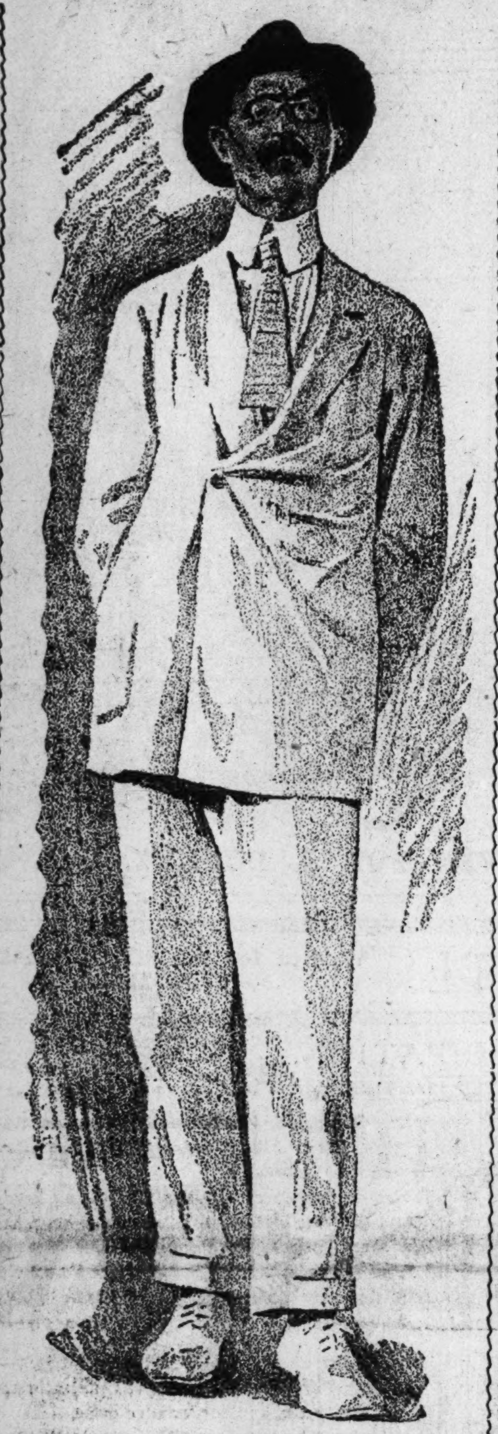
How many caricatures of the German Chancellor have afflicted Europe since then! The thought that the different peoples of Europe could ever live side by side, at least respecting if not loving one another, has been considered almost unworthy of a serious statesman. War, eternal and decreed by Fate, has been the first article of faith of each man who wanted to be called upon to govern!

If the states of Europe have spent fabulous sums on arming themselves during these last 44 years, and if it has been impossible to assure the Old World of a peace less costly and less precarious—a peace really desired, nevertheless—the principal cause must again be sought in the war of 1870.

Kaiser as Sovereign's Model.

NOW, it is not possible to doubt that this state of things would get still worse if Germany won. William II would become the model for sovereigns and the annihilation of Belgium would pass for a mighty act of heroism. We should be forced to resign ourselves to all live in a Europe turned into an enormous armory, and prepare ourselves for new and bloody wars, hoping for salvation only in an anarchistic revolution. In extreme cases, extreme remedies, says the proverb.

But perhaps there would be a still graver danger to fear. After a new victory the German spirit would exert a still greater influence on the world than it does today, and this, of all the ills, perhaps, would be the worst. Let us well understand each other. I shall never be the one to wrong the Germans, denying the great qualities with which they are endowed or disputing how much they have done in the great family of Europe for the progress of human civilization.



From an unusual snapshot of Prof. Ferrero on an outing in the Italian Riviera.

Anyone who knows the history of the world knows that a splendid place is reserved for Germany in the hierarchy of the nations. But they are not perfect, either—they even have defects—and these defects are such that if their diffusion ultrapasses a certain measure they become dangerous and fatal. This is not only true of the Germans, but, likewise, of all the other people, but the German defects work quicker and on a larger scale than those of most other peoples—because their principal defect is exaggeration. Erasmo of Rotterdam called Luther "the hyperbolical doctor." We may call Germany "the hyperbolical nation."

Competition War Industrial Curse.

THERE is something in the German imagination, something excessive, that always goes farther than what seems the right measure to the other peoples; they confound the colossal and the gigantic with the great; and through their fury to dare more and more, they, too often, find themselves before the impossible.

It is not, perhaps, too much to say that Germany, pushed on by this excessive imagination, has taken upon herself in the last century the task of carrying out all the principles that the civilization of our time has been creating little by little, and rushes them to the most extreme consequences and exaggerations, ignoring the risk, by doing so, of changing them into causes of torment and danger!

How many examples could be cited? I shall restrict myself to two, but these two are particularly interesting just now. What is the principles on which is based modern industry—modern industry that has replaced the careful and skillful hand by the vertiginous machine worked by steam or eletricity? The quantity of production is growing at the expense of quality. Our times cannot manufacture the marvelous stuffs nor the magnificent solid furniture, nor the charming bric-a-brac of the eighteenth and seventeenth centuries. Instead, we manufacture greater quantities of everything, flooding all the markets and filling all the houses.

England and France have applied this principle, it is true, allowing the quality to deteriorate somewhat to make it possible to produce greater quantities and at more accessible prices—but they have not done so beyond a certain limit. The Germans, on the other hand, have rushed over all limits, initiating in modern industry that which the French call "the camelots" (the cryer), filling the world with cheap, hurried, worthless imitations, striving to beat competition with show and cheap prices, sacrificing quality to quantity much more than the English or the French do. "Schlecht und billig" (cheap and bad), is their password.

The English and the French have not been wanting in their reproofs to the Germans. They are partly right and partly wrong. They are wrong in that the Germans have only done with the more solid and better stuff of the English and French what these latter did with the excellent, refined old hand industries. They have given to millions the objects the English and French put before hundreds of thousands. The principal, then, is the same, and the French and English are not right in blaming the Germans for purely and simply doing something they themselves did 50 years ago.

Military Service Citizenship Duty.

BUT they are right when they say that the Germans in their hurry to develop their commerce and industry seem not to recognize that there is a limit, and if they continue to build up quantity at the expense of quality life will lose every joy, every color, and almost every taste; because quality—beauty or worth—is the salt and the seasoning of life, that which changes the taste of things, varies the aspect of the universe, creates and fulfills new desires, delivers life from the satiety of monotony. What is civilization if not the betterment of the world? What can we call an unceasingly growing abundance of worthless things, if not a gross and rich barbarism?

Another notable example of this singular inclination of the German mind is given us in their army.

We know that in the eighteenth century the armies of Europe were constituted, for the greater part, of professional soldiers. Man of Arms was then a profession like any other. The French Revolution resolutely brought forward the principal that afterward was taken up all over Europe and on which today all the armies are founded—that the military duty must be considered one of the duties of citizenship. Conscription was the outcome. But all the other countries of Europe, France above all, up to 1870, had only applied this principle with moderation, only compelling a certain part of the population to serve, and holding those in the army for a rather long time.

The military policy of France until 1870 was to have a small army of men who served for a rather long time. Germany, however, even during the times of Napoleon, tried to apply the opposite method; to reduce the term of serving and to call under arms the largest possible number of inhabitants. In 1870 the German army already had the three years' service, while France had a five years' service. But Germany was able to put a million men under arms, while the French could only muster up 750,000.

As Germany won, she seemed in the eyes of the world to have been right, so that in the next 44 years, thanks to the authority given her by victory, Germany has been able to apply this principle to its extreme consequences and oblige the other peoples—including France—to follow her.

Germany is the country that took the initiative in Europe to reduce the service to two years, to increase continually its first line troops, to organize its reserves, from the youngest to the oldest, so that its army became really a nation in arms; and she can bring to war not only the youngest and most valid part of the nation, as occurred in 1870, but all the men already or still capable of carrying a gun, from boys 16 to men of 50.

Big Armies Bring Long Wars.

AND so, through this great passion and this worship of the colossal that inflames the Germans—through this unquenchable desire for numbers and proportions always greater—today the most gigantic armies the world has ever seen are battling, and their terrible war develops slowly and bloodily into colossal tragedy. The very reason the war drags out so is that modern armies cannot come quickly to a decision because they are too colossal!

Exaggerated beyond measure by the Germans, the military principals given us by the French Revolution are becoming useless and not reconcilable with modern civilization, whose need is for armies capable of rapidly settling such questions as discussion and reasoning cannot dispose of. In a period of civilization like ours, in which time is a treasure, war must be rapid. A military system that compels Europe to remain in a condition like the present for a year surely, and perhaps for two, suspending and disturbing everything, does not respond to the profound necessities of our time, even though it be a question of settling the gravest matters. It does not respond to our necessity because it is the exaggeration of a good principle.

I have only given two examples, but even from these two examples a conclusion can be reached.

German thought has for a century had a great influence on the world; this influence, like the influence of every people at the time of their greatness, is in part good and in part bad, but it seems now to the interests of all—and to Germany's as well as the others'—that for a

Chancellor Says Germany Fights for Honor Not Conquest

"Emperor No Mere War Lord but True Friend of Peace"

Interview With Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg James Creelman's Last Work

England Solely Responsible for Conflict That Kaiser Gave Nights and Days Trying to Avert, Statesman Says in Free Discussion of European Situation.

Statement Given to Famous Journalist Two Days Before His Death, Holds That Germany Is Well Provided With Provisions and That Victory Is Certain.

THIS remarkable interview with the German Imperial Chancellor was obtained by James Creelman only two days before the death in Berlin of this famous journalist and former member of the New York World staff. Creelmann's death was due to heart trouble. The German Minister of Foreign Affairs was officially represented at Creelman's funeral on March 4.

By James Creelman.

BERLIN, Feb. 10.

THE most tremendous and far-reaching utterance made since the beginning of the present world war was the statement of the German Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg to me today that in what seems to him the absolutely certain and complete victory of German arms, Germany is not waging an aggressive but a defensive war.

The Chancellor had just come in from the side of the Emperor William at the grand German headquarters in France and was filled with the spirit of growing triumph which seems to thrill Germany from frontier to frontier, north, south, east and west.

He is a giant of a man, broad-shouldered, deep-chested, with an enormous girth. He was dressed in the full field uniform of a German General, and although gold lace sparkled on his shoulders and his cuffs, the striking note of his attire was the black and white ribbon of the Iron Cross that appeared along the buttoned edge of his gray field coat.

The Chancellor's features are big, irregular and tremendously masculine. His nose is long and fleshy, his forehead high and rather noble, his cheeks flat, the big, humorous mouth shaded by a gray moustache, and tremendous, crunching jaws and a powerful projecting chin mantled by a rough, thick, short white beard.

We sat in the more or less bare room of the Chancellor's palace in Berlin, where the great Bismarck worked out the mightiest problems of Europe, a still, sober place, with a bunch of white flowers sitting alone on a great table-desk and deers' antlers projecting from the severe walls.

Yet even in that quiet place came the faint sound of a new German regiment marching swiftly past the palace to take its place in the fighting line.

KAISER A "PEACE LORD," HE DECLARES WITH EMPHASIS

THE Chancellor seemed such a physical giant, and he carried with him such a swing and air of physical power and enthusiasm, as he seated himself before the mighty table, that he appeared to be filled with the indescribable enthusiasm and confidence of the great battle lines from which he had just come.

The remarkable thing about Von Bethmann-Hollweg is his utter lack of attempts at subtlery. He has a certain fineness and nobility of manner and yet he speaks with an almost rough directness, a smashing, brutal frankness, that is startling in one who speaks for the great Empire in the midst of a world war. It is this peculiar Teutonic scorn for more finesse, together with his tremendous courage, that has endeared the Chancellor to the German Empire, and to the nation generally, in this most supreme hour in the history of the race.

And he is the humanest man that ever filled such a place in such an hour—the pure enthusiasm and frankness of a boy shining through the rough, hard features of the gray veteran.

"The most extraordinary thing about this appalling world conflict," he said, "is the impression, which the enemies of Germany have systematically spread, that the German Emperor is a mere war lord and that he desired and sought this war.

"Nothing could be falser. I have worked by his side for years; I have worked with him day and night, in winter and in summer. I know him to be the greatest friend of peace in the whole world. It is extraordinary that the enemies of Germany should have been able to create in the minds of so many people such an infamous caricature of the noblest leader of peaceful human progress that the modern world has known. He should be known as a peace lord, not as a war lord, for his mind has always been fixed on peace, always, always, no matter how great the temptations to war that have been offered to him by those in whom his country's amazing peaceful success aroused only feelings of jealousy and hatred."

OPPOSED CONFLICT AS THOUGH "FILLED WITH RELIGIOUS EMOTION"

THE big Chancellor folded his arms across his mighty chest and a curious look came into his great gray eyes.

"Think of the outrageous things that have been said of this greatest of all peace-lovers, this leader of leaders, whose supreme effort ever since he ascended the German throne has been to prevent war!

"Remember that only nine days before the outbreak of this war the German Emperor and his entire fleet were making an annual cruise in a distant part of the North Sea. It would have been possible, at that time, for the British sea power to have captured the Emperor and practically the whole effective German navy.

CHANCELLOR VON BETHMANN-HOLLWEG.

"Is it possible that under such circumstances the Emperor was lending his influence of consent directly or indirectly to a general European conflict that risked an immediate and overwhelming disaster to the armed strength of his country to say nothing of his personal safety? Such an idea is mere insanity.

"No; at that time, as in every hour up to the very beginning of the armed struggle, the Emperor worked for peace with all his soul and all his strength. He worked against the war like a man filled with some great religious emotion.

"The inward strain of his night-and-day effort to save the peace of the world, to save not only his own people, but the other peoples of Europe, from the unspeakable suffering and loss of a general war, even changed the ordinary expression of his face."

The Chancellor seemed greatly moved and his great eyes softened as he spoke of the Kaiser in the days when the peace of the world hung trembling in the balance.

SPEAKS WITH AUTHORITY OF AN ASSOCIATE FOR FORTY YEARS

"I CAN speak with authority upon this matter," he said, "because I was with him him practically all the time. Ever since he ascended the German throne he used his power and his intelligence to save Europe from war and keep his own country on a constantly broadening and rising peaceful progress.

"In the past 40 years practically all the other great nations had been at war; Germany alone had preserved the peace. Other nations had reached out for great colonial possessions, adding empires to their territory. Germany continued to bind her whole mind and strength upon the peaceful development of the resources of civilization, leading all nations in scientific, industrial, commercial progress; adding year by year to the productive powers of her people and demonstrating to all nations the true path of civilized progress, making the means of life cheaper and the ways of life better and simpler and nobler."

Again the sound of a regiment marching to the front came faintly into the quiet room.

The Chancellor leaned back in his big chair and knotted his powerful hands on one knee.

"So, when the spirit of war seemed to be pressing upon Europe again; when the lives and fortunes and homes of millions of men, women and children were threatened by those in whom Germany's unparalleled progress had stirred up a desire to wreck the existing order of things, the Emperor knew neither rest nor sleep while he could do anything to prevent such a frightful calamity to the human race and to his own beloved people.

"We sat at the table together, working, working, working for peace. I saw him change word after word in his telegraphic appeal to the Czar. I saw him show absolute mental agony as he hesitated between one word and another, seeking with an eagerness impossible to describe to select the very word that might most influence the Czar to save Europe from the horrors of war."

"Then, Mr. Chancellor," I said, "you hold Russia primarily responsible for the world war?"

ENGLAND COULD HAVE STOPPED CONFLICT WITH SINGLE WORD

"NO, England stands responsible before the whole world and must so stand in all the human history. It is true that the support given by Russia to Servia in her criminal attacks and propaganda against Austria furnished the first incentive to a breach of the peace of Europe. But when the decisive time came it was in England's power to say whether there should be a general European conflict or not."

The Chancellor spoke very slowly and very distinctly. His eyes were sterner and the lines in his face deepened and hardened. He balanced one hand before him. "Had England served notice upon France and Russia that she would not support them in making a general European conflict out of the war between Austria and Servia, there would have been no world war. At that time the question of war or peace was entirely in the hands of England.

"The English Government fully understood the grave responsibility resting upon it. Knowing full well that the encouragement and support which she gave to France and Russia meant absolutely certain war at a time when the German Emperor was working literally night and day, and exerting every power within his command or influence to preserve the peace of mankind, England must forever bear the blame for the conflict."

"It has been suggested, Mr. Chancellor, that the English Government was not frank in dealing with Germany; that if it had announced plainly its intention to take part in the war on the side of the allies, the course of Germany might have been wholly different."

"No. The English Government was frank enough about that, and I never had any doubt as to what they intended to do in the event of actual war. Their crime against the world was that they actually had it in their power to say whether there should be a world war or not, and with that opportunity in their hands, they deliberately supported France and Russia and made an absolute certainty of the greatest disaster in the history of the world."

NO DOUBT THAT VICTORY WILL REST WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES

"YOU seem confident that the war will end in a complete German victory?"

"Absolutely. No one who understands the situation can have the slightest doubt of a complete German success. Remember, we are fighting on the enemy's soil. We have possession of Belgium; we have a large part of France and our armies are extended far into Russia. Whatever doubts there may have been in the past few months, the present situation shows that Germany's triumph is absolutely inevitable."

"But will not the possession of the sea power by the allies keep Germany from receiving outside help or supplies while her enemies draw power from all neutral countries—and will not this prove to be an overwhelming disadvantage to Germany?"

The big Chancellor smiled and shook his head. "That will not change the ultimate result," he said. "I know that the English hope to starve Germany. They think to accomplish by a naval blockade what they cannot do in battle. Germany has provided for all that. You are here in our country now and you see that we are all getting enough to eat, that prices are moderate and that nobody has any fear of starvation. So far as the supplies necessary for the continued support of our population are concerned, everything has been provided for and systematized in good German fashion. We shall have something to eat till the very end."

"And when will the end come, Mr. Chancellor? When will the world have peace?"

"The English say that the war will last for 20 years. They say that Germany must be completely destroyed. That is their view. Germany has no desire to destroy any nation. From the German standpoint, this is a war of pure self-defense—a war which can end only when Germany has absolutely secured full protection for her continued growth along the peaceful lines of cultural and economic development."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Peace Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Now is the time to quit fighting, if the white race of men care to continue to do business on this earth. If this World War continues much longer the white race will be like Collins' ram; there will be nothing left of it but the tail. The British are good people, the Germans are good people, the French are good people, the Russians will be good people when they "get out of the woods." The United States ought to propose a settlement of this sort:

Europe declare a truce for 90 days! Look at the 700,000,000 hungry Asiatics watching you from the East! There is no great natural barrier between them and you! Think of the prophecy of Napoleon and Bismarck! We Americans can't save you from the yellow peril which is rapidly becoming a real peril! You, Europeans, are our fathers, our mothers; we love you all! Be wise! Confederate as our states did in 1779. Dispose of King, Kaiser, Czar and President. Elect a World Parliament. We will join hands with you in the establishment and maintenance of World Peace. Lo, we suffer when you suffer. Our Fatherland, our Motherland, stop, look, listen! We are English, we are German, we are French, we are Scotch, we are Austrian, we are Irish, we are Russian, we are the friend of all Europe. For God's sake let us help you to get out of the bad fix you are in, let us lead you out of the charnel houses into the glorious ways of peace! The springtime is here, the new life is yours.

Abuses of Primary System.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The editor of a Republican morning paper of this city in calling attention to the abuses of both primary and convention system of nominating candidates for public office, makes the suggestion that "We should either preserve the primary law as it stands or properly provide for conventions."

I would call attention to the fact that the nomination and election of candidates for public office in a republican form of government (such as is guaranteed to us by the Federal Constitution) a matter strictly concerning the people and the people only. All primary election laws now on the statute books are a violation of Section 9 of the Bill of Rights of the Missouri Constitution and the Fifteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution.

Senators and Representatives who indulge in the primary system of dictating to the American voter how, when and for whom to vote for public office are thus gradually undermining our republican form of government and are building up an oligarchy of office holders in what was once a government of the people, by the people and for the people. There is a better way to prove the truth of the above than to cite the fact that any citizen (being otherwise eligible) may be elected to any public office by a majority of the voters of any municipality, county, district or State, yes, or nation, without ever having been nominated at all. It is thus clearly seen that primary election laws are only aimed to curtail the rights of the voter and rob the people of the free use of the franchise guaranteed to them by the Constitution.

Go back to honesty in government—when the voter voluntarily allied himself with the party of his choice—each party placing its own ticket in the field—and when the people being dissatisfied with any or all of these tickets soon found means to make a ticket to suit themselves and exercise the right of free suffrage to the discomfiture of the fixers.

VICTOR GEBHARDT.

CRIPPLING MISSOURI UNIVERSITY.

From the Kansas City Star.

The action of the Legislative Committee on Appropriations in curtailing the income of the Missouri State University by almost one-third of the former appropriation is a most unfortunate occurence. The University of Missouri occupies a front rank among the State universities of the country, but it occupies a most inferior rank from the standpoint of appropriations; it ranks below either Wisconsin, California, Ohio, Illinois or Texas.

The work carried on in the university fits men and women of the State to undertake the struggle for life better prepared and better equipped, ready to give their best, as far as training can enable one to give his best, to the communty they live in. It trains teachers, it trains lawyers, it trains engineers—civil, mechanical, mining and electrical—it trains newspaper men, it trains students in commerce and administration, it trains farmers of the very best kind and lastly it tries to instill into the men and women of Missouri who come to it, a love of the good, the true and the beautiful.

Much Virtue in If.

From the South Bend News-Times.

If men would cease lying and the hens begin laying, it would be such a bad world, after all.

NECESSARY LEGISLATIVE WORK.

We do not agree with Gov. Major that a compromise on convict labor in the penitentiary will be acceptable or that the do-nothing policy will be satisfactory to the people of Missouri. To leave the situation as it is with no provision for the sanitary and profitable employment of the convicts would be only less worse than prolonging the convict labor system.

The assurance of the Governor that the Legislature will adopt all of the other important pending bills is gratifying. He says that the workman's compensation, code revision, insurance, election and banking bills, in all probability will pass. He says nothing about the important railroad rate bill which, in view of business conditions, ranks with any of them. Nor the home rule election bill vital to St. Louis.

While the Governor is attempting to reassure the people that the Legislature will do its duty, he is doing nothing to support his assurances. If he thinks the measures he has enumerated are of vital importance, why does he not tell the Legislature so? Why does he not send a special message urging the adoption of the measures he thinks vital and giving reasons therefor? Why does he not throw the whole weight of his influence as Governor on the side of good, needed legislation, and against legislation which is neither good nor needed.

Gov. Major is a part of the State legislative machinery. It is his duty to urge measures of public welfare. He has the power of veto. He is the leader of the Democratic party, which is in control of the government. Why does he not do his duty?

Regardless, however, of the Governor's dereliction, we indulge the hope that the Legislature will do its duty. There is time enough left to pass every one of the necessary bills if legislators will devote their energies assiduously and exclusively to the objects required by the public welfare and desired by the people of the State.

HOPE FOR UNDERPAID WOMEN.

"It is hard," says Hetty Green, "for young women to be decent on $6 a week."

If the United States Supreme Court sustains Oregon's minimum wage law for women, that necessity will presently disappear. Public sentiment, it may be taken for granted, will require the enactment of a law of this kind in every state, so that the least wage paid any woman worker may be one sufficient to save her from the choice between pauperism and white slavery.

The Court's recent ruling validating California's eight-hour law for women strongly foreshadows a favorable decision in the Oregon case, since the two laws rest on substantially the same basis.

TEN WOMEN LEGISLATORS.

Somebody with a taste for statistical data has figured out that the nine states in which full suffrage for women prevails have exactly 908 members of the Legislature, of whom only 10 are women. Two feminine legislators are the most any one of these states has and some have none. Wyoming, where equal suffrage has longest been in force, has but one.

So this answers one of the arguments against suffrage for women. Newly invested with civil rights, she is not rushing headlong into responsibilities for which she may not yet feel herself prepared. She selects the candidates best qualified to represent her, just as woman, newly invested with the control of her own property, might pick a masculine lawyer as best qualified to look after her interests. A hankering for office is not the chief thing that impels her to demand the vote.

Besides, an office in which an important function is intrusted to many different persons of equal status is not the office that naturally would appeal to her. An office whose honors and duties she is not compelled to share with anyone else would be more attractive. Perhaps the women of the nine states are too busy running for Sheriff, City Marshal or even Mayor to become candidates for the legislative positions.

TWO NEW STATES?

The State of Lincoln is incubating in the Northwest, the State of Jefferson in the Southwest.

A committee of the Washington Senate has reported favorably a memorial asking Congress to create the State of Lincoln out of the panhandle of Idaho and the eastern counties of Washington. This is a compact rectangular district larger than the average of Eastern states, more populous than some of the Western states, and isolated by mountain ranges and long distance from easy industrial and political connection with the capitals whence it is now governed.

The Texas Senate is considering a resolution to create the State of Jefferson out of the four senatorial districts which embrace northwestern and some western counties of Texas. This is a district larger than the six New England states, with a population ample for statehood and rapidly increasing. Its people feel they cannot hope to get, from a government at Austin, dominated by the larger populations and quite dissimilar economic interests of North, East and South Texas, that degree of State service essential to the development of their peculiar resources.

Leading Texas papers predict the defeat of the resolution at this session, but agree it won't be many years before public opinion will sanction such a step. When division is decided upon, it may, not improbably, signalize the creation of two new states out of the body of old Texas by the separation of the remainder, after Jefferson's departure, into North Texas and South Texas.

Press and political leaders in the proposed State of Lincoln generally indorse the new plan there. One may not safely predict the final attitude of Congress toward the Northwest's request for the creation of a new State, with its two United States Senators to be cast into the growing balance against the East's declining influence in that body.

The ordinance admitting the Republic of Texas into the Federal Union provided that the people of Texas might thereafter subdivide their vast area, five times as large as Iowa or New York, into not more than five states. The name of Jefferson, proposed for the State which West Texans wish to bring into being, is already a potent factor in making public favor for the division. If anything could reconcile old Texans to breaking home ties in this manner it would be the privilege thus to honor Democracy's patron saint. Americans generally, we believe, would be glad to welcome into the sisterhood new states bearing these names, which are perhaps the only ones in our history worthy thus to be ranked with "the mighty name of Washington."

A ST. LOUIS VICTORY.

Before the primary election next Friday the Post-Dispatch will give all the information possible concerning candidates for nomination to the Board of Aldermen. This information is to enlighten party voters so that they can intelligently select the best candidates of their parties.

The Post-Dispatch is not concerned with the fortune of parties; we are concerned with the government of St. Louis. But for party voters the logic is plain that the better the party ticket the more chance there will be for party success. To independent voters concerned only with the public welfare the logic is equally plain that the better the party candidates the better for the city no matter which party wins.

The supreme logic of the situation for St. Louis is a nonpartisan election. The great object to be attained is not the victory of any party, but the success of St. Louis as a municipality. If voters would cast their ballots for St. Louis—for the best possible government—by voting for the best candidates, regardless of party affiliations, the result would be a resounding victory for St. Louis. It would assure the carrying out of the spirit of the new charter.

A PARCEL POST FAILURE.

A congressional committee reports that 50 per cent of the parcel post mail centers in Chicago and New York; that of this 50 per cent 97 per cent leaves and only 7 per cent enters those cities; that it is chiefly useful to mail order merchants; that as a promoter of farm-to-table trading it is a failure.

Resolving the report's polysyllabic ponderosity into simple terms, one learns the committee means sharply to censure Postmaster-General Burleson for the way he has managed the parcel post. He is urged at once to restore the first zone, with rates much more attractive to local shippers, so that direct trading between country producers and city consumers may be stimulated.

Certainly, since the parcel post has failed to do the one service in which most was expected of it, and by most citizens, changes which will make it effective at this point are in order.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS FOR RUSSIA.

Periods of national self-examination are a common result at some stage or other of a great war. Perhaps there has never been a more searching introspection that the one now revealing the shortcomings of the Russians to themselves.

The national attitude toward the Jews, which had as one of its consequences the abrogation of a treaty by the United States, is perceptibly changed. The attitude toward vodka, the excessive consumption of which was once actually encouraged because it increased Government revenues, has been revolutionized.

And now the superiority of an intelligent over an unintelligent soldiery has centered national thought on Russia's lamentable educational deficiencies. It has been decided that the country must have universal compulsory education. It is planned to put the new free school system into full operation in all parts of the empire within five years.

The war with Japan brought Russia representative Government. Kropotkin was right about the benefits the world war might be expected to bring her. Universal education will have the same marvelous effect on the Slavonic race it has had on other races.

What may not a self-governing, sober, tolerant, educated Russia—now brought for the first time into a really intimate contact with the ideals of Western Europe—do for civilization in the next 50 years?

OUR TETRACAMERAL LEGISLATIVE SYSTEM.

The symmetry of our bicameral system of legislation has long been marred by the existence of lobbies that really constitute a third house in a tricameral system.

Judge Slate's grand jury in Cole County, sitting simultaneously with the lawmakers, has among its other possibilities of advantage the restoration of the balance of the fathers. It gives us a tetracameral system. The one house of the Legislature collates and checks the work of the other. The grand jury collates and checks the work of the lobby. It enlarges astonishingly the original conception of the fathers, but seems to be necessary. Wherever there is a lobbying third house a restraining fourth house of grand jurors can do a beneficial service.

Besides, a specific field of usefulness is open to a grand jury at this session. We have a law in this State regulating lobbyists to which few pay any attention. The return of indictments against some of its more brazen violators would revive the force and prestige lost by this law when it was successfully flouted by lobbyists for the police salary grab two years ago.

NEWSPAPER CASUALTIES.

According to a dispatch from Amsterdam, figures compiled by the postal authorities show that 864 German newspapers have suspended publication since the beginning of the war.

No official statistics are available for France, but French journalism has undoubtedly suffered. The Belgian newspapers are practically extinguished. Those that remain are controlled by German commanders and live by sufferance. Among the belligerents British journalism has suffered least, the British newspapers have not been forced to suspend because their editors and reporters were summoned to the firing line; but the economic results of the war have been devastating to them.

The average American assumes that war must mean circulation and profits for newspapers, but he forgets all about expenses. The leading American newspapers, in their determination to collect and print the news, have incurred expenses that would bankrupt the entire journalism of continental Europe, but thanks to their efforts the American people are better informed about this war in all its phases than the people of any other country.

EMANCIPATION.

By IRVIN MATTICK.

HERE where great Art her genius hath evolved,
Where wealth had built a marble throne of Peace—
Here where the Man of Destiny dissolved
His power with a stroke—made nations cease
Infernal conflict of one hundred years,
The fields again gush with warm crimson gore,
And Europe's calm hath burst once more in tears
Which flow more free than ever they did flow before!

Upon that plain, where half of one million skulls
For fifty years have gaped with ghastly stare,
Strong men lie dead—their bosoms turn to hulls
That glisten in the sun's white dazzling glare;
O men, where are those hearts once warm, once dear—
Where is the breast that breathed the lover's sigh?
Are these the men who knew no cringing fear,
And for a Court must they then battle, kill, and die?"

Shall olden minsters, rich in ancient lore,
Be shattered for the greed of lusty war?
And shall the cloak of Peace which Europe wore
Be rent, and all her beauteous verdure mar?
Hath He, who with beneficent endower
Made plenteous your fruitful harvest fields
Deserved this pillage of one carnal hour,
The desolation which the stroke of battle wields?

For God's great aid ye cry, ye barb'rous sons!
That Triumph with your legions might progress;
Strike—maim and mangle with your flashing guns,
A great and secret something will redress!
From out the shades of singers, men, and bards,
One towering figure stands serene, alone!
With shaded eyes the carnage he regards,
And from the dead, predicts with stern prophetic tone;

"A wanton clothed in gauze of gossamer
Now leads ye on, ye blind, world-cankered fools—
A ruby flashes in her golden hair,
Lights in her eyes, her witchery's fair tools!
Beware! her touch is cancer, and she bleeds
Till but the lees of luscious fruit remains,
Her breasts heave anxious o'er her hellish deeds,
And pour with milk of blood o'er men their murderous stains!"

HER name, Commercialism, brands its word
From Albion westward to the Slavic waste—
She clears the forests—slays the lowing herd—
And now the clouds her fateful kiss must taste:
Her arms have folded nations to her breast
Who strive to be her fortune's favored child—
Ambition now desires her jeweled crest,
And striving, kills the weaker in aggression wild!

Beneath her charm the World deluded lies—
Though Progress rear her great majestic spires—
Still Liberty the ancient wonder cries,
"O why, why these revolting feudal fires?
Did Cain's mad murder thus instill your wrath,
That but for gain ye forfeit your own souls
To strut victorious o'er a dust-strewn path,
Clothed in rank Gluttony's red-lettered leaden stoles?"

O Nations—Ye who for renown aspire!
Ye lords—ye rulers—kings and potentates—
Fling in rebellion's devastating fire
Commercialism's greed that desolates!
Strive not to conquer in the quest of Gold—
Remember one vain boast, "Rome rules the World!"
And gaze upon that Forum, where of old
Great Cato to the senators the warning hurled!

Cease—strip the power from this witching form!
This sorceress who wields supreme her wand—
Destroy, raze—trample her void hollow charm,
And wrest the sceptre Gold from out her hand!
Suppress her now, O Nations—wait not till
She treads colossal over lands and seas—
Not when her form the sunlit skies doth fill,
And her destruction every wind of Fury frees!

Into those pillaged vales once more return,
Ye hosts that blindly grope through belching ways—
'Tis in your cots the hearth's warm embers burn,
Within your fields still shine fair Summer's rays!
Go! institute with your empire's realm,
Contentment in the ways of bounteous toil—
Of Nature's plan take heaven's true-starred helm,
And consecrate your native lands, God's hallowed soil!

ROAD SONG.

When the jitneys get after
The railroads, too,
Oh, what will that unhappy
Business do?

Will it ask Uncle Samuel
To manage it,
Or will it just give up
The ghost and quit?

Bohemia in Eclipse.

Ragged, unshaven, and hoarse of voice,
We are yesterday's crew of song;
Only one word we knew: "Rejoice"—
But ah! we have not rejoiced for long
There is quiet now in the haunts we knew—
Poverty's ills have thinned our ranks;
Ballads no longer will pay bills due—
And Bohemia has no savings banks.

Ne'er do we seek to know the cause—
It is enough that our ills are here;
Why should we care to find the laws
That rendered our playground dull and sere?
Why should we bother to find just why
Ended were all our merry pranks?
Fortune has coldly passed us by,
And Bohemia has no savings banks.

Music there was, and lights and wine,
And the rustle of gowns as the passing breeze;
But today our haunt shows a "for rent" sign,
And voices once clear can only wheeze;
Our ballads and pictures no more will sell—
The wind blows cold on our ill clad shanks;
And this thought echoes, like sound from hell:
"Bohemia has no savings banks!"

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

P.-D. SUB.—1793 cent. $2.

W. W. W.—No premium on any of your coins.

M. B. S.—No license required for distributing cards or circulars.

OLD TIMER.—Mississippi steamboats still take soundings by lead line; in shallow water, by pole.

QUINN.— The pain of which you complain is probably associated with the injury to your vertebra.

ELLIOTT. — Genuine Stradivarius brings a high price; but there are thousands of violins falsely labeled Stradivarius. False dates are easy.

WORRIED. — Houseplant worms: Push into the earth, near the plant, a number of parlor matches, sulphur end down. The fumes of sulphur destroy the animal life, yet are not injurious to the plant. Or try weak lime water.

L. M. C.—For sweating hands: Borax and salicylic acid, ½ ounce each; boric acid, 1 dram; diluted alcohol and glycerin, 2 ounces each. Rub on three times a day. If from nervousness, stop thinking about it; keep mind on something else. Some recommend dipping hands in vinegar. (Strong vinegar kills nits.)

G. C.—Sarah Bernhardt was married in April, 1882, to Jacques Damala, a Greek, who was an actor in her company. They were divorced, but were reconciled a short time before his death. She did not marry again. Common-law marriage "holds good" in Missouri if it can be proved. There have been common-law divorces in this State.

MARY.—Chop suey, simple recipe: Clean chicken and scrape meat from bones, thin; cut into cubes an inch long. Have ready in frying pan a heaping tablespoon melted dripping and two tablespoons rice with cup hot water. Lay the cubes of meat in this; cover closely and cook slowly and steadily one hour, or until tender. Scald well two red peppers from which you have removed seeds and thick rind, strain the gravy from the meat, keeping the latter hot. Put the peppers into the gravy with tablespoon minced chives and tablespoon minced onion. Stew half hour, thicken with flour, season with salt and pour over meat. Return to fire and stew all together gently 10 minutes.

I. C.—Savill (London practitioner) praises strongly Williams' formula for the treatment of ringworm, this consisting of picric acid 7 grains, camphor ½ ounce and rectified spirit ½ ounce. Dr. Savill used this mixture with gratifying success in 50 cases, of which full records were kept. She secured cures in cases which had been treated for months with other remedies without success. She says that among the nurses and mothers of the neighborhood of the Children's Hospital she acquired the reputation of being able to cure ringworm within three weeks. Dr. Savill makes a number of suggestions regarding technique. First, no other applications should be made; second, all the camphor in the lotion must be dissolved; third, the hair must be cut around the diseased patch in the usual way and the lotion painted on night and morning; fourth, the yellowish powder forming on the skin must be lightly washed away twice a week in order to insure fresh applications reaching the scalp; sixth, loose hairs must be removed with the depilation forceps, being careful not to break them off. Chloroform rubbed over the patch gives the diseased hairs a frosted look which makes them easy to locate.

GREAT AGES EXPLAINED.

A. G. U.— (Supplemental.) It is surmised, the Jewish World says, that in the earliest times the month, the period of a moon cycle, was called a year. Thus Adam's 930 years of life, calculating a year at 29½ days, the period of a lunation, works out to 75¼ years, and Methuselah's 969 reputed years are whittled down to 78¾. After the month year there came a five-month year, the limit of five being derived from the fingers on one hand, it being remembered that primitive people always used the fingers for counting purposes. Then came the 12-month year. Excuse for this rearrangement is found in the Psalmist's limit of life of three score and ten years, and it is maintained that between the times of Noah and David no such extraordinary change could have taken place as to reduce the life of man by eleven-twelfths. On the five-month year basis Abraham's 175 years work out at 72 and Isaac's 180 at 74. Perhaps, too, there intervened a six-month year, discovered by Jacob while watching Laban's flocks. Thus Jacob's 147 years work out at about 73. The 12-month year began with the Egyptians, who saw that a complete period was made up of the two "years," in one of which the days were longer than the nights, and in the other the nights longer than the days.

A FEW KIND WORDS.

From American Justice (Successor to St. Louis Municipal News.)

The Post-Dispatch calls the opponents of the parkway reactionaries, mercenaries and riff-raff. A reactionary is one who would stop progress. A mercenary is a hireling. Riff-raff means trash. According to the Post-Dispatch, then, those who are against the parkway scheme are men who would check progress, hirelings and trash. Here are the Post-Dispatch's own words:

"The character of the opposition is now known as a combination between selfish reactionaries who would sacrifice progress to unearned profit, the mercenaries and the riff-raff who have no interest in St. Louis."

The Post-Dispatch has long been known as a journalistic prostitute and pervert, notwithstanding the platform which it carries at the head of its editorial columns over the name of Joseph Pulitzer. Slander and villification have always been its handiest weapons. It has employed them cowardly and without pity. Never before, however, has it included in one slander tens of thousands of the best citizens of St. Louis simply because they refuse to follow the dictation of its editor, whose cue comes from his paper's business manager, whose action is ordered by big advertisers. The Post-Dispatch platform of principles is a platform of hypocrisy. Declaring that it will not tolerate injustice and corruption, it is itself unjust and corrupt. If it would fight the biggest demagogue in Missouri let it fight itself. If it would oppose privileged classes let it oppose itself and other of its kind. If it really sympathizes with the poor, let it stop making capital of what it does for the poor upon the money of the citizens of St. Louis, many of whom are opposing the parkway. If it would be drastically independent, let its editorial opinions ignore its cash registers.

The Post-Dispatch is a blustering, boasting, bullying braggard. Its principles are those of the assassin. Its morals would shame old Chestnut street when the latter was ablaze with red lights and scarlet women. From its birth it has been the organ of the loud and vulgar. It appeals to the rabble, and it is as low and disreputable as those to whom it appeals. It has made money, much of it by questionable methods. It has not made happiness. If it has served the unfortunate, it has undone the service by parading the fact in its columns. It promotes crime and capitalizes misery and distress. It is the skunk of the local newspaper field, incapable of fairness and devoid of honor.

FORCING THE DARDANELLES.

—Cesare in New York Sun.

Battering at Gates of Constantinople

CROSS AND CRESCENT.

Philadelphia Press: For a long time the tradition has prevailed that the Dardanelles could never be forced—that the ancient capital whose history reaches back to days when all history was young was impregnable today. News that is hardly more than 24 hours old has shattered that tradition. The forts that guard the tortuous straits leading up to the sanctuary of the Sheik-ul-Islam have already been either silenced or reduced by the mighty guns of the men-of-war of England and France and the last defense, the mines with which those waters are strewn, are at this moment being swept away by the smaller war craft of the allied fleet.

Not only the map of Europe but the destiny of nations and of races will be profoundly altered and influenced by the expulsion of the Turk from Constantinople—the object which it is now clear to all the world is what the Triple Entente—Great Britain, France and Russia—have in view.

GREAT HISTORIC EVENT.

Philadelphia Ledger: This is really the great historic event of the week; the glorious thing the Orthodox millions have longed for for centuries; the cherished dream of seeing the cross above the crescent under the aegis of the Russian flag.

The preliminary panic that is now on in Constantinople and certain phases of the censored news all reveal most clearly that those in power in the Ottoman capital realize that the game is up, and in Russia even the mere hint of the possible fall of Constantinople into Orthodox hands morally and from the fanatical point of view will go far to make up for the crushing defeat of Russian arms in Galicia, Poland and East Prussia.

AN OPEN THOROUGHFARE.

Atlanta Constitution: All thoroughfares that lead to great world centers and to mighty centers of activities must be opened to the world. Upon such terms, the Suez canal is open. The vessels of all nations also, through the triumph of American statesmanship pass through the Panama canal upon terms of equality.

The dardanelles, a thoroughfare of international importance, should be placed upon the same footings.

England always learns with the years. That is why her commerce now dominates the world.

So it is probable that the gates of Constantinople, the tortuous passes of the Dardanelles, once open, will remain open to all comers. That is the philosophy of the twentieth century.

TURKS MAY STAY OUT.

Cleveland Leader: If the Turks are driven out of Europe, as a ruling race, they will never come back. In Spain it took seven centuries to expel the Moors who had overrun the peninsula in a small fraction of that time, and in the south-eastern corner of Europe the cutting away of Turkish territory has been much slower than the Turkish conquests were. But the Moors, once driven back to Africa, have never recrossed the strait which separated them from Europe.

HELPING SLAV AMBITIONS.

Indianapolis Star: Imagination leaps at the thought of Russia at length realizing its immemorable dream of access to the sea at the Dardanelles. The plain truth is, of course, that Turkey has long ago forfeited any right to existence and that nothing but British antagonism to the Muscovite has frustrated an ambition in which Russia has had the sympathy of the civilized world.

One of the minor effects of this awful war has been the abatement of Anglo-Saxondom's age-long dread of the Slav, which can be compared with nothing else so impressively or so instructively, perhaps, as the equally blind and pitiful Russian hatred of the Jew. Even Kipling, who liked to think of Russia as "the bear that walks like a man," now joins in the universal British encomium of the Russians as very fine people.

WOULD OPEN MARKETS.

Boston Globe: The undisputed access of Russia to the Mediterranean would cause a marked change in present conditions, for it would bring to the allies wheat, petroleum and other needed supplies in abundance. From all indications the geographers of the world will be kept busy for the next few years changing the maps of both Europe and Asia.

BIG GUNS VS. FORTS.

Washington Times: The bombardment of the fortifications at the entrance to the Dardanelles by the British battleship Queen Elizabeth, with the new 15-inch guns that the latest naval monsters carry, is in reality just one more namur, a new Liege, a naval Maubeuge. Whether the monster gun is mounted on a cement platform or on the deck of a battleship built to carry it and stand the strain of its discharge, it is all the same; fortifications as the best of them have been built will not stand its attack when once the range is accurately determined.

The question becomes more than ever pointed, whether fortifications as now built are worth the building.

AN EPIC OF WAR.

Chicago Journal: The most dramatic, thrilling chapter of the great war is now being written at the Dardanelles, where the allied battle fleet is smashing its way toward the capital of the unspeakble Turk. Twenty miles of the straits have been cleared already, and still the great ships are plunging forward.

A narrow channel, sown with mines, banks bristling with fortifications, a background of history and legend—the lookout of the Queen Elizabeth can see the plains where Homer's heroes fought, two continents watching the world's most powerful fighting ships, and the jewel of eastern Europe as the prize of battle—nothing is lacking to the epic splendor of the occasion.

If the fleet captures Constantinople without the aid of a strong army, it will be the most remarkable feat of the war. It would be an impossible feat if the Turks had a tithe of the martial efficiency of their allies. The navies of Britain and France together could not conquer those straits if the shores were held by German, French or British soldiers. Somewhere in those 47 miles of narrow channel, the strongest fleet would be brought to bay; somewhere along those shores would be a battery that would make even the Queen Elizabeth pause. But the Turk is a beaten man—and he knows it.

GREAT BENEFITS TO FOLLOW.

Philadelphia North American: The freeing of the Bosphorus and the Rardanelles is to Russia a matter of life and death. It will mean the opening at last of that doorway which so long has shut in her vast wealth and the pouring out for the use of the world of her inexhaustible treasure of the soil.

This will be an immeasurable benefit to mankind. The awakening of a commercial Russia will mean the decline of autocracy and the spread of enlightenment throughout the vast dominions of the Czar. And it will in time undo the monstrous wrong inflicted upon civilization by the selfish Powers of Western Europe, which, for their own greedy ends, arrogantly barred the path of Russia to the markets of the world.

Britain's Embargo on German Commerce

ENFORCE OUR RIGHTS.

New York Tribune: The fact that Germany, by proclaiming her war zone, goes far beyond international law and commonly accepted humanitarian views conceivably entitles her enemies to show equal disregard for the law in their relations with Germany.

But for England and France to strike at Germany by undertaking to suspend the operation of international law as between themselves and the United States—this raises a wholly different question. * * *

In such a case it is necessary for this country to consider what our rights are; what those of all other neutrals are, whose champion we thus become. It is necessary equally to consider what the ultimate effect upon American interests must be of permitting the British and their allies to establish the precedent that neutral trade in non-contraband can be held up without blockade, without offending on the part of the neutral and solely to serve the exigencies of belligerents.

MIGHT SHORTEN THE WAR.

New York Times: As a military measure the value to the allies of a blockade of Germany would be very great. The full force of that argument would be appreciated, and the counter-argument, that it would be cruel to deprive the German people of the means of subsistence, lacks convincing merit. Measures that tend to shorten war cannot be called cruel. If through the pinch of want Germany were forced to make peace in May the procedures that bring her to terms could not justly be called more cruel than leisurely tactics that would permit a prolongation of the war for a year. Neutral nations will not complain of measures that tend to shorten the war, but they may be expected to protest to England as they have protested to Germany, against any trade embargo that falls short of the perfectly well understood quality of an effective and binding blockade. Their course will depend upon the measures taken by Great Britain to prevent all commerce with Germany.

WILL PROTEST AVAIL?

New York American: The neutrals will protest? Of course. But to what end? The United States is in no position, and has no desire to meet force with force. As for our moral influence, how can it affect maddened people fighting for mere rage quite as much as for national existence and wholly indifferent to any force save that of arms? At no time since the Napoleonic wars, more than a century ago, has the task of neutral diplomats to save not merely the rights but the self-respect of their nations been so difficult as today.

NEUTRALITY THREATENED.

Detroit Free Press: Whether Great Britain is breaking the law of nations in trying to starve Germany depends entirely on whether Germany finds itself able to impose its reading of the laws of nations on the world. And England's contention that the German submarines are pirates stands in similar case. The only peoples who are in position to complain are the neutrals; and any complaints they may make must depend for efficacy on the force lying behind them. Indeed, it is a question whether in order to enforce what they may consider their rights as neutrals, the neutrals may not find themselves obliged to cease being neutral.

EACH FOR HIMSELF.

Philadelphia Record: The blockade declared by the allies against Germany cannot, of course shut that nation entirely off from supplies from other countries. On the north Denmark and Holland are still in communication with Germany by land and sea, and the Baltic ports are accessible, as before, to vessels from Sweden and Norway. On the south Switzerland, Austro-Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria cannot be prevented by the allies from forwarding food and munitions of war to the Kaiser's people, if they so desire. In view, however, of the growing scarcity of food in nearly all European countries it may well be doubted if Germany can look for much aid from these neighbors. It already has become a case of each one for himself first of all. The United States is not likely to suffer very seriously from the blockade. If it helps to bring down the price of wheat the great bulk of the people certainly will not complain.

BLOCKADE MUST BE REAL.

Pittsburg Dispatch: The allies intend to establish a blockade of Germany. Their right to enforce that blockade will depend on whether they make it effective or not. They cannot simply declare a blockade of German coasts and then destroy or seize neutral vessels bound for those ports. They must have blockading vessels at the blockaded ports, effectively guarding them and preventing the passage of vessels going in to discharge their cargoes.

The necessity, at least by all the old rulings, is the same as in the case of Germany's attempted blockade of the British coasts. Both must be actual to be effective. Unless the belligerents establish effective blockades of the inimical coasts the neutral Powers will be justified in making a warm protest against the seizure and detention of vessels under their flags proposing to enter either German or British harbors.

JOHN BULL AROUSED.

Philadelphia Inquirer: England has been a long time in arousing itself. The English people are slow to wrath and exceedingly self-confident. They have taken it for granted that they were going to win out. They have been very deliberate in getting together a respectable army. The bombardment of Scarborough angered them a little. The Zeppelin attacks upon sleeping women and children stirred them up more. But it has required the submarine campaign against British shipping to get them good and mad. Apparently they have at last arrived at that phase, and the virtual blockade of Germany is their method of retaliation. We may protest all we please, but we are not at all likely to change their attitude. They have conceived the notion—for which Germany is alone responsible—that Germany is in danger of starvation and actually can be starved into submission. They propose to try the starvation process.

UPHOLD INTERNATIONAL LAW.

New York Globe and Commercial Advertiser: It is the duty of this country, disregarding the circumstances of the present war, to retain what life it can in the body of international law as it has grown up during the last hundred years. The nations now wanting us to deflect this way or that was as suits their immediate exigency will thank us for keeping alive the fire on the altar of civilization. The argument heard from both camps that the crisis is such that for once the end justifies any means is as false now as when it was put forward by Alva. Peace, real peace, can come only through some form of internationalism, and internationalism in any form is made difficult, if not impossible, with every demonstration that rules agreed to in times of peace to be binding in times of war are of no value—can be set aside on pleas of military necessity or of retaliation. In the degree that nations now descend into savagery and weaken the bonds that even unite belligerents the world will find it harder to rise out of savagery and to re-establish common ideals.

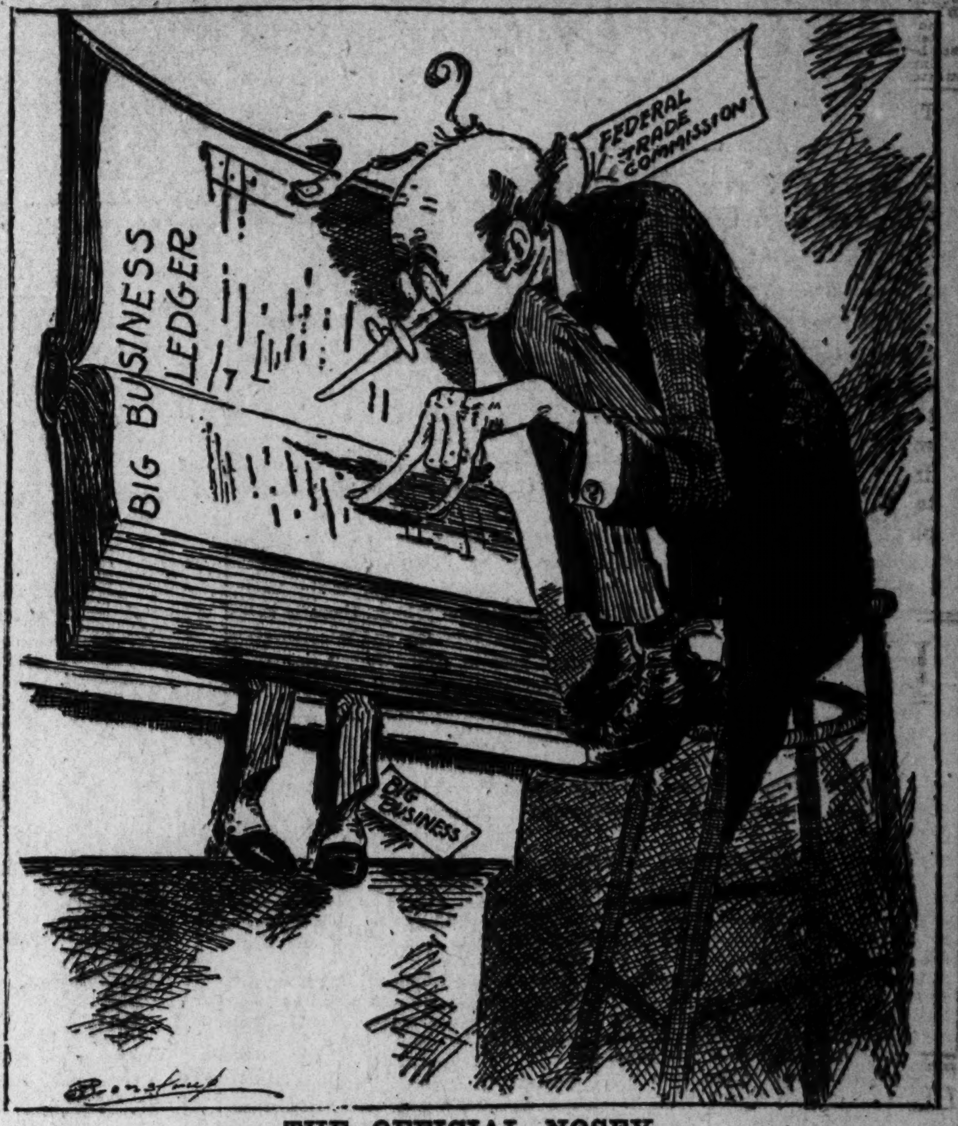
CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES.

A Song That Was Sung in the Streets of London 35 Years Ago.

We don't want to fight, but, by jingo, if we do,
We've got the ships, we've got the men, we've got the money, too;
We fought them before and so we will again—
The Russians shall not take Constantinople.



THE OFFICIAL NOSEY.

Time for New Business Activity

GOOD SPRING PROSPECTS.

Philadelphia Press: Unofficial reports state that the large acreage of wheat has come through the winter in good condition. Another season of bountiful crops will be a most fortunate circumstance.

On account of the large balance of trade in favor of this country British gold is coming to the United States by way of Canada. Money continues to be plentiful and that confidence is gaining ground among investors is shown by the avidity with which new offerings of securities are absorbed.

Prospects of an early spring are encouraging the building industry which will be helpful to the steel business. There are good reasons, therefore, for the American business man to cheer up and to look forward to better things. There is a more solid foundation for optimism at this time than there was in January when sentiment was especially buoyant.

NO CHECK IN EXPORTS.

St. Joseph News-Press: For the first three weeks of February the balance of foreign trade in favor of this country made an average of about $7,000,000 a business day.

If the reports for the closing days of February show anything like the daily record for the first three weeks, the foreign trade balance in our favor for this shortest month of the year, containing four Sundays and two other holidays, will be some $150,000,000. That will make the total balance for the first two months of this calendar year approximately $300,000,000.

At a stupendous rate, the outside world is going into debt to this country. We are right now lending all over the world to customers, national and individual, buying from us, at the present rate of $150,000,000 a month. We will have to continue to lend to the world in commodities, else the world will have to stop buying.

Who wants the world to stop buying from us, even on credit into the billions? Certainly not our producers. We have the capital, the labor and the materials for infinite supply. All we have needed is an outlet, and it has opened.

TIME TO START THE WHEELS.

Washington Herald (Ind.): Had President Wilson reserved his famous expression "psychological depression," which he used nearly a year ago to describe what was at the time generally recognized as a deplorably real condition, he could apply it to the industrial situation today and there would be few to question the accuracy of his analysis. About all that is left of the depression that followed the enactment of the Underwood tariff law is psychological, since the war has had the effect in a measure of repealing that law or at least minimizing the disaster which it threatened. That is to say, the European conflict has saved our markets from being flooded with the products of foreign labor, admitted free of duty or with the duty greatly reduced.

Before the outbreak of the war, enormously increased imports had turned a substantial balance of trade in favor of this country into a larger balance against it; and in spite of this our customs revenues were so reduced that a deficit in the Government's finances was plainly visible ahead.

The war has restored our balance of trade and turned our debts abroad into credit, at the same time but slightly reducing our already inadequate national revenues. It has increased tremendously the demand abroad not only for our foodstuffs, but for a variety of our manufactures; and has cut off the stream of products, manuactured by cheap European labor, that were driving the products of our own factories out of our own market and forcing our own workmen into idleness. Europe, with all its able-bodied men in uniform, had everything to buy and little to sell.

Today the business interests of this country can contemplate enormous credits abroad, bringing foreign exchange down to the lowest figure in a generation and turning back in a steady stream the gold we sent to Canada soon after the war began, to maintain our credit with Great Britain. It may reasonably be expected that our exports will increase rather than diminish, and that before the year is over we shall have an unprecedented balance of trade in our favor. With ample funds available for every legitimate enterprise and with the prospect of a growing market for the products of our industry, there appear no sound reasons why the brakes should not be taken off and the unemployed put to work. The curtailment of our needs at home deprived men of employment and further reduced our capacity for consumption. With fundamental conditions now so vastly improved there is but little excuse for the hesitation of capital to set the mills and factories going on full time, putting money in circulation and restoring the buying and consuming capacity of the whole people. Overproduction is scarcely a possibility to be feared with this country in a sold-out condition and an increasing foreign demand a reasonable expectation. Unless, therefore, it is a haunting fear that the seas may not be kept open to commerce that is holding our industrial chieftains back, the influence that is keeping the mainspring clogged and the wheels revolving sluggishly must be purely psychological. There is nothing else that is tangible to keep us in the doldrums. But the allies have control of the seas and there are no indications that they will relinquish it, in spite of war zones and submarines. And also it must be remembered that once our exports to Europe cease the end of the war is in sight.

There may be a real depression in the United State Treasury, but when industry is humming again that condition need worry only those in charge of the Government.

Customs and Morals Are Matters of Geography—At Palm Beach Women "Smoke All Over the Place." Tea Matinee Starts at Winter Garden Today at 5 O'Clock—Rich Girls Here Are Making Their Spring Clothes at One of the Dressmaking Schools—Former St. Louisans Doing Heroic Service in European War.

By Frances Cabanne Scovel.

CUSTOMS, like morals and correstness of styles, are merely a matter of geography.

Just now the St. Louisans who are in Cuba are probably enjoying the Carnival which is every Sunday during Lent. You see Lent is forty days and forty nights NOT counting the Sundays between, so in Latin countries where the Lenten season is rather more strictly kept, there is fasting during the week days and Sunday always is a gala day and is celebrated in a way that makes visitors from the north gasp at first. But before long they have fallen under the spell of the land of Manana and are enjoying the festivities just as innocently as the natives who go to church in the morning, the Jai Alai game early in the afternoon, and watch the procession of flower-decked carriages and motor cars going round and the Prado afterwards. Later they dine al fresco at some cafe and end the day by listening to the band—a fine municipal band of about a hundred pieces, play on the Malicon.

The street parade continues late into the night. There also are balls, public, and the opera. So is Sunday spent in the tropics where the stars seem to hang down on strings and there is always a tomorrow.

It is the custom of the country and they think ours queer.

Back in the interor the people don't wear many clothes, and the children don't wear any until they are quite large, but they dont' know they are naked, so why tell them? They are highly amused at our wearing apparel, especially 'our hats—so there you are!

NOW, in Palm Beach, the women are smoking cigarettes "all over the place," and no one thinks anything of it. They smoke in the palm groves and on the verandas, and one woman with a world-wide name, lights up when she comes out from her swim and lounges on the sand with her cigarette.

Isn't it appalling to contemplate? At other fashionable resorts it is just the same way and has been for several seasons.

And as for dancing, whoever said the craze would not last croaked in vain for at the winter resorts they dance nearly all day and part of the night.

At Palm Beach there is dancnig on the Breakers piazzi from 12 to 1:30 and everyone stops there after the swim for a dance. Every afternoon there is dancing in the ballroom grove from 5 to 6:30, in the evening there is dancing in the palm grove from 5 to 6:30; in the evening there is dancing in the ballroom, and at night in the grill from 12 until—all hours.

They dance on the beach at any time opportunity offers.

THE Tea Party Players will give a performance of "Such a Nice Young Man" this afternoon at the Winter Garden at 5 o'clock. The hour has been arranged so that those who attend the pop concert may drop in for tea and the play.

All week, with the exception of Thursday, when the Symphony tea was held in the Winter Garden, the "the matinees" have been held there. The idea, which is entirely new, has met with success, so much so that there is talk of introducing them at the casinos at Newport, Narragansett and Bar Harbor.

On Thursdays, when the Symphony teas take precedence, the performances will follow a table d'hote luncheon at 1 o'clock. This week the players will present "The Farewell Supper," from "The Adventures of Anatole," by Schneitzler.

New line of smart hats for immediate wear. Hughes Millinery, 4217 Olive.

A NUMBER of society girls—kindly forgive the adjective but there seems no other way of designating that small group of girls who belong to Society that is spelled with a capital S—have been making their spring suits at one of these schools where sewing is taught.

They say that Miss Frances Reid Jones, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Jones, finished hers in time to wear it to Memphis when she went down there last week for her brother Reid's wedding.

Miss Alice Maloy is another, Miss Marie Louise Benoist, Miss Virginia Simpson and Mrs. Harold Bixby, one of the brides of the season, all are busily engaged, so many hours a day, stitching and basting, making their suits.

Now, the interesting part of it is that all these young women can afford to buy what they please, where they please, so maybe it is a sign that to make one's own clothes is coming back in style.

Spring opening of Millinery and Novelties Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Sally Meagher, 801 Century.

MUSIC is again in evidence on the social calendar for the week and the events are of more than usual interest because the wife of the soloist, of the Symphony concerts, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, the Russian pianist, is the daughter of the late Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemens) and is coming with him.

The Clemenses here—Dr. James Ross Clemens, Mrs. Powhattan H. Clarke, Miss Mary Clemens—and a score of other prominent persons are relatives of Mme. Gabrilowitsch.

At the same concert the New England Symphony will be played and the composer, Edgar Stillman Kelley, will be the speaker at the Symphony tea Thursday afternoon at the Winter Garden. Mrs. Kelley will be with him and will be at the piano to demonstrate the different motifs.

It is an almost unheard of thing for a composer to speak or write an explanation of his own symphony, so Mr. Kelley's coming is a real event.

Mrs. C. C. Hardcastle's dance studio cpen classes Tuesday and Friday eves. Orchestra furnished for social events.

The Art League will give a reception Friday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Kelley at the Artists' Guild, and the guests will be the members of the Art League, the prominent musicians of St. Louis, the Symphony Society and Mrs. Kelley's former college mates.

Mr. Kelley is the director of the musical department of the Western College for Women at Oxford, O., and his work as a composer has brought him the front rank in his profession.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Brookmire Jr. of 4970 Berlin avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Lansing Ray Carter have gone to Hot Springs, Ark., to spend two weeks.

LOST in the vast amount of news that comes from Europe and her fighting millions are the stories of individual women—women we know, who lived their girlhood here and married into foreign lands.

There is John Scullin's daughter, the Countess de Gheest, who spends every spare moment at the hospital for the blind—those brought home blind from the front. All her friends here are sending her what they can to help.

M. de Gheest has equipped a motor ambulance and runs it himself back and forth to the line, hoping in that way to get news of their young son, Henri de Gheest, who is with his regiment and has twice been promoted and decorated. The last news of him was that his feet had been frozen.

Mrs. Pierre Cartier, who was Miss Elma Rumsey, is really doing Red Cross work in the hospital at Cherbourg, to be near her husband, who is stationed there. She and some other nurses have a ward into which more than a hundred wounded soldiers were brought in, one day during the worst of the fighting, and she wrote that as the men had been in the trenches for two weeks and wounded, the experience of that one day she never would forget—nor would she ever get the smell from her nostrils. Now, imagine a beautiful young woman, whose life had always been like the Princess in the fairy tale, surrounded with everything money and position can give, and you have an idea of how much credit Mme. Cartier deserves.

M. Cartier has had appendicitis and was in the hospital ready for an operation when the war broke out, but he got up and out, in spite of what the doctors said, and has been doing recruiting duty since, as his condition prevents his being sent into active service.

Mme. von Scanovi, who was Miss Nettie Harris, Capt. Lloyd Harris' daughter, is superintending the food for the

FRECKLES

February and March Worst Months for This Trouble—How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly everybody freckles in February and March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from your druggist and apply a little of it night and morning, and in a few days you should see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the light ones have vanished entirely. Now is the time to rid yourself of freckles, for if not removed now they may stay all Summer, and spoil an otherwise beautiful complexion. Your money back if othine fails.—ADVERTISEMENT.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—ADV.

SOCIETY

wounded in a hospital in Vienna, for her husband was an Austrian and her son is with his regiment in Poland.

The Countess de Noue, who was Miss Teresa Taylor, the sister of Walter Cerre Taylor and Mrs. Albin Mellier, is nursing in a hospital near Paris.

Miss Rosalie Abreu, who went to the Sacred Heart Convent here and was one of Mrs. Dick Kennard's bridemaids and visited her before her marriage when she was Louise Nugent, is really at the front. She had left Havana several years ago and was making her home with an aunt in Paris. She took a course of trained nursing—for no reason except that she wanted to—and was eligible for service.

Chouteau Johnson, John T. Terry, Al Terry's brother, and Dick Vernon, whose mother was Miss Louise Frost, are in the ambulance corps in France. Percy Noel is doing something in aviation—observing, perhaps—and over in Germany are more St. Louis girls doing their mite toward helping the war sufferers, among them Miss Marian Lindsay, who is engaged in taking care of the children of soldiers in Munich.

OH! would there were more artists—singers and players—who had the temerity to rebuke their audiences for bad manners as did the world-famous tenor at the Odeon Thursday evening.

It only remained for someone on the other side of the footlights to rebel, to complete the reputation St. Louis audiences have for their utter disregard for all rules that govern behavior in public.

All during the concert the singer had been annoyed by some persons in a box who talked and giggled audibly.

Finally, when he could stand it no longer, after the accompanist had played the prelude to the song over twice and still the chattering kept up, he went to the front of the stage and said: "When you are through I will start."

It was an interesting moment because no one had ever dared before to voice his disapproval of such a thing as talking in the audience. First there was dismay, then applause from those who were unfortunate enough to be sitting within hearing distance—and that was quite a distance—from the special box.

So much has been said and written in criticism of St. Louis audiences that there seems nothing left to say. For awhile they improved, but of late they are lapsing into the habits that have made them notorious for their bad manners.

To say they are always late is too old a story to repeat. To tell how they walk on their heels and drop things and fuss around also is an old story. So is the fact that they always spoil the last act by getting ready to jump and run in the middle of it. It was suggested that boxes of cough drops and Maxim silencers be given with the programs and the latest suggestion is that they be told that "The Star Spangled Banner" is the national anthem, and not "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," nor yet "God Save the King," once known as "America."

"The Star Spangled Banner" is the national anthem, the only one to which Americans rise when it is played, and has been since the Spanish-American War, made so by an act of Congress. Two Sundays ago almost the entire audience rose when the Symphony Orchestra played "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean." It was so amusing to see them.

Think of not knowing one's national tune! It makes one wonder if half of them know the American flag when they see it.

That day the conductor of the orchestra turned around once to see what the audience was doing, because the "American Fantasy" had just begun, and as it is quite long, with "Yankee Doodle" and lots of rousing strains in it, he could not imagine what all the noise was about.

But it was only the audience getting ready to leave, putting on their hats and coats and making all the fuss it could.

But the big noise was when nine-tenths of the large audience rose to what it thought was the national anthem.

THE engagement of Miss Elizabeth Murphy to Dr. Lloyd B. Wright is announced. Miss Murphy, who is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Murphy of 5089 Raymond avenue, is a graduate of Mary Institute in the class of 1913. Dr. Wright is a graduate of the Washington University. He is the only son of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Wright. There is a rumor that a big carnival is being planned by one of the charity boards that is noted for giving more affairs for its especial cause—which is a good one—than any other in St. Louis. It probably will be in May, as that is the time charity carnivals are usually given. It is only a rumor, however, so take courage.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Anderson of Normandy have returned from Palm Beach, Fla., where they spent several weeks.

Next we have the big Fashion Carnival, which will be given at the Coliseum the week of March 15. It will be one of the most interesting charity affairs ever given here civically, socially and charitably.

Two concessions have been given away, the Tea Garden to the King's Daughters, and the coat room to St. Patrick's Day Nursery, better known as Father Dempsey's Day Nursery, which is run by a group of women from Father Dempsey's other charities and does not share in the contributions to them.

The Fashion Carnival will be for the benefit of the St. Louis Maternity Hospital, which is as non-sectarian as it is possible for a charity to be.

Easy Way to Remove Freckles and Eruptions

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases, if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off next morning, flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle is removed in this way in a week or so, with all its defects. No bleach could so effectually remove freckles or blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No pain or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment.

In case of wrinkles which sink beneath the outer skin, a solution of saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel, makes a face bath which is wonderfully effective.—ADV.

EARS ARE IN STYLE AGAIN
LIFT UP YOUR HAIR

The new style of lifting the hair from the ears looks much nicer if the hair is soft so it drapes around the ears rather than being pulled up in straight, hard lines. To get the best effect in any style of hairdressing, every strand must be fluffy, lustrous and, of course, clean. In washing the hair it is not advisable to use a makeshift, but always use a preparation made for shampooing only. You can enjoy the best that is known for about three cents a shampoo by getting a package of canthrox from your druggist; dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly, with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.—ADV.

Germany Fighting Solely for Honor, Declares Chancellor

The tall Chancellor rose and slowly paced the quiet room, his hands locked behind his back.

He Pointed Out the Means of World Peace to Haldane

"THINK of this tremendous coalition of nations against Germany! And what have they accomplished? We have already 600,000 prisoners in our hands. Under any circumstances Germany would be able to defend her own soil. But today Germany is fighting for her very life and every living German knows it and feels it. The consciousness of right and pure love of country stand behind German strength and German training and nothing can resist German arms under such conditions. The German nation has asked for nothing but security for its future.

"When Lord Haldane came to Germany to see whether there could not be a peaceful working arrangement between Germany and England, I told him that if England and Germany would get together on sensible and helpful lines no country in the world would dare to attempt to produce a great war. I pointed out to him that with these two great nations joined in a friendly way, and with the United States acting as a friendly neutral, the peace of the whole world would be guaranteed; a general war would be impossible. But it was not to be. With the absolute power of peace in her hands, England deliberately took upon herself the responsibility of promoting and permitting this most disastrous of all wars."

The Chancellor paused for a moment before he retired from the room, and raising his hand, he said slowly and deliberately:

"Every event in the field on all sides indicates clearly the ultimate triumph of the German arms, and when the day of victory comes Germany will prove that she has never aimed at the military domination of the world, and that her one supreme desire is to continue to develope science and art, to raise the productive power of her industry and her commerce, and to continue the peaceful development of the resources of civilization and culture."

"I HEREBY certify that the above is an exact copy of Mr. James Creelman's interview with the Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg.

"Berlin, Feb. 10, 1915.

HAIR STOPS FALLING AND DANDRUFF GOES AT ONCE—25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Save your Hair! Beautify it! Invigorate your scalp! Danderine grows hair and we can prove it—Always effective.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous you must use Danderine, because nothing else accomplishes so much for the hair.

Just one application of Knowlton's Danderine will double the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, don't hesitate, but get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now? A 25-cent bottle will truly amaze you.—ADV.

Acute Articular Rheumatism

The exact cause of rheumatism is unknown, though it is generally believed to be due to an excess of uric acid in the blood. It may be also said with equal truth that no remedy has been found which is a specific in all cases. In fact, the literature of rheumatism shows that there are but few drugs which have not been given a trial. In the hands of one observer we find that a certain drug has been used with the utmost satisfaction; others have found the same remedy to be a great disappointment. All physicians, however, agree that every method of treatment is aided by the administration of some remedy to relieve the pain and quiet the nervous system, and Dr. W. S. Schultze expresses the opinion of thousands of practitioners when he says that Anti-Kamnia Tablets should be given preference over all other remedies for the relief of the pain in all forms of rheumatism. These tablets can be purchased in any quantity. They are also unsurpassed in headaches, neuralgia and all pain. Ask for A-K Tablets.—ADV.

A Smooth, Hairless Skin for Every Woman

(The Modern Beauty)

With the aid of a plain delatone paste it is an easy matter to rid the skin of unsightly hairy growths. The paste is made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs not wanted and after 2 or 3 minutes rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. When you go to your druggist for delatone, be sure you get the genuine article.—ADV.

The Notedly Beautiful Singer

Answer to "Chorus Girls:" How to remove dandruff and cure it? There are a great many remedies for this trouble, but a wide experience enables me to honestly and heartily recommend the plain yellow minyol treatment. It is quickly effective and improves the hair and scalp conditions beyond anything I know of. Obtain in four-ounce jars with directions.

Answer to Miss B. O.: You say your skin is dry, sallow and drawn over the chin and cheek bones, while there is no plumpness or color in your face. What you need is a nourishing massage treatment twice daily. Obtain a tube of medicated venosol and use it right after heating the skin with a towel wrung from hot water. Dry the face before applying venosol. This will bring plumpness and color to any thin face.

Matron: Am glad you found wavolene just what you needed. Yes, a greasy, dirty-looking, pimpled skin can be beautifully altered to smoothness and fairness by the daily application of gloriol tonique astringent, sold by dealers in bottles with very complete directions. There is nothing equal to it.

"Pearl": Let me have sent to you a nice, fragrant sample of the best face powder on the market, called Gloriol Face Powder. Just send me a 2-cent stamp for white, pink or brunette. All good dealers sell it.

S. C. B. asks: "I am annoyed and embarrassed by my total inability to keep my hair looking respectable. It is stubborn and strings like the frayed ends of a rope. Please advise what is best?"

Answer: This same trouble afflicts a large number of my correspondents, and to all I have recommended the toilet necessity which I use, called wavolene. Applying it to the hair keeps it curly or wavy for days at a time, and, persistently used, it improves the texture of the hair, resulting in a natural, fluffy or wavy appearance.

Answer to "Mrs. M. O.": I judge you are thin, bloodless and colorless, due to anemia or malnutrition. You eat heartily, but cannot gain weight. For such a condition there is nothing superior to three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets. They increase the weight by aiding the digestive processes and increasing the red and white corpuscles of the blood. Thin, nervous people find them quickly effective.

Note: If the reader does not find the information wanted in the questions answered above, just address a letter to Miss Claire Ainsworth, 40 Patterson Bldg., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope, and she will gladly advise on health and beauty problems. The articles and preparations mentioned are on sale by all wholesale druggists, large retail and department stores; or any accommodating dealer can obtain them for you. See next Sunday's St. Louis Post-Dispatch.—ADVERTISEMENT.

NO SHIPS FROM N. Y. TO EUROPE IN ELEVEN DAYS

Scarcity of Vessels and Freight Congestion at English Ports the Cause.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 6.—After today's departures no British or neutral steamship will leave New York for Great Britain for 11 days, making a situation almost without a precedent.

This is the first time in 35 years, steamship men say, in which there has been a lack of ocean liners going to Great Britain, or since the date when steam vessels, with a regular schedule, succeeded the old sailing clippers.

Strikes in English ports, the congestion of freight in the Mersey and the Thames and the extraordinary demands made by the Admiralty upon the British transatlantic lines for transports, have caused the situation. The brunt of the shortage has fallen on New York.

The Arabic is the first British steamer listed to sail from New York for England, and she will not sail until March 17. The second eastward departure will be the Philadelphia, on March 18. She has not yet left Liverpool. There are six sailings next week for the Mediterranean, France and Holland.

"YOU EAT CAKE," SOLDIER'S WAIL TO GERMAN PUBLIC

Latter, However, Is Conserving Flour, Says Post-Dispatch Staff Man After a Secret Tour.

Special from a staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch—an American—who recently has made a secret tour of Germany.

LONDON, March 6.—In connection with the campaign in Germany against eating cake and pastry, the Kolnische Zeitung recently published the following verses, contributed by a Landsturm soldier at the front:

That springs from Satan, and must not be:
We graybeards surge through the French countree
Singing and oaths we've strewn in our wake—
Heida—how our valor glows!
Heida—how our red blood flows!
But you—eat cake!
But you—eat cake!
That springs from Satan, and must not be.
Into the trenches we leap with glee,
No coward's thoughts to make us quake!
Shrapnel screaming through the air
Finds us waiting steadfast there—
But you—eat cake!
That springs from Satan, and must not be;
It hurts the graybeard fearfully
When the homeward path he's forced to take.
When, thorn, his foot, shattered his hand,
He staggers back to the Fatherland—
But you—eat cake!

All Know Shortage Exists.

These verses, I think, are illustrative of the consideration given by every German to the shortage of bread and flour.

In the Fatherland nobody attempts to deny that such a shortage exists, but only a small minority realizes how grave a problem it is. The great majority believe implicitly in the powers of the imperial Government to safeguard them from starvation, and so, until it is "verboten," they will continue to devour quantities of cake and pastry.

There are even fewer Germans who comprehend that in copper they have quite as knotty a problem to unravel. All other needs in the Kaiser's realm are subsidiary to these two greatest ones—bread and copper. Oil and rubber and leather and chemicals are needed, and needed badly, but not to that overwhelming extent which marks the demand for those other two necessities.

Without hesitation I venture to state that, upon her ability to obtain food for her people and food for her guns, depends the future of the German Empire.

Need of Copper Great.

The demand for bread is more urgent even that the demand for copper. That is why, in the last few weeks, the Imperial Government—and hence the German press as well—has busied itself exclusively with measures for the conserving of the scanty supply of flour.

But copper is next in line, and once the regulations following upon the seizure of the grain stores are working properly, it will come to the front.

It is possible to prophesy with absolute assurance that before the arrival of spring the authorities will take possession of every piece of copper in Germany, as drastically as they have done in the case of wheat and rye.

So far as the act of seizure is concerned, it will be simpler to carry out than that involving the governmental "corner" on grain. Copper is not a household necessity—at least not in Germany in war times—and its use in the community may be restricted to wiring for electricity without interfering greatly with the comfort of the inhabitants. Then again, the copper trade is already controlled to a much greater extent than was the trade in breadstuffs.

But—and it is a very large but—Germany's supply of copper is even smaller in comparison with the demand than her supply of grain, and cannot be increased even to the small extent that the production of grain can be.

Germany produces about 2½ per cent of the world's copper output, which is roughly 1,000,000 tons. In 1913, according to American consular statistics, she imported 259,000 tons of raw copper and exported 141,000 tons, most of which was in wrought copper. Thus it will be seen that her consumption amounted to 118,000 tons.

Faith of One Patriot.

Her own production of copper totaled less than 30,000 tons, of which something over 20,000 tons were derived from the Mansfield mines, the remainder from several small mines of little importance. The utmost pressure that could be laid upon the Mannsfield and other mines could not bring about a production of more than 35,000 tons a year. And yet a German copper expert, overcome by patriotism, solemnly assured me that the German mines would suffice to supply the nation's military needs!

The palpable fallacy of this statement is revealed by the hitherto unadvertised activities of the War Metal Co., which is one of the many concerns formed under Government patronage for the administration of commodities needed for military purposes.

Agents of this company are carrying on an almost house-to-house canvass of the empire—without a word of publicity attending their efforts—with the aim of purchasing at excellent prices all the copper doorknobs, stopcocks, pots and pans and other objects that householders are willing to dispose or to the fatherland. The sums they pay vary, but roughly copper today is worth in Germany three times what it sells for in New York.

The real campaign for the rounding up of the copper supply, however, is not yet under way. One is still able to purchase manufactured copper goods in the retail stores, though the prices are practically prohibitive. At a shop in Berlin I bought a little copper ash tray, and with fell design asked if the price would be lower if I were to buy a dozen of the same article.

"The price would be the same," I was informed, "but in any case we couldn't sell you a dozen, because we have only four more in stock, and, of course, during the war we can't get any more."

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

College Bldg., College-Elwood Sts., Dayton, O.

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood sts., Dayton, O., inclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

Worried Man writes: "Let me say that my condition puzzles and worries me. In the last year I seem to have been growing old rapidly, though only 38. My food and sleep do not recuperate my strength and energy, and lately I have dizzy spells, trembling, headaches, loss of appetite, memory and hopelessness. Despondency and worry over my condition are ever present."

Answer: Cheer up, get well and then conserve your vitality by proper, temperate living. Obtain three-grain cadomene tablets in sealed tubes with full directions, use them and an agreeable, pleasing restoration should ensue to your entire satisfaction.

Mr. L. C. B. asks: "Do you think it is possible to reduce my weight from 240 pounds to about 190 pounds?"

Answer: It is impossible to say just how much one can reduce until after trying, but five-grain arbolone tablets should be used according to directions with each sealed tube, obtainable at most any drug store. If the flesh is unnatural you should easily reduce as desired.

Mrs. L. B. writes: "What can I do for a bad case of stomach, liver and bowel trouble? My food sours in stomach, I rift, have heart-burn, and a full, uncomfortable feeling after meals; constipated at intervals, coated tongue and bad breath all the time."

Answer: Thousands of people in this country are afflicted as you are, and to get immediate relief and gradually effect permanent results, I advise you to buy of your druggist a dollar package of "double-four stomach and bowel medicine" and use as per directions on the packet.

J. R. O. asks: "I am thin, angular, weak and tired. What can I take to improve my health, strengthen my nerves and increase my weight about 20 pounds?"

Answer: Take regularly with your meals three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets, sold in sealed packages, by druggists, with complete directions. These tablets improve the blood, increase nutrition and strengthen the nervous system if used regularly for several months.

"Lee" writes: "I have tried so many remedies for rheumatism that I am almost afraid to try any more, but if you can tell me a sure remedy I will try it."

Answer: Do not be disheartened because you have not been able to find something that would overcome your rheumatism, for you can be relieved if you will take what I tell you. Get from the drug store: Iodide of potassium, 2 drams, sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, ½ oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz., and syrup sarsaparilla, 5 ozs. Mix and take a teaspoonful at mealtime and again before going to bed.

C. L. asks: "I have tried to cure dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair and baldness with numerous tonics, etc., but in vain. What do you recommend?"

Answer: I have been recommending plain yellow minyol for the past seven years and scores of my patients are delighted with the quick, pleasant action of this remedy in stopping itching, falling hair, dandruff, etc. It gives the hair health, luster and vigor as nothing else does. Obtain in 4-oz. jars with full directions.

H. M. B. writes: "Can you please prescribe medicine which will relieve me of such distressing symptoms of kidney and bladder, as the following: Pains in small of back, soreness in region of bladder, puffing of limbs, etc.

Answer: Those seeking relief from kidney and bladder disorders should begin taking balmwort tablets, a very successful formula sold in sealed tubes with full directions.

Mrs. N. B. B. asks: "I suffer from headache and constipation and my blood seems too thick, causing languor and tired feeling. I will thank you to prescribe for me."

Answer: Three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) are most effective in relieving constipation, thinning the blood and removing the symptoms of languor, etc. I advise you to begin taking as per directions with each sealed package.

"W. Z." writes: "I have such a very severe cough and cold and have not been able to get anything to help me. It is weakening my system."

Answer: Use the following and your cold and cough will vanish and you will soon be strong again: Get a 2½ oz. bottle of concentrated essence mentho-laxene and take every hour or two. This can be taken pure or made into a full pint of home-made syrup. Full directions as to use will be found on bottle. This is a mild laxative and will drive the cold from the system.

R. G. O. asks: "Will you please prescribe a home treatment for a bad case of catarrh of the nose and throat."

Answer: Begin taking a tonic flesh-building treatment and for such a case I know of nothing better than three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets. Local treatment is also necessary for both catarrh of the head and throat. A simple but effective antiseptic and curative treatment can be followed at home by buying either a two or eight ounce package of antiseptic vilane powder containing complete directions.—ADVERTISEMENT.

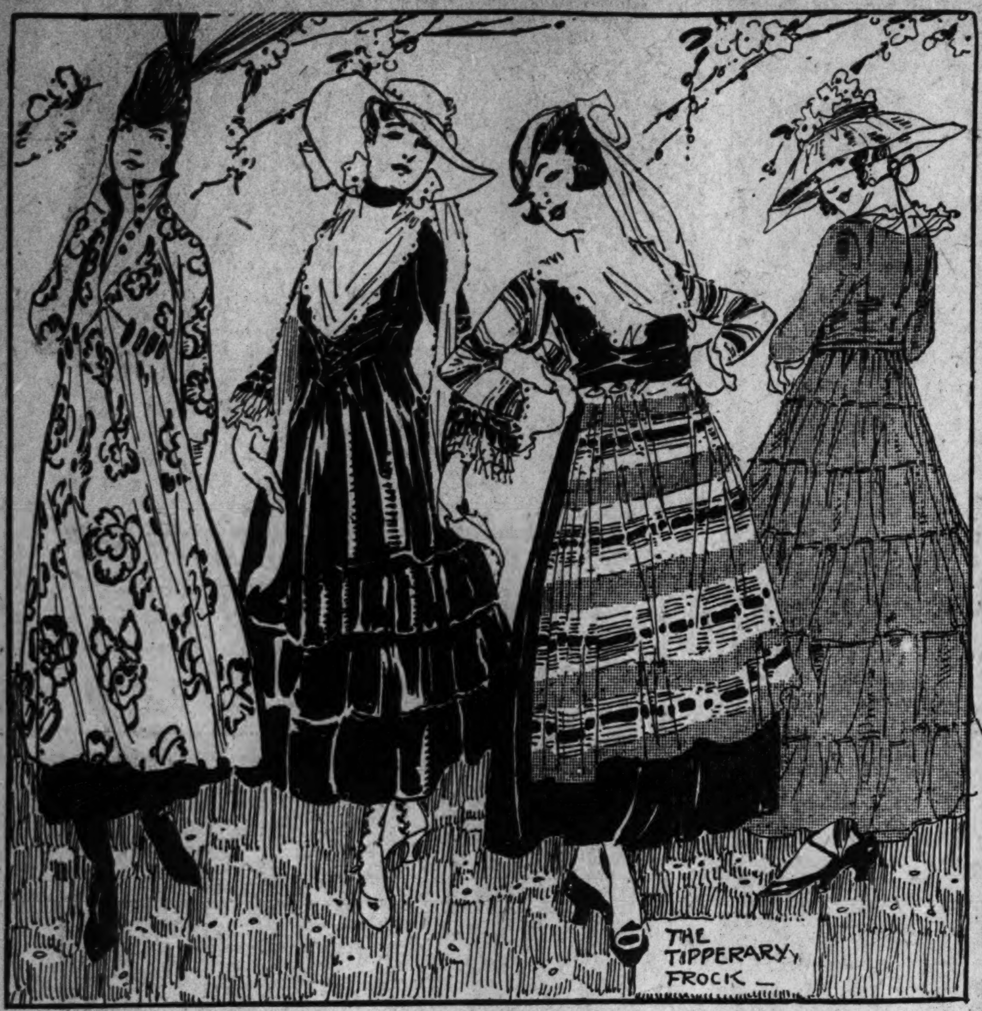
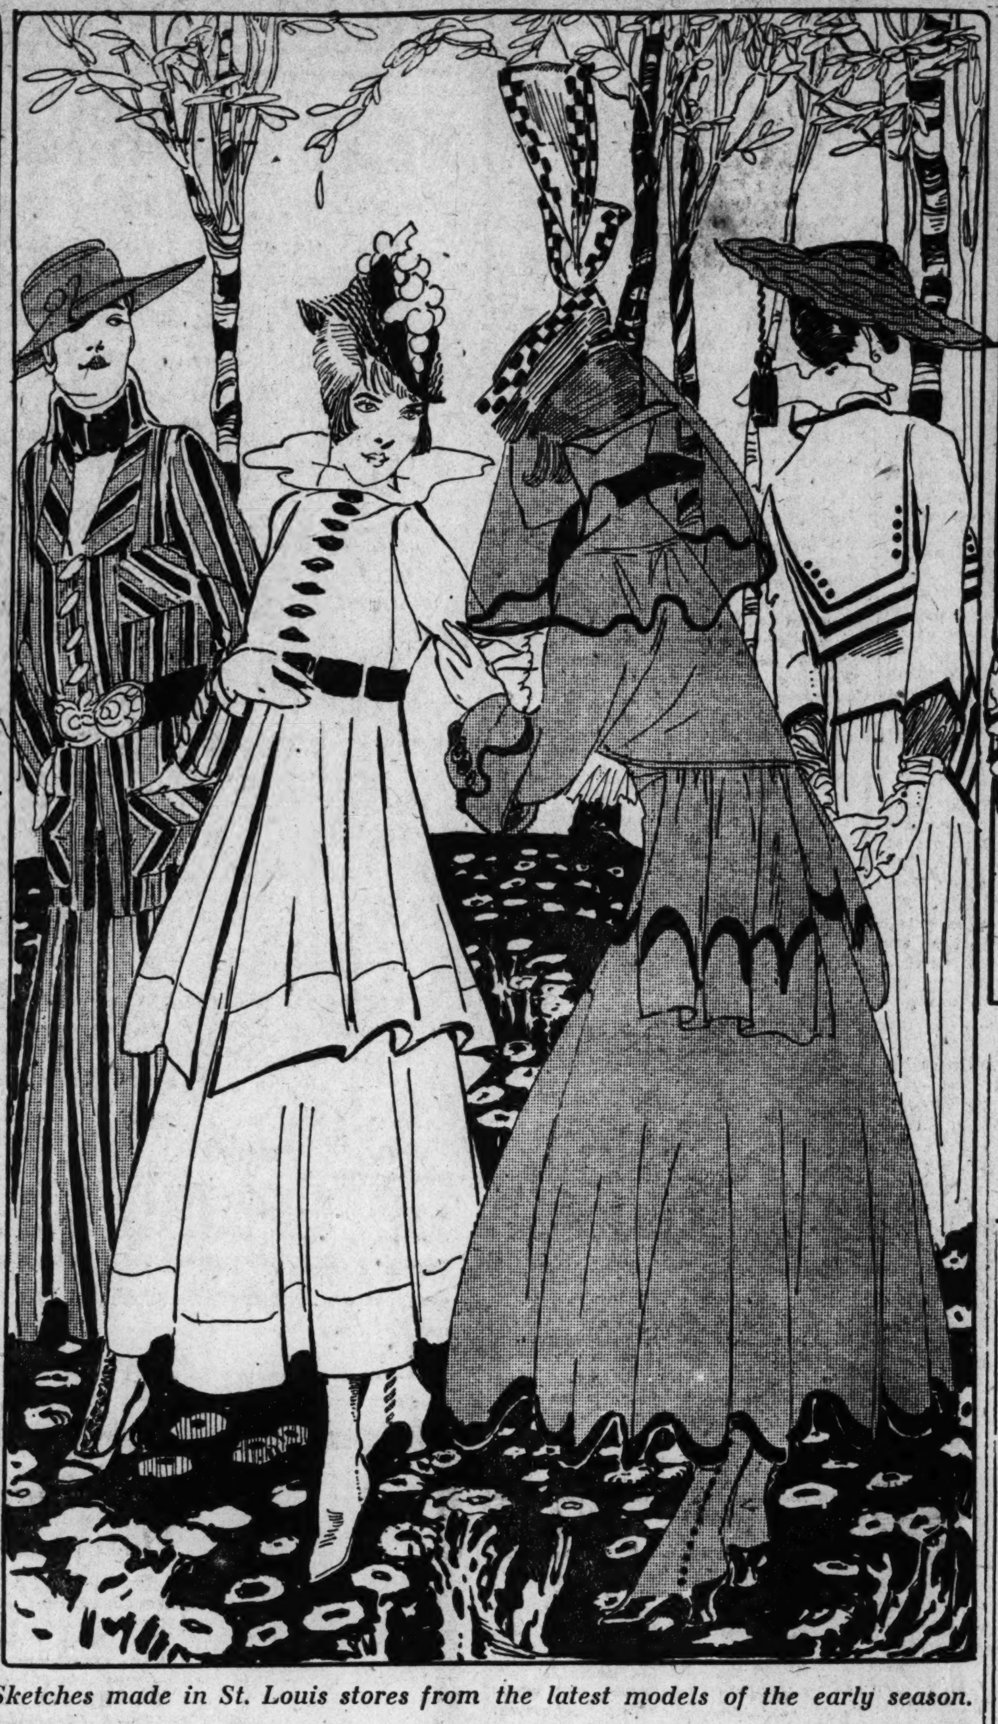
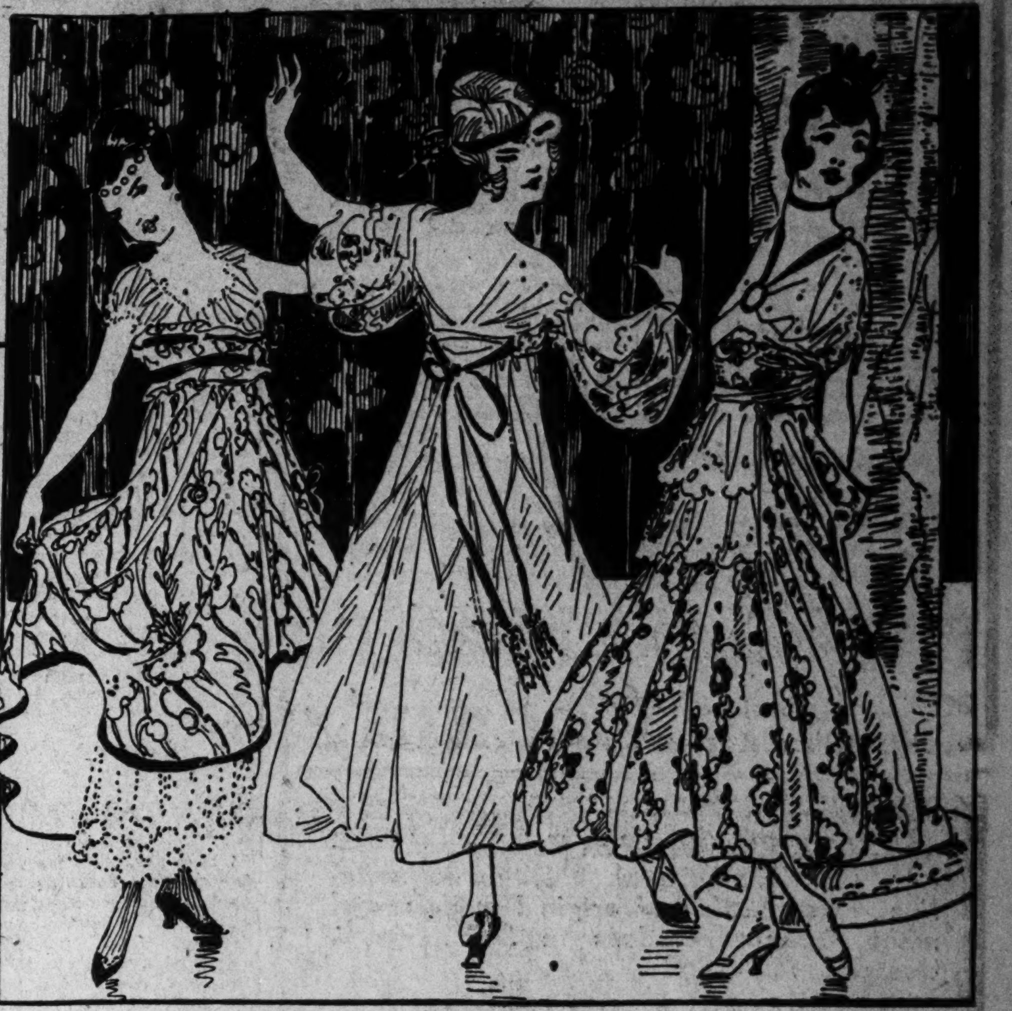
This Is Spring Style Week for St. Louis Shoppers





Sketches made in St. Louis stores from the latest models of the early season.



It Is Estimated That Upward of $3,000,000 Will Be Spent by Residents of the City and Its Environs During the Spring and Early Summer Season.

Women's Newest Styles Show Many Oddities

THE extremely fashionable skirt is eight times as wide as the extremely fashionable skirt of this time last year.

Hats are simpler and less expensive, but what is saved at one extremity may easily be expended at the other. Skirts 10 inches from the ground require 14-inch shoe tops, and these boots are expensive as well as decorative.

The small-and-early hats are small almost to the vanishing point and almost devoid of trimming, depending upon their shape and the angle at which they are tilted for their style and grace.

New corsets show a definite waistline and bodices are boned to preserve this outline.

EARLY Victorian, sweet simplicity, is the character striven after in the new frocks.

WHEN all of the big department stores, the women's specialty emporiums and the men's shops throw open their doors tomorrow morning all St. Louis will know that spring is here, for on every side will be displayed all of the latest styles for 1915. This is to be style week throughout the city. And only the very latest and very newest garments for men and women will be put on exhibition. If the old groundhog superstition is correct then winter has bowed his exit without the slightest chance for an encore. That rare old animal called the groundhog, whose calendar is limited to but a single day, came out of his hole on Feb. 2, and, failing to see his shadow, stayed in the open, for he knew that the worst was over and that spring was gathering up her bright raiments for an early entrance.

And so it was with light hearts that the wise merchants started to make ready for their 1915 style week. Merchants are always happy when sloughing time comes—the season when men and women eagerly look forward to the day they are to cast aside those old winter duds and replace them with the bright new styles of an early spring. The winter garments that were viewed with pride in November, pleasure in December, plain satisfaction in January, discomfort in February, have now become an eyesore to their owner, who keenly awaits relief in Spring and summer styles.

This year the one big fact demonstrated by the display of spring and summer styles is that it is not necessary for either men or women to go outside of St. Louis for the very latest or very best of anything in the way of wearing apparel—the best and the latest of all kinds of clothing are brought from all sides to the shops and department stores here.

It is estimated that as a result of this style week upward of $3,000,000 will be expended in wearing apparel by residents of St. Louis and its environs this spring.

THERE ARE MANY ODD FREAKS FOR THE WOMEN.

WHETHER it is that the centralization and combination of power in the fashion world that has existed at Paris has been dispersed by the war and the new fashions for women are coming from scattered and unrelated sources, or whether Paris, urged by greater necessity to guard her position as the capital of fashion, put to greater test, outdid herself—the fact remains that we have with us today the most radical change and greatest variety of new modes one season has known.

The latter situation seems the most likely solution of the question. Certainly the advertisements of Parisian couturiers circulated in this country were more alluring, more compelling than ever. So irresistible were the offerings and bargains many American buyers were willing to risk danger of dreadnoughts and submarines to procure them. Other dealers sent carte blanche orders to the other side. The result is all the hoarded stores of rich materials, laces, silks, embroideries, fine lingeries foreign countries had on hand seem to have found their way to our shores to be offered at rare bargains at the spring openings. Several St. Louis houses sent buyers to Paris and they have returned, albeit in many cases by round-about route, with importations that show what extra effort the women milliners and modistes have exerted to keep secure Paris' style pre-eminence while their countrymen are fighting to defend her pre-eminence in other directions.

The styles for women, to be sure, are characterized not so much by originality as diversity. Designers seem simply to have delved deep into memory and resuscitated forgotten modes of long ago.

"Period" motifs furnish many inspirations. Especially is the early Victorian era drawn upon. The one point designers seem agreed about is the silhouette. Skirts must be wide—not merely wide in comparison to last year's 18-inch hem nor with the compromise of a narrow foundation skirt, but really wide and swinging, often four yards around the hem. And shoulders must be narrow, not merely seeming narrow in comparison with the width below, but so narrow that in many cases one's blouse pinches across the back.

The waist lines must be quite definite and indented just where the natural waist line of youthful womanhood always has been indented.

A PET MODEL SHOWN IS THE TIPPERARY FROCK.

WHALEBONES in the front of little round bodices stay the definite waist line in many of the new gowns.

In short, the fashionable silhouette of the moment is like unto those we have gazed and smiled upon in the ancient daguerreotypes or old brass-clasped family "album."

No fashion writer could describe such styles with greater appreciation than did George Sand in her day once did. "Those enormous folds of satin, that profusion of muslin which enveloped a slender little body as down envelopes a dove, made us resemble birds, swans, rather than wasps," she wrote.

And several designs trace their origin to the costume of the humble peasant. Just as it is "Welcome, Mr. Atkins, when the guns begin to roll," the yeomanry are not an ill-considered factor in days of national strife, and the "peasant frock" of immemorial vintage is in high favor with les elegantes. A pet model shown by one St. Louis house is the Tipperary frock, its wide black taffeta skirt, laced bodice, muslin chemisette and a real apron of practical dimensions in gayly striped voile is the direct reproduction of an Irish peasant's costume.

SOMETHING NEW IN THE WAY OF SPRING PETTICOATS.

WITH the wide skirts come petticoats out of several seasons of oblivion and with an accumulation of flounces, frills, cordings they have not known since the days of hoops and tilters. There is, naturally, more talk than actual evidence of pantalettes, although they are worn harmoniously with some of the "period" dancing frocks.

To be chic the new skirts must be short—10 inches from the ground is the rule—and swinging out as they do, shoes become an important consideration. Shoemakers have responded nobly to the demand. Fourteen-inch boots of soft kid, laced up the inside that would have been an unobtainable luxury except made to order last year, are displayed in all the shoe shops in colors to match every gown. A great deal of stitching and embroidery embellishes many of the high-topped boots. Russet leather with white buckskin tops, it is predicted, will be a favorite for summer wear.

Of materials for the new gowns, stiff taffetas, gros de londre, which is a taffeta with a twill; failles, gros grains and satin sublime take the lead naturally for the bouffant quality that lends them to the full skirts.

Gaberdine makes its reappearance in several new weaves for suits, and voile, but with none of its old seeking after transparency. One house is showing suits of voile hung over linings of figured and changeable taffeta, the revival of a mode within the memory of the present generation. Sleevelessness and transparency over neck and shoulders are declared passe. Women have shivered in diaphanous effects all winter for Fashion's sake, and how does the capricious one repay her votaries but by decreeing long or elbow sleeves and high collars reaching sometimes to the eyebrows—for the heated season!

Simplicity and dignity in many respects sound the keynote of fashion for a term.

The cocotte who formerly was wont to flaunt herself as fashion's mannequin parading at the great racing meets, dazzling, ensnaring and misleading a train of followers—is no more—no more than the fashionable French racing meet. And the Oriental, the bizarre, do not accord with the early Victorian ideal—gentility. Trimmings, therefore, take such modest form as self colored braiding, cording, ruching, ruffling, fringe, balls and many buttons, a deal of hand finishing, such as bound scallops and leaf points, pinked edges and pipings.

And although there are new colors and new names for old colors, Fashion's spectrum is in rather sober key.

"It is to be a black and white season, varied chiefly by grays, dark blue and the rather neutral sand shades," one milliner told us. As a matter of fact, her color card revealed a multiplicity of grays, battleship, Sphinx and Columbe among the new ones. Of blues, Belgium, Joffre, Channel, army and Elizabeth (after the Belgian Queen) blue bespeak recent christening. Turbin, a copper color, also insinuates a breach of neutrality.

THIS IS A SAFE COLOR TO STAND BY.

A SAFE color list to stand by without betraying one's "colors" in the European affairs is that launched by a St. Louis house, which is called the exposition colors and are flagpole red, Exposition gold, wall blue and Golden Gate and lattice green. But even these colors are more subdued than their names would indicate.

Although skirts follow a prescribed bell-shaped outline, the same may not be said of coats. Individuality may revel in the choice of coats of finger-tip, sack or bolero length. And they take all forms, straight, belted, flare-skirted, cutaway or coatee. The belt line may be high, low or medium. Four examples of these facts, selected as favorite models from as many St. Louis houses, are illustrated. At the left of the central drawing is pictured a box coat model in dull-toned Roman striped faille. Patch pockets, which distinguish many of this year's coats, are a feature here. The white broadcloth, bell-shaped coat in the next figure illustrates another tendency. The third design, developed in seafoam taffeta, has a full circular peplum attached to a sacque-like upper part gathered into yoke. The fourth design developed in blue cloth, braided in brown silk, depicts the bolero, still another popular coat length. A good extra skirt, blouse and top-coat season is predicted and offerings in these departments of women's wear are most attractive. Golfine, a washable corduroy, is as practical as it is smart for sport and summer walking skirts.

NEW LINES FOLLOWED OUT IN TAFFETA SILK.

THE new lines are followed out in taffeta as well as cloth and one model particularly good in silk is the Spanish skirt. It is constructed in tiers of five scant circular ruffles, gradually widening toward the bottom, until, although it fits snugly at the top, it flares four yards wide at the hem. Another skirt is shaped of "tube" gores strikingly reminiscent of godets of other days.

It is in top coats that all the color and boldness of the season's designs are concentrated. One cannot be too conspicuous a figure on the landscape when defended by one of the voluminous, wide-spreading affairs, "noisy" in pattern and shrieking in color. Of course, there are coats of somber hue. Army cloth and coverts in neutral grays and tans are in evidence, but even these are boldly mannish, in contrast to the shy, simpering air written in the early Victorian lines everywhere else.

Blouses repeat notes already sounded, the tendency being toward simplicity, sheerness and fineness of material as differing from the heavy embroideries and lace applique of other seasons. Georgette crepe is profusely used, sleeves button over the hand and collars high around the throat or made two-in-one fashion. Smocking, of peasant derivation, is much used and the Oliver Twist is a fad. Of white linen, double-breasted above a wide blue linen belt, it is adorned with pearl buttons of the same large, useful type Oliver was wont to hitch his clothes together with.

HERE ARE THE HATS MILADY IS TO WEAR.

AND now we come to the hats. While woman spends time and thought upon her gowns, it is real affection which she lavishes upon her hats. At the beginning of the season, madame is certain to find irresistible the very little hats. Some of them are small almost to the vanishing point, little pillboxes or birds' nests, as indeed one shape in straw is appropriately called. Exquisite simplicity characterizes the trimming of the small hat, beautifully made nosegays of flowers or fruits, rosettes of straw flowers to be appliqued, beaded buckles, crests, crosses or a cocade to give just a suggestion of the military, a pair of aeroplane wings and sometimes only large-headed pins or a minaret veil are considered sufficient ornamentation. Depending mainly upon its own line and construction, the shape itself becomes the all-important thing—unless the saucy Tommy Atkins tilt at which the small hat is worn is more important.

The Big Feature for Men This Year Is a Derby Hat That Costs $20—The Shirts Will Remain About the Same as to Colors and Fabric.

New Spring Styles Men Are Expected to Wear

CLOTHING for men this year is designed on more closely fitting lines to the body, thereby giving a suggestion of the military uniform.

Kool Kloth is designed to take the place of the Palm Beach suits of last year.

For men who like style there are shoes with cloth tops.

Shirtings will remain about the same, excepting that because of the European war a black-and-white effect is expected to predominate.

Walking sticks will be of the Prince of Wales crook handle and light in color.

HATS for men are higher in the derbies and different in the soft material also. Some have two shades of green. Brown prediminates in the derbies.

In the shapes one finds latitude and variety enough. Flat or high, toque or sailor, tricorne or the slender, elongated torpedo turban, most any shape, just so it is small.

No compromise seems to be the motto with the milliners. With Easter there will blossom out hats as large in their degree as the small-and-earlies are tiny in theirs.

WHAT ONE SAVES IN HATS MAY BE SPENT IN SHOES.

SOME regular cartwheels already are pushing themselves into the tailored hat division and with the flounced organdies and muslins the summer will bring forth only the larger garden hat will complete the picture. Most harmonious with the old-time frocks is the shepherdess—drooping back and front—but the poke bonnet and the Louis Seize, which turns high at the back, and the Bo-Peep, with long streamers, promise well.

The all-important question with the many of us is: will the simplicity of the millinery be felt correspondingly when it comes to paying for the same? The answer is: Yes. What with Paris bargain sales and dearth of material, hats are less dear than usual. Ah, but wait! What one saves in hats one may easily expend in shoes.

Short skirts and dancing at all hours of the day making one's feet conspicuous, recalls us to a neglected field for decoration. As it is, what formerly were rare luxuries in footwear, to be afforded by those with surplus means, have become necessities to all women who would appear smart and chic.

Consequently, women are robbing their heads of due decoration in order to decorate and attract attention to their feet. And so another swing of Fashion's pendulum is accomplished.

CHANGES IN THE STYLES FOR MEN AS WELL AS WOMEN.

CHANGES in styles for men are never so radical as those for the women. It takes some men a long time to reconcile their tastes to some new style of hat or coat or combination of colors. Many men accept new departures in wearing apparel only for their wives' sake. They are always thinking of the old adage that "fools set the fashions and wise men follow."

However, nearly all the changes that are made in men's styles usually have for their basic principle, comfort. It is a difficult task to get men to wear something uncomfortable simply because that "something" is the latest style. With most men it is a case of "comfort first."

For 1915 there are many changes for the men in clothing that is to be worn in the early spring and throughout the summer. Nearly everything is for comfort, especially in the new styles of shoes. This is notably so in the design of the square-toed boots that are among the newest spring and summer styles for men's footwear.

There appears to be a general tendency among the shoe manufacturers to force cloth tops on the market this year. Of course, cloth boots are comfortable, but it must also be remembered that they are cheaper to make and not considered by many so durable as the leather tops. When these shoes are being shined a smear of the polish is oftentimes left on the cloth top by accident, thereby causing loss of temper and a liberal use of words not often heard in polite society.

Nevertheless, the cloth top is here and will be worn by many. But there are also many other new styles of shoes from which men may choose. There seems to be a preference for the dull calf effect this year instead of the tans of the past. There is a narrow toe, too, this year, as well as a broad one. The so-called English walking shoe has returned and this style for the early spring is minus lacing hooks on the uppers. For the most part the heels are shapely, broad and from one-eighth of an inch to a quarter of an inch higher than heretofore. The arches are also built higher, and are bound to bring relief to persons who have a tendency toward the falling arch.

This year there is a derby that costs $20 (twenty dollars); can you beat it? Every man who reads this statement will wonder what his wife would say to him and to her relations if she found out that he had paid $20 for a new spring derby hat!

All derbies look alike to most wearers. The men who pays $2 for his is usually well satisfied with the bargain; the man who pays $20 for his at least has the satisfaction of talking about it to his friends.

The $20 hat is a marvel in construction. It is the most costly derby that has ever been put on the market, either in St. Louis or anywhere else. The color is of brown and the general shape like any other derby of this season. It is made of light felt, though not light in weight—at least not as light for this climate as one might wish for.

"KOOL KLOTH" TO REPLACE OLD PALM BEACH SUITS.

SOFT hats are of a new design and light in material. Blue and green will be the popular colors. Some of the soft hats are of two shades of green. Shirts will remain about the same as to general color scheme and fabric. Black and white, however, will be the generally accepted style. The roll cuffs appear to have sway as to popularity. Every known color is represented; this is so, even to neckwear. Body linen remains the same as to texture, being in one or two piece styles.

Coats will not be padded this year excepting in the yokes. The general tendency being toward a more closely fitting model.

Black waistcoats will be seen with full evening dress, but the white waistcoat is still the strong favorite for formal evening functions.

Cloth-top shoes will vary in colors. Canvas shoes will be in vogue during the summer.

Kool Kloth will be the newest fabric for men in the hot weather. This material is expected to replace the Palm Beach attire of last year. It is made of silk and worsted and costs but little more than the Palm Beach suit.

Cuffs on the trousers for the spring and summer styles will be one and one-quarter inches deep.

A SURE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve, and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—ADV.

Prof. Ferrero Foresees Great Changes in Europe

certain time Germany must grow no more.

It is to the common interest of all the peoples of Europe—and perhaps to those of America—that Germany does not come on again, exalted by a new noisy victory, to inflame the peoples with the passion of the merely colossal, the admiration of strength, the frenzy for quantity, haste and eagerness to enjoy, pride of riches, vertigo of velocity, modernity pushed beyond reason!

The world needs to regain its equilibrium and sense of correct measure, to remember that riches, enjoyment, iron machines, power are not all; that it is also necessary for men to think a little even of their souls, of the education of the mind, of the duties that unite men one with another, and generation with generation.

Think! We thought ourselves civilized, human, Christians; and a few months of war have sufficed to show us horrors that we believed had forever been done away with in the history of Europe! What does this breaking out of the old violence show us if not that man, all intent on increasing riches and extending his proud dominion over nature, has neglected himself and forgotten that at the bottom of his nature the force of evil was only sleeping, but was not dead?

Above all it is necessary to unsettle the cult of Strength, that Germany since her victory in 1870 has given such vogue. This cult is the principal cause of the mad armanent race of the last 40 years; and of the terrible will that has brought the torch to all Europe. If after this war the peoples of Europe do not intensely desire to see an era of concord and solidarity begin among the nations; if they do not return to the generous ideals that had taken such root in the generation of 1848 and that the following generations despised as dreams; if they will not recognize—all of them and even the strongest of them—the rights of other peoples, even the weakest, to live and progress independently, according to the traditions and the genius of their race, then Europe will not be able to enjoy any long and secure peace, but will retrograde to barbarism.

A lasting peace cannot be based on the equilibrium of strength, because this equilibrium of strength is a hypothesis that can only be verified by war—and that is what is now being done. A lasting peace can only be made on the loyal and sincere recognition of the inalienable rights of all the peoples—great and small—to their independence and liberty.

But how could the Religion of Might, that denies this right, cause the decadence of Europe, if Germany were again victorious this time over half of Europe?

I have said it is for the interest of all countries, including Germany, that German influence must not grow. The affirmation is strange and paradoxical in its appearance. What has been the defect that has ruined the German character, once rich in virtues, in the last 40 years? What is the defect that has pushed Germany to let loose this terrible war on a peace-desiring Europe, and that still keeps her from understanding the gravity of the crisis into which she has thrown the world?

One defect—one only—has been swollen pride!

The victories of 1866 and 1870, the rapid accumulation of wealth, the prodigious development of some of her industries, as the metalurgical industry, the growth of the population, the admiration that all the other peoples professed for her science, her social order, her industries, her army and navy, have put her good sense to a severe test. The German people have not been able to stand so much fortune—so much success. They got to believe themselves masters of all Europe—the most cultivated, the most moral, the most active, valorous, laborious and strongest of all peoples.

Having persuaded themselves of all this—as happens to all over-proud people—they ended by believing themselves persecuted. The other peoples, through envy, ignorance or jealousy, did not give them their due. Germany then had to watch out to defend that first place which was hers rightfully, and which inferior peoples wanted to contest with her. In this way the people were brought around to war without really being aware of it.

Germany then must learn, and be really convinced, that in the world there are certain peoples who, although they do not equal her in some things, surpass her in others; other peoples that, although behind her in everything or almost everything, have nevertheless the right to live and to work to better themselves.

Universal Empire Would Bring Catastrophe.

What would happen if this pride, already too great, were to be inflamed by new victories?

No! The times in which we live are such that a great universal empire ruling the other states of the Continent by force could not be tolerated—a catastrophe would occur. In antique times the universal empire of Rome was able to gather together many peoples under one scepter, without causing civilization to perish, because in the antique civilization pride, ambition, deceit and all the other passions that are so easily inflamed were limited by traditions, religion, artistic and philosophical culture, by the poverty and ignorance in which men still lived. An Emperor or a noble Roman always remained relatively modest men, because from all sides society told them not to presume too much on themselves.

It is no longer thus. Today the world is rich, intelligent, powerful. Today we criticise traditions, make and remake countries, dispute His commandments with God, Her laws with Nature. Literature, philosophy, custom, that which we call the spirit of the times, incite instead of limiting the pride, ambition and scheming of men. So it is all the more necessary that every people feels its power limited by other people equally strong, intelligent and wise. If one people became strong enough to rule the others in times so sensitive to exaggeration, it would become the Nebuchadnezzar of the nations and would succumb to a delirium of pride and power that would make it commit the most dangerous acts of folly.

Now, our generation, although not the Nebuchadnezzar of peoples, has already committed an extraordinary folly: The universal war. It seems to me that is enough. The world needs to get its sense of proportion back a little.

GERMANS FIRE 26,000,000 SHOTS EVERY 24 HOURS

Writer in London Times Says 305 Tons of Brass Is Thus Wasted Daily.

LONDON, March 6.—Twenty-six million shots are being fired daily by the Germans alone, according to estimates credited to "one of the world's foremost authorities on copper" whose discussions of the importance of this metal is published in the Times.

He estimates of 26,000,000 German shots every 24 hours, is based on the belief that the German firing line extends, in all, about 750 miles and the "conservatives" guess that 1,300,000 Germans are taking part in the engagements daily, to the extent at least of firing 20 shots each. This would be a low average, he believes, as during real engagements hundreds of shots are fired by each man.

Since a rifle cartridge, unloaded weighs 184.5 grains, the total wastage of brass in this form would amount to 678,578 pounds, or about 305 tons per day. These figures made no allowance for the machine guns, which spit out bullets every second.

Owing to the mud and water in which so many of the battles have been fought, the writer believes it is doubtful that 5 per cent of the cartridges used are recovered for remelting.

"Not even Germany's huge preparations could have provided for such a waste of copper for any length of time," he declares.

LONDON PAPERS REFER TO PRESIDENT AS DR. WILSON

Term Not Intended to Be Disrespectful, Editor of Chronicle Declares.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The constant reference in London papers to President Wilson as "Dr." Wilson is undoubtedly not intended as a slurring or sarcastic allusion to his academic career.

Robert Donald, the editor of the London Chronicle, a journal altogether friendly to the United States, in whose editorial columns the title of "Doctor" is constantly applied to the President, said today that he had never supposed that the title was other than most respectful and he was confident no London papers had the slightest intention of minimizing the office or the respect due it when they used this term.

STAGE EVENTS — Three Stars in One Play — NEW STOCK COMPANY — King's Opens With Florence Roberts — OTHER EVENTS

William Gillette, Blanche Bates and Marie Doro Form a Brilliant Constellation in Sardou's "Diplomacy"

Memorable Performance Promised at Olympic This Week in Masterpiece Dealing With European Espionage System—Blanche Walsh in Condensed Clyde Fitch Play, "The Woman in the Case," at Columbia—Ambitious Stock Company Undertaking at King's With Florence Roberts in "Zaza."

WILLIAM GILLETTE MARIE DORO and BLANCHE BATES in "DIPLOMACY" OLYMPIC.

A MEMORABLE performance of Victorien Sardou's "Diplomacy," with three stars, William Gillette, Blanche Bates and Marie Doro, uniting to form a constellation of the first magnitude in brilliance, will be given this week at the Olympic, opening tomorrow night. It is Charles Frohman's ambitious revival of the French masterpiece which, on its adaptation to the English stage a generation ago, created memories which still persist among older theater-goers.

Miss Doro, who takes the role of Dora, heroine of the play, acted the part during last season in London, and took the British public by storm.

Miss Bates has the role of the Countess Zicka, a Russian adventuress, whose strategems against the heroine form the basis of the plot of the play. Mr. Gillette will be seen in the congenial part of an English Secretary of Legation, who, under a blase air, hides great worldly wisdom and a keen intelligence, and who deftly clears the heroine, his brother's bride, of the suspicion of being a spy in the pay of the German Government.

"Diplomacy," although belonging to an older generation, has a particular appeal today, through its exposition of the European espionage system which the war has succeeded in bringing into the light of fact out of its previous doubtful status in the works of novelists and dramatists.

Next week at the Olympic, Henry Miller will appear in "Daddy Longlegs."

Other attractions offered by St. Louis theaters this week are as follows:

BLANCHE WALSH, Columbia. In condensed version of the Clyde Fitch play, "The Woman in the Case," in which she appeared for a year at the Broadway Theater, in New York. In her company are Marie Morton, Jerome Bruner, Sydney Riggs, Lawrence Sterner, William M. Travers and Al Corline. The remainder of the bill includes Toby Claude, with her company in a "Petite Revuette" of several light operas; the Avon Comedy Four—Goodman Kaufman, Smith and Dale—in a new farce, "The New Teacher;" Herbert Williams and Hilda Wolfus in a musical travesty, "Almost a Pianist;" and J. C Nugent in his original oddity, "The Squarer." Travel and news movies close the program.

"ZAZA," King's. With the presentation of Miss Florence Roberts, the emotional actress, in the title role, for a week's performance beginning tomorrow night, the King's Theater inaugurates an ambitious stock company undertaking. Miss Roberts next week will appear in "Madame Sans Gene" and during the third week in "Sham." She will be followed, the management announces, by a series of distinguished stars—Wilton Lackaye, Virginia Harned, Marguerite Clarke, Dustin Farnum, Charlotte Walker, Amelia Bingham and Nance O'Neil. Their productions will be under the direction of Thomas C. Cooke. The supporting company is headed by Edward Lynch as leading man and Frances Brandt as leading woman, with Eleanor Carey as character woman.

"MRS. WIGGS OF THE CABBAGE PATCH," American. Miss Grace Leith, in the title role, is praised as scoring a triumph in the dramatization of Alice Hegan Rice's famous heart-interest novels of shrewd comedy, "Mrs. Wiggs" and "Lovey Mary." Miss Helen Alexander, a specialist in forlorn spinster types, takes the part of Miss Hazy, the pessimist. Others of the excellent cast are Marie Hodgekins, Anna Pomeroy, Gladys Greek, Estella Greek, Rose Dean, Arthur T. Howard, J. G. McFarlane, John D. Caylor, Henry Cahill, William Wing and others. The comedy comes to St. Louis after a successful tour on which it was praised as an admirable American genre play.

"WIZARD OF OZ," Park. The ever-popular fairy-land comedy, brought up-to-date by means of a revue of half a score of musical and farcical hits of today. Miss Mabel Wilbur, prima donna, will appear as Sir Dashemoff Daily poet laureate of the land of Oz, a jaunty boy's part. Louise Allen will be Dorothy Gale, and Roger Gray and Dan Marble have the roles of Scarecrow and Tinman. Matt Manley of "Gingerbread Man" success, will be the Wizard. Paul Tietjens, a former St. Louisan, is the composer of the musical score. Gay and pretty lyrics and choruses, wholesome humor, excellent scenic effects and adequate costuming are promised. The engagement begins tomorrow night.

DOLLY DIMPLES GIRLS, Gayety. New extravaganza, with a number of specialties interspersed. Kate Carlton as prima donna, Jenny Blair as soubrette, and May Burns as ingenue, with chorus of 20. Two acts of uproarious fun are promised. Week's engagement begins with matinee this afternoon.

"WILD WEST," Grand Opera House, beginning with matinee tomorrow. California Frank's scenes on the prairies, with nine actors, six horses, a longhorn steer and a comedy mule in the cast, besides a vaudeville bill.

"GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST," Shenandoah. After a successful week at the Park, Belasco's play moves to the South Side, opening tomorrow night. A story of California in '49, performed by a capable company, with Marion Ruckert as the Girl and John Maurice Sullivan as Sheriff Rance.

"THE MISCHIEF MAKERS," Standard. Burlesque with scenes from San Francisco Exposition and Honolulu village, with the Aloha Twins, Hawaiian girls, in the native "Hula Hula" dance. Members of the company are Rich McAllister, Bert Saunders, Dilly McGarry, Ethel Lee, Elenor Revere and others. Matinee today.

COLUMBIA BURLESQUERS, Imperial. Two musical farces, "A Day" and "A Night," introducing Broadway song hits and many mirthful scenes. In the cast are Al K. Hall, Baker & O'Neill, Eddie Van, Morris and Campbell, Hazel Crosby, Savo and others. Beginning with today's matinee, two performances daily all week.

"TILLIE'S PUNCTURED ROMANCE," Princess. Photoplay, featuring Marie Dressler, Charles Chaplin and Mabel Normand.

PHOTOPLAYS, Strand. "The Chocolate Soldier," in a five-reel motion picture will be screened tomorrow and Tuesday. The original all-star cast, including Alice Yorke as Nadina, was used in the camera production. There are over 290 scenes, with several hundred persons in the cast.

PHOTOPLAYS, West End Lyric. Featuring Miss Elsie Janis in her first movie appearance, in "The Caprices of Kitty," a romantic comedy.

TEA PARTY PLAYERS, Winter Garden. The Farewell Supper episode of Schnitzler's "Anatole" will be the company's essay for this, its second week.

PASSING SHOW OF 1914 AT THE SHUBERT NEXT WEEK

George Monroe and Hundred Others in Revival That Opens Next Sunday.

The Passing Show of 1914, the Winter Garden's third annual revue, begins its annual engagement at the Shubert Theater next Sunday night, March 14. In all there will be 10 performances—seven nights and three matinees, the latter to be given on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. For novelty and variety of entertainment, the new Passing Show, a huge whirling conglomeration of musical comedy, travesty and extravaganza, is said to eclipse its predecessors. There are two acts and 13 scenes in the new show, the more important spectacular features being a panoramic view of the Panama Exposition, San Francisco; the flight of a transatlantic airship and the Sloping Path, the latter being a novel device secured from the Alhambra Music Hall, London.

One of the features of the very varied entertainment offered are travesties of the important dramatic successes of the year. It is not necessary, however, that the auditor should have seen the originals to enjoy the fun. Some of the plays' travestied are "Peg O' My Heart," "Help Wanted," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "The Yellow Ticket," and "Kitty McKay." There are over 100 persons in the company, the more important fun-makers being George W. Monroe, Harry Fisher, Artie Mehlinger, Frances Demarest, Marilynn Miller, June Elvidge, Elsie Pilcer, Margaret Warde, Stafford Pemberton, Freeman and Dunham, and Boyle and Brazil.

"BIRTH OF A NATION," SCORES BIG HIT AS MOVIE PRODUCTION

Play Showing Death of Lincoln Is Said to Be Greatest Thing Attempted Yet on Films.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Narrative photography took a long stride forward Wednesday night when "The Birth of a Nation," which is a version of Thomas Dixon's novel, "The Clansman," was publicly exhibited for the first time at the Liberty Theater.

The audience closely resembled a first night gathering at an important dramatic event.

Two series of episodes required nearly three hours to unfold. The first represented the historical incidents of Sherman's march to the sea, and the burning of Atlanta. The second pictured the assassination of President Lincoln at Ford's Theater. This vivid representation had a curious effect upon the audience. As the pictures were unreeled those present sat in subdued silence but, when the tension ended, they broke forth in prolonged applause.

Other scenes included the fall of Petersburg, Lee's surrender at Appomatox, the uprisings of the Ku Klux Klan, and incidents in the South during the reconstruction period after the Civil War. "Cabiria," the most remarkable picture play shown in this country up to this time, is insignificant compared with this new venture in moviedom.

The entire production is on a scale that will give moving picture enthusiasts a new chance to marvel.

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing That Causes It and the Cough Will Stop Itself

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—heal the inflamed membranes. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you a full pint of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

DRAMATIC NOTES

A newly invented motion-picture camera reproduces scenes in three colors.

Klaw and Erlanger are said to be the dominating figures in a big new motion-picture combine.

Calve now is on the vaudeville stage in New York and said to be receiving a salary of $3000 a week.

London's music hall managers are uniting in a movement to effect a general cut of 25 per cent in vaudeville salaries.

A new war play produced in London bears the questioning title "Are We Down-Hearted?" and answers it in the negative.

"All Ye That Pass," a melodrama of the "Yellow Peril," its story based on Anglo-Chinese racial hatred, has been produced in London.

The late Cecil Raleigh, a London theatrical manager, left a will bequeathing his entire estate to Miss Ada Gow, his private secretary.

"Baron de Gink," an American version of last season's big Vienna success, "Der Juxbaron," soon will receive a New York production.

The big hits on the London stage this season have been made by war plays, dramatized novels, adaptations from foreign dramas and revivals of old successes.

Cyril Maude's autumn engagement in New York City will be at the Empire Theater, marking the first appearance there of a star not under Charles Frohman's management.

The novelty of the "gold-plated" fairies in Granville Barker's production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" seems to be the prime factor of that offering's current New York prosperity.

The Music League of America, organized by wealthy New York women, to discover and aid young musical prodigies, has developed bickerings that led to the resignation of all its officers, and a reorganization with new blood to the front now is under way.

It is said that 250 motion-picture houses in New York City may be closed for having admitted children under 16 unaccompanied by proper guardians.

Owing to an epidemic of charges of plagiarism brought against established playwrights, the Society of American Dramatists now refuses to read manuscripts submitted by obscure writers.

Otto H. Kahn, chief financial backer of the Century Opera Company of New York, says the disbandment of that company is merely a case of "suspended animation," not the death, of opera in English.

Dr. Ryszard Ordynski of Warsaw and Berlin has been engaged by the Harvard Dramatic Club to stage its spring production of four one-act plays. He is organizing a movement for the encouragement of worthy drama in this country.

At the Garrick Theater in London the novel experiment is being tried of giving two performance of the same play nightly at popular prices. "A Daughter of England," a new play with an English governess in a German family as its central figure, is the first offering and is said to be prospering.

The London Telegraph's review of the year's drama classes "Outcast' as the most interesting new play of the season. Elsie Ferguson's performance in this drama, still running in New York, was reviewed by the Post-Dispatch's dramatic critic last November. It is one of the biggest metropolitan successes of the year.

A chain of huge theaters, seating an average of 4200 persons is to be established throughout this country by A. Paul Keith, now in full control of the fortune left by his father, the late B. F. Keith, it is announced from New York. The entertainment to be offered will comprise 25-cent vaudeville and moving pictures.

Arthur Collins, manager of the Drury Lane Theater in London, recently gave a special performance for the entertainment of wounded soldiers now invalided from the front and of Red Cross nurses. British, French and Belgian soldiers were among his guests, and all joined in singing "Tipperary," "Here We Are Again" and the Allied Anthems.

An Easy Way to Increase Weight

Good Advice for Thin Folks

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to a remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This master-stroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol aims through its regenerative, reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Judge & Dolph Drug Co.'s three stores, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Weipert Drug Co. and other leading druggists of St. Louis and vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles it should not be [illegible] not [illegible]

Tea Players Seen Next in "Anatol"

Second Week of Effort to Raise Fund for Little Theater Opens Tomorrow With Farewell Supper Episode From Schnitzler's Work.

THE attempt to establish in St. Louis a "Little Theater," without a theater building, will enter on its second week tomorrow afternoon, when the "Farewell Supper" episode from Schnitzler's "Anatol" will be presented by the Tea-Party Players at Cicardi's Winter Garden, Delmar and Euclid avenues.

The tea-matinee period is between 4 and 6 p. m., the performance commencing at 5. Thursday, because of the Symphony Tea, the performance will begin at 3:30. The last performance of "Such a Charming Young Man" will be given at 5 p. m. today.

Last week's performance of "Such a Charming Young Man," Miss Zoe Akins' one-act comedy, gave an auspicious start to the new enterprise, of which Miss Akins is director.

Miss Akins' purpose in starting the series of tea matinees was to enable the tired business man, and the equally tired society woman to enjoy a matinee performance without giving a whole afternoon to it, also without having to undergo the mental strain incident to a problem play. To sit at a tea-table a half hour and watch a stimulating, but not perplexing, one-act play, is a new experience for St. Louisans, and it became a popular one in the first few days of the experiment.

A little stage, in one corner of the Winter Garden, focuses the attention of the tea-party audience during the 30 to 40 minutes of the play. The players, who are well selected, and for the most part experienced actors, have entered thoroughly into the spirit of the new undertaking. Henry Hull and Juliet Fremont, who is Mrs. Hull, are the leading members of the company.

The cast for this week's playlet is: Anatol, Henry Hull; Max, Louis Jean Bartell; Mimi, Juliet Fremont; waiter, Cyril Darnus. The scene, as in last week's play, is a restaurant—this time in Vienna. The placing of the scene in a restaurant gives a peculiarly enjoyable touch to the relation of players and audience.

Beginning tomorrow, two piano numbers will be given after the performance. Miss Marguerite Powell is pianiste for this week.

Maj. W. P. Drury, part author of "The Flag Lieutenant," now being successfully revived in London, is in charge of the aerial guns at Southsea and devoting his thought exclusively to his military duties. The play is doing a record-breaking business at the Haymarket, over 1000 persons having been turned away from a recent performance.

PICTURE OF MORRO CASTLE IN ART MUSEUM EXHIBIT

Idyllic Landscapes and Paintings of Cuban Scenes Are Now in Display of Color Composers.

The Art Museum today will open a joint exhibition of paintings by Hermann Dudley Murphy and Ettore Caser, notable color composers.

Murphy, in the present collection, has 16 canvases, quite varied in subject. One shows "Morro Castle, San Juan." "In Porto Rico," "A Patio in San Juan," "Morro Castle, Santiago" and "Hot Springs, Azores," are other pictures of charming qualities.

Caser exhibits 11 pictures, chiefly outdoor landscapes and figure compositions, with the touch of romance and idyllic playfulness. Some of them strongly suggest the French romantic school, though they are painted with a quite modern technical feeling.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL NAME DAY

The beds of all child patients named Henry, Ida and Emma, in the St. Louis Children's Hospital, 400 North King's highway, will be decorated with ribbons Tuesday, according to the popular institution of "name days" at the hospital.

From 3 until 5 p. m. tea will be served by Mrs. Henry Haarstick, assisted by Mrs. Oscar Herf and Mrs. Clinton Whittemore, and all patrons and persons interested in the work of the hospital are invited to attend. Those unable to be present may send contributions by mail.

ROBYN OPERA ...TO... AID GENIUS

St. Louisan's Work Will Inaugurate Novel New York Movement.

AN especial St. Louis interest attaches to the plans of the United Theatrical Association of New York, founded for the encouragement of American playwrights, composers, players and singers, because of the fact that a hitherto unpublished opera by Alfred G. Robyn, formerly of St. Louis, will be the first work produced by this new native-art-fostering organization.

Composer Robyn doesn't need this special encouragement, since already he has a number of successful musical comedies to his credit, but he is an enthusiastic member of the United Theatrical Association, and the production of his opera is intended to give budding stage geniuses a chance to prove worthy of professional engagements. The entire cast of the Robyn work will be composed of amateurs who are members of the association, and it confidently is believed that much talent will be revealed. The title of the Robyn opera is not announced. The work is said to belong in the class of light opera, something higher in quality than musical comedy.

It is stated that the management of the new movement in behalf of American stage art has a quite definite and unselfish end in view and that it hopes to develop many worthy artists who otherwise might not receive training. One feature of the enterprise is the contemplated establishment of a school to train free, for the dramatic and operatic stage, young players and singers who join the association. A dramatic stock company, an amateur orchestra and a mixed choral union also are to be formed.

Had Tuberculosis, Now Insured

When you know a man has been afflicted with Consumption, and later obtained insurance, it means that he has recovered his health. Read:

442 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Gentlemen:—I was troubled with night sweats, a severe cough and was very weak, having, in fact, absolutely no ambition whatever. I consulted a physician, who told me my lungs were affected. Not satisfied, I went to another doctor, who said that I was in the first stages of Consumption. At this point I started to take Eckman's Alterative. The night sweats stopped almost immediately, my cough became easier and gradually I was relieved. My weight is now 148 pounds, and my physician has pronounced me perfectly sound—[illegible] the fact that I have just been accepted by two different insurance companies for insurance, [illegible] sure of my complete recovery." (Abbreviated.)
(Affidavit) W. E. GEE.

Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and upbuilding the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Small size, $1; regular size, $2. Sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of recoveries.

HOSPITAL PATIENT LOSES EYE, ASKS CITY FOR $10,000

Charges Ammonia Was Thrown in His Face by Observation Ward Attendant.

2 ATTENDANTS DISMISSED

B. E. Strode Declares He Is Unable to Follow Former Occupation of Reading Blue Prints.

That a city hospital patient lost one eye and suffered an injury to the other a year ago, when, it is alleged, ammonia was thrown in his face by an attendant in the observation ward, was disclosed yesterday by Chairman Andrew Scully of the Claims Committee of the House of Delegates, before which a $10,000 relief bill for the former patient is pending.

The claim was presented by B. E. Strode of 6753 Vermont avenue, a steamfitter, who was admitted to the hospital Feb. 24, 1914, suffering from paresis and alcoholic psychosis. He was tearing up the furniture and destroying the plumbing in the observation ward when William Ahrens and another attendant entered and tried to subdue him.

While attempting to overpower Strode, who is a large, strong man, Ahrens, it is charged, threw ammonia in his face. The ammonia penetrated both eyes, leaving Strode blind in one eye and scarcely able to see out of the other. He was sent from the city hospital to the city sanitarium, where he was discharged in August as cured mentally. Ahrens and the other attendant were dismissed by the Superintendent.

In his claim Strode represented he was unable to follow his former occupation of reading blue prints, and that he could not make a living. Chairman Scully said he would present a resolution at the next meeting of the House of Delegates authorizing a full investigation of the affair.

Strode's claim was rejected by City Counselor Baird as excessive. He said that Strode was physically strong and would be able to make a living at some other occupation. Strode is 51 years old and has a family.

The House of Delegates Friday night passed relief bills to the extent of $9000.

LAST CONCERT OF SEASON BY PAGEANT SINGERS ON TUESDAY

Symphony Orchestra to Assist in Production of "Paradise and the Peri" at the Odeon.

The Pageant Choral Society, which has well fulfilled its purpose of keeping alive the artistic spirit of the Pageant and Masque of St. Louis, held in Forest Park last May, will give its third and last concert of the season at the Odeon Tuesday night.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will assist in the production of Schumann's "Paradise and the Peri," the words of which were written by Thomas Moore, immortal Irish songster. Four of the ablest St. Louis vocalists will assist in the solo parts—Mrs. A. I. Epstein, soprano; Mrs. Julia Ryan, contralto; William Clare Hall, tenor, and Marion Green, basso.

Robert Schumann, whose "Traeumerei" and "Nachtlied" are among the most beloved of well-known instrumental melodies, admired the beauty of Tom Moore's "Lalla Rookh," and used the German translation of the second part of that poem as the basis for the secular cantata of "Paradise and the Peri." In the English version of the work, which will be used here, Moore's actual words are used, so far as made possible by the music.

Tom Moore, whose "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms" is one of the choicest of Irish sentimental songs, make "Lalla Rookh" his most ambitious work, and "Paradise and the Peri" is the best part of it. A peri, according to Oriental mythology, is a spirit excluded from Paradise.

LESS COFFEE FOR GERMANS

Physicians Urge Women to Make Soup Instead.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—Berlin is the scene at this time of numerous meetings, largely attended by women of every class, at which ways and means of more economical living are discussed by prominent physicians. The women are being urged to cut down the consumption of meat by at least 15 per cent, and to resort more to the use of milk. One physician told his audience that they were mere slaves to appetite if they were not able to elect easily to eat less of the scarcer foods.

Soup in place of coffee for the early morning breakfast is being urged by some physicians, especially for adults, and then the omission of the German "second breakfast," to the consequent saving of thousands of pounds of foodstuffs.

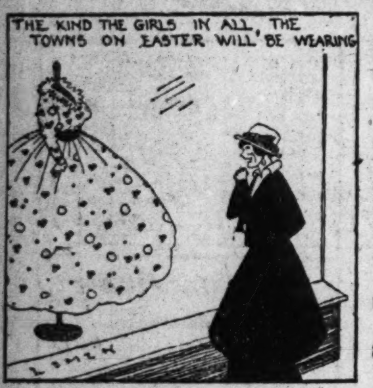
But she is running up and down in tense excitement gripping
You'll see her here and see her there in eager quest untiring
Through windows peeping everywhere, the latest styles admiring.
O, how she'd like to have that hat, the little one with roses,
And then she spies one broad and flat, and instantly supposes
That it would suit her better still, as she is not so slender;
If she but had a century bill she'd be an awful spender.



THE KIND THE GIRLS IN ALL THE TOWNS ON EASTER WILL BE WEARING LSMTH

She looks at all the latest gowns with skirts so wide and flaring
The kind the girls in all the towns on Easter will be wearing.
The waists, she finds, are very high, the prices are still higher,
But one must be in style or die, so why not take a flyer?
So Arabella flits around, each toggery ship inspecting,
Wherever newest modes are found, and never one neglecting.
She raves about the pretty plaids the dealers all are showing,
She reads about them in the ads and finds them well worth knowing,
And then the voiles, so sheer and white, she says they are too charming,
Though how they magnify one's height is really quite alarming.
The skirt starts underneath the arms and just keeps on a-going
Until it fills one with alarms and makes her think she's growing
And when one is already tall these styles are her undoing,
For though she be both trim and small, she looks like Ella Ewing.
And when Miss Brown had had her fling, and found it time for stopping
She said: "I haven't bought a thing. I've only just been shopping."

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR.

(Brought Down to Date.)

For one hour each day certain streets in the congested district of St. Louis are to be kept free of all traffic so that children may play in them.

BETWEEN the noon and the twilight
Where never there grows a flower
There's a time for the tenement kiddies
That is known as the children's hour.

I hear on the street's hard paving
The patter of little feet,
And never a wagon of jitney
May clatter along that street.

For an hour it belongs to the children
And every wheel shall stop,
While Mamie is skipping "pepper"
And Willie is spinning his top.

A sudden rush from gangways,
A sudden raid from the courts;
Away with you, drivers and chauffeurs
While the children are at their sports.

ANY OLD CAR WILL DO.

The 1910 Horace, the 1906 Gourd,
Have turned into jitneys, so all jump aboard;
1908 Packswell, the 1904 Spoon,
Are both in the service; they'll be along soon,
The 1903 Pup and the 1905 Mush
Will run in fair weather, in snow or in slush.
The 1909 Flooick, the 1912 Nuts,
'Till take us all over the cobbles and ruts.

PROOF OF COURAGE.

Applicant: I think I can qualify, sir.

Officer: What have you ever done to show your bravery?

Applicant: I was an umpire in the Trolley League for three consecutive seasons.

Officer: Here are three bravery medals and an Admiral's commission. Go to it.

Getting Back at the Country

By CLARK McADAMS

THE big cities of Missouri had to do something in retaliation for all the legislation aimed at them by the legislators out in the State, so Representative Chaney of St. Louis has lodged a measure in reprisal. Some of the sections of Mr. Chaney's bill, which is House bill 1065, follow:

Section 604A. Only one price for a given commodity shall be lawful. A farmer desiring to change a price shall file a schedule thereof with the commission hereby created, which shall go into effect 30 days thereafter, unless suspended by the commission at the instance of any consumer.

Section 604B. No prices shall be increased, however, except upon due proof, the burden whereof shall be upon the farmer, that existing prices are confiscatory of his goods and gear. In this direction the commission may refuse to permit any such increase until a valuation by its engineers and accountants shall have been taken. In such valuation the farmer shall have no credit for past profits invested in new fields or improved structures, but shall be allowed only original cost plus borrowed money invested.

Section 604C. "Commodity" as used herein shall include all grain, vegetables, live stock, dairy articles, excepting sand and gravel.

CONDUCT OF OPERATORS.

Section 604D. Every hired man shall work eight hours only per day, not including the Sabbath and not recommence work unless he has completed a period of not less than 16 hours of absolute quiet and rest. He shall not work on the Lord's day or on legal holidays.

Section 604E. Every farmer shall hire one more hired man than his work requires. The only permissible exceptions to the foregoing sections shall be periods of stress resulting from earthquakes, Hanley's Comet or European invasion.

Section 604F. All wagons, all poles and all doubletrees shall be provided with couplers, coupling by contact or impact, so that the hired men need not go between the wheels of the wagon and heels of the horses.

Section 604G. All wagons shall be supplied with suitable brakes, grab irons, stirrups and platforms of standard dimensions, to be fixed by the commission.

Section 604H. All bulls when moving on the highway or in unfenced areas, shall be equipped with a bell of not less than 50 pounds in weight, steam whistle, and an electric headlight of at least 1110 candle power.

Section 604I. Sheds shall be built over all fields where hired men have to work in summer.

Section 604J. All wagons, engines and machines shall be fenced, all belting shall be encased in metal housings, all grind stones, churns, hay cutters, bull's horns and other moving parts shall be strongly encased in sheaths for the protection of the hired man.

Section 604K. All barns, sheds, and other out building shall be well lighted and policed.

Section 604L. The commission's inspectors shall weekly inspect all gasoline autos, and if a cylinder is missing, the farmer must find it before he runs on the road again.

Section 604M. The right to mortgage real estate is a franchise reserved to the State. No farmer shall make any mortgage or incur any indebtedness extending for a period of more than one month, without the written approval of the commission, obtained upon petition and hearing and upon paying the State Treasurer 10 cents for each $100 of such indebtedness. Indebtedness incurred without such consent shall be void.

Section 604N. To enforce this act, a commission of five persons shall be selected by the Governor with a view of placating as many shades of political opinion as possible. No commissioner shall, however, be deemed disqualified by the lack of previous political or other experience.

Section 2. Owing to the great detriment of the public peace, health and safety growing out of oppressive and unreasonable prices charged for farm products in all sections of the country, this act is for the preservation of the public peace, health and safety, and as such comes within the exception of the laws not subject to the referendum provisions of the State Constitution, article 4, section 57, and is therefore not subject to a reference to the people under said referendum provisions of the Constitution.

MR. CHANEY has little hope that the economic features of the bill will be well enough understood to commend the measure to a majority, but he is quite sure that the bull section will lift enough farmers out of the opposition to put the measure across. The farmers themselves are none too sure of bulls. They run from them as a rule, just as city people do, and are equally spry at getting into trees. The safety first movement has not gotten into the country, but it makes its approach in a promising way in the provision for a steam whistle by day and a headlight by night. Probably no farmer who has ever been chased by a bull will oppose this, and inasmuch as most of the country members have even been tossed by bulls, they ought to be strong for it.

The fear of bulls is probably the one thing which all the people of Missouri have in common. Divided in almost every other way possible, they meet as one people in the same tree or on the other side of the nearest fence. Notwithstanding the affection lavished upon bulls by farmers, bulls are still those same untamed and headstrong creatures they were at the outset, and there is no prospect that they will become docile. In introducing his bill Mr. Chaney told a few bull stories, all harrowing, among them this classic by the late Bob Burdette:

Once upon a time there were two men, one from the country and one from town, pleasantly strolling across a field in which there happened to be a bull. The bull set out after them, its head down and its tail cracking high in air. It was not long until the pursued, who were meanwhile beating it as best they could, felt the hot breath of the bull blowing under their flying coat tails. There lay ahead of them a tree and a hole in the ground. The city man went into the tree, and the country man went into the hole in the ground. The bull had been wanting to get the country man for some time, and made for the hole in the ground. He went over it headlong just as the country man disappeared, and when the country man popped out again the bull came back with another terrific rush. Thus the pursuit raged, in and out and back and forth, until the man in the tree shouted:

"Why don't you stay in the hole, you dern fool?"

The country man popped in and out.

"Dern fool yerself! There's a bear in this hole!" he cried.

It is the opinion of political leaders at Jefferson City that the bill will pass.

Mothers! Here's Something New for Croup and Cold Troubles

An External Treatment That Does Away With Internal Medicines and Chest Protectors. You Can Let the Children Run Outdoors in All Weathers and Get Their Needed Fresh Air and Exercise.

Growing children need plenty of fresh air and outdoor exercise, and this exposure is bound to cause some colds. Internal medicines injure delicate little stomachs and flannel jackets and chest protectors are unhealthy.

The best protection is plenty of fresh air in the bedroom and a prompt application of the new southern treatment—Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Salve at the first sign of trouble. Vick's is really a Vapor-Lamp in Salve form. You simply rub it well over the throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the clothing loose around the neck, as the body heat releases vapors of Menthol, Camphor, Pine Tar, Eucalyptus and Thyme that are inhaled all night long, loosening the phlegm and opening air passages. In addition, Vick's is absorbed through the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness.

The druggists, given below, could make more profit on internal medicines, but they realize the value of an external treatment, especially in the case of small children, and, in the interest of their customers, are offering Vick's in any of the three sizes—25c, 50c or $1.00 on 30 days' trial. With each sale they give a refund blank, good for your money back if you are not delighted.

400 WILL TESTIFY IN BALLOT FRAUD TRIAL IN INDIANA

Hearing of Mayor Roberts and 27 Others to Begin at Terre Haute Tomorrow.

88 HAVE PLEADED GUILTY

One Hundred and Twenty-Six Originally Indicted, Charged With Vote Conspiracy.

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 6.—Deputy United States marshals were busy today rounding up the more than 400 witnesses to be used by the Government in the trial of Mayor Donn M. Roberts of Terre Haute and 27 others charged with conspiring to corrupt the last November election in Terre Haute, which will be begun before Judge A. B. Anderson in the United States District Court here next Monday. According to United States District Attorney Frank C. Dailey, who will be in charge of the prosecution, the trial will last about 10 weeks.

Former Congressman A. O. Stanley of Henderson, Ky., Roberts' chief counsel, has been here several days, putting the finishing touches to the defendant's case. He will be assisted by a number of Indiana lawyers.

The indictment on which Roberts and the others will be tried was returned Dec. 24, 1914, and named 126 Terre Haute and Vigo County officials and others. Of the 126 indicted, 116 were taken in custody and 88 have pleaded guilty to the charge. Judge Anderson reserved sentence on the 88, a number of whom will be used as witnesses for the Government, until after the completion of the trial.

Twenty-seven of the defendants fought the indictment with a demurrer, in which it was contended that the Federal Court had no jurisdiction in the case, but it was overruled by Judge Anderson and they pleaded not guilty. One other pleaded not guilty.

The indictment is in four counts. The first count, in brief, charged a conspiracy to prevent qualified voters from voting, to prevent qualified persons serving on election boards and to deprive persons of their liberty without due process of law. Conspiracy to defraud the Government through corrupting an election at which a United States Senator and a member of the National House of Representatives were to be chosen is charged in the second count. The third and fourth counts charge violation of the postal laws, by using the mails to further the alleged conspiracy.

Since the returning of the indictment in December, which named only Democrats and Progressives, another indictment namin five Republicans has been handed down as a result of the investigation of the last election in Vigo County. Each of the five pleaded not guilty, but no date has been set for their trials.

LODGE TREASURER ARRESTED

Samuel Farbstein Is Charged With Embezzlement.

Samuel Farbstein of 3853 De Tonty street was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with embezzling $198.99 from the Rodolf Sholom Lodge No. 165, of which he was treasurer. He was released on an $800 bond.

Farbstein was formely a jeweler, and was recently declared a bankrupt. The complainants were Michael Novack of 1720 Carr street and Reuben Fraser of 5234 Theodosia avenue, trustees of the organization. They told Assistant Circuit Attorney Thomas that Farbstein admitted the shortage in his accounts and gave them two checks on the Night and Day Bank, both of which were returned for lack of sufficient funds to pay them.

110 NEW MEMBERS IN AD CLUB

As a result of the efforts of Edward Mead, chairman, and Glenn W. Hutchinson, vice-chairman, of the Membership Committee of the St. Louis Advertising Club, the membership has been increased from 180 to 290 in a little more than a month. Practically every advertiser in St. Louis is now represented either actually or through corporate memberships.

To stimulate the interest, local advertisers offered many prizes to those securing the new members. One prize is a trip to St. Paul and return by a steamer line. Another is a vacation in the Ozarks, transportation and everything paid by a large railway system. Dozens of other prizes, all articles "made in St. Louis" and advertised from St. Louis, are also offered.

JEFFERSON BARRACKS MUSICALE

A military musicale and tea will be given Wednesday afternoon, March 17, at Jefferson Barracks, by the women of the post, the proceeds to be donated to the St. Louis Red Cross Women's Relief Committee. The soloist will be Vernon d'Arnalle, a baritone, who recently came to the United States after several years in opera and concert in Europe.

The musicale will be in the post hall at 3 o'clock and will be followed by a dress parade with the Barracks band at 4 o'clock, after which tea will be served in the Officers' Club.

D'Arnalle will come out from New York for the recital and will give a program of classic French songs and ballads in English. Col. John H. Beacom is commandant of Jefferson Barracks.

PRESIDENT NAMES RUBLEE

WASHINGTON, March 6.—President Wilson today gave a recess appointment to George Rublee of Cornish, N. H., as a member of the new Federal Trade Commission.

Rublee's nomination was not confirmed by the Senate at the last session. The President's action today completes the membership of the trade commission, which will organize here next week.

Dick Brewer, a lumber camp worker, was taken into custody this morning at Grubb's, to be questioned. He was discharged a week ago by Driver.

It is stated in these pamphlets that 40,000 soldiers are in hospitals on account of excesses of various kinds, and are occupying beds which should be reserved for the wounded.

GRAY HAIR TURNS ITS NATURAL DARK COLOR AFTER APPLYING SAGE TEA

When Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Beautifully that Nobody Can Tell; Takes Off Dandruff.

Almost every one knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also cures dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own but it's usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's" which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is the best remedy for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and to stop falling hair.

Folks like "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly, says a well-known downtown druggist. You dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This requires but a few moments; by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two is restored to its natural color and looks even more beautiful and glossy than ever.—ADV.

PRIESTS CLAD IN RAGS REACH U. S. FROM MEXICO

Seven of 22 Told to Leave When $500,000 Was Not Raised, Arrive in New York.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Seven priests, driven, they said, from Vera Cruz by Gen. Carranza, reached New York today aboard the steamer Montevideo. The priests were clad in rags. They said they were the last of a group of 22 sent to Vera Cruz by Carranza and ordered to leave Mexico. This group were German, French, Italian and Spanish priests and one Turk.

The 22 priests, they said, and others, numbering 150 altogether, were summoned by Gen. Obregon to the national palace in Mexico City and ordered to raise $500,000 as a tax to be paid to the Mexican Government. When the priests pleaded that they could not raise this money they were told that they would have to do so or leave the country.

For a time Vicarden Paredes of the Archdiocese of Mexico City, and his secretary, Basilio Lopara, were the only ones permitted to leave the palace, and they were released only for the purpose of urging the parishioners to raise the required tax.

The money was not raised and the priests said they were locked in the palace all night. Food was sent to them from the outside and they slept on the stone floor of the building. The next morning diplomatic representatives of their several Governments demanded their release. The demand was acceded to on condition that the priests leave the country.

A special train was pulled into the Buena Vista station, the priests said, and on this they departed. Having no military escort many of the priests left the train at way stations. By the time it reached Vera Cruz only 11 of the party of 22 were left. Four of these failed to appear on shipboard, although passage had been engaged for them, and the other seven were assigned places in the steerage.

Three of the seven priests said they would remain here. The others expect to leave on the Montevideo, Monday, for Barcelona, Spain.

KANSAS HAS LAW FOR PAROLE OF CRIMINAL INSANE PRISONERS

Girl's Fight to Free Uncle Partly Won When Bill Passes Both Legislative Houses.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 6.—A bill which passed both houses of the Legislature yesterday means a partial victory and the end of a long fight by Miss Elsie Truskett, a Kansas City young woman, to gain freedom for her uncle, A. A. Truskett. The bill permits the Board of Corrections and the Governor to grant paroles to inmates of the criminal insane ward of the penitentiary.

Truskett has been confined in the insane ward since he killed J. D. S. Neeley, an oil man of Lima, O., in a hotel at Caney, Kan., several years ago. Formerly the Kansas law provided for the release of an inmate of the penitentiary insane ward only upon order of the Judge who tried the case.

Miss Truskett expressed confidence that a parole for her uncle could be obtained.

CHAMPION BUCKING BRONCHO SOLD FOR FRENCH WAR MOUNT

Man Who Road Animal Once Says He May Put Both Sides to Flight and End War.

PENDLETON, Ore., March 6.—Cyrus Noble, one of the greatest little bucking bronchoes that ever came out of Oregon, is going to Europe to add to the horrors of war as the mount of a French cavalryman. Cyrus was sold yesterday to a French officer, who, as agent for his Government, is buying horses for use against the Germans. The officer failed to discover the broncho's bucking abilities.

Oregon awaits with interest the advent of Cyrus Noble into the theater of war.

"I pity the fellow that first tries to ride him," said A. Buckeroo, who rode Cyrus for 10 minutes last year. "That hoss is liable right there to put both sides to flight and end the war."

STATE ANTI-NEPOTISM BILL AMENDED, PUT ON A SHELF

Author Regards Additions as Ridiculous and Asks That Measure Be Put on Informal Calender.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 6.—The lower house of the Legislature today virtually killed the anti-nepotism bill by adding to it amendments which the author of the bill regarded ridiculous.

He asked that the bill be placed on the informal calendar, whence it probably will not be called up for passage.

Now Comes Our Tailoring Sale

This "Seven-Day Sale," Beginning Monday, Offers an Extraordinary Opportunity

Men's and Young Men's Spring Suits. Men's and Young Men's Spring Overcoats. Men's and Young Men's Cravenettes

Made to Your Exact Measure

$17.50 Is the Price—Made From $35.00 to $40.00 Materials

WE take all the risk—you are under no obligation if these "tailor-made" Suits, Overcoats and Cravenettes do not meet in full measure every claim we make for them. The fabrics are all wool. The linings are identical with the serges and alpacas high-class custom tailors use. The inner linings are of best shrunk linen, and every Suit, Overcoat and Cravenette is made new from the individual measure taken—and not rebuilt from a general model.

Choice of Hundreds of Patterns

An expert tailor from the noted maker whom we have engaged to make this clothing takes your measure. Specialists take it one by one from then on to the finishers, just as in the shop of an exclusive tailor. The only reason such a price can be made for such clothing is the fact that we contract to give this maker so great a number of these individual orders that he can maintain his plant at its full capacity during this period, otherwise dull.

Your Size or Build Makes No Difference

We welcome the men who are hard to fit—men who are extra stout, extra slim, extra tall or extra short, and even men who have peculiarities of figure. If you are one of these men, we guarantee you as perfect a fit and as much satisfaction of wear as though you were normally built. Seize this opportunity—wear Suits, Overcoats and Cravenettes that are made to your exact measure—Suits, Overcoats and Cravenettes that are actual $35 and $40 kinds, but for which you need pay only......... $17.50

POLICE REPORTED AN ARREST FROM WRONG ADDRESS

Prisoner Was Taken at 2446 North Grand Instead of at Mrs. M. Kelley's at No. 2546.

A serious police blunder was brought to light yesterday when it was discovered that Mrs. Edna Wilkinson, arrested in this city, Feb. 3, for the Colorado Springs authorities, who wanted her on a charge of embezzlement, was not found at 2546 North Grand avenue, as was reported by the arresting detectives, Eugene Gartland and Moses Drennan.

Mrs. M. Kelley of 2546 North Grand avenue was indignant when she saw in the newspapers her address as given by the detectives, published in connection with the arrest. She was further humiliated by reason of the fact that a Miss Edna Wilkinson, a stenographer, was boarding at her home, though Miss Wilkinson was in no way related to the Mrs. Wilkinson who was arrested.

The detectives stood by their record in the case until yesterday, when a son of Mrs. Kelley reported the error to Chief Allender. The latter ordered the detectives to go to the Kelley home and investigate. They reported back that they had made an error; that the address at which they had arrested Mrs. Wilkinson was 2446 North Grand avenue instead of 2546, as they had originally reported. They said their error was due to the fact that 2446 and 2546 North Grand avenue are in the same block.

The detectives apologized to Mrs. Kelley and Miss Wilkinson.

"HONEY BOY" EVANS, FAMOUS BLACK FACE COMEDIAN DIES

Long Known to the Minstrel Stage and as Writer of Songs Sung Around the World.

BALTIMORE, March, 6.—William George Evans, "Honey Boy", one of the best known black-face comedians on the stage, died in the Union Protestant Infirmary yesterday. He had been ill from stomach trouble for a long time. He leaves a widow.

"Honey Boy" Evans was always known by his intimates as "Georgey." He was, perhaps, one of the most popular men on the stage, especially after he and his minstrel partner, "Ren" Shields, who died a few years ago, had produced "In the Good Old Summer Time," a song which made a lasting hit. Evans had gained the name of "Honey Boy" from the title of one of his own songs, "I'll be True to My Honey Boy," which also had the distinction of being sung around the world.

He was born in Wales in 1870, but in his early boyhood he was a newspaper man in Streator, Ill., and it was often said of him that he had "put Streator on the map." Some of the most successful of his compositions were: "Down Where the Watermelon Grows," "Come Take a Ride in My Airship," "Standing on the Corner Didn't Mean No Harm," and, of course, "Honey Boy."

MOTORMAN SAVES GIRL WEARING RED SWEATER FROM ANGRY BULL

Stops Car and Lifts Her to Vestibule by Her Wrists as Animal Charges.

BOULDER, Colo., March 6.—The presence of mind and prompt action of Larry Fox, a motorman of a Denver & Interurban car out of Boulder, saved Edith Fair from death or serious injury.

Wearing a red sweater, Miss Fair started for the junction to intercept the car to Denver. While hurrying across a vacant lot she heard the bellowing of a big bull.

One glance was sufficent to warn Miss Fair that she was the object of attraction of the maddened animal. The terrified woman fled toward the railway track with the enraged beast not more than 50 yards behind her.

The interurban car at this moment shot around the curve, but a short distance away. Motorman Fox was quick to see the young woman's danger, and after turning off the current and applying the brakes jumped from the vestibule, seized her by the wrist and lifted her to the car almost at the same instant the animal brushed against the coach.

Miss Fair, who fainted when the excitement was over, was soon revived, but postponed her trip to Denver.

TRUCK GARDENING INCLUDED IN HIGH SCHOOL CURRICULUM

Real garden truck is to be one of the products of the Edwardsville High School this summer. Although her weather was anything but favorable today, the class in agriculture went to the residence place of Mrs. T. W. McCune, on Hillsboro avenue, in the rear of which they have been assigned a tract of ground, and proceeded to divide it into plots, and lay out walks, preparatory to embarking upon gardening.

The department is now a part of the curriculum, and 15 students signed up for it. Under the direction of Prof. C. Beecher Peterson, instructor in agronomy, they will raise radishes, lettuce, turnips, corn, onions, peas, cucumbers, tomatoes and egg plant. Each pupil gets a tract 22x75 feet, and the results attained are to be solely and entirely from his own efforts.

Business men are considering offering prizes for the best results in the garden.

Millinery That Is Charmingly Correct in Every Detail

Our showing of the "new" in Millinery for Spring, which begins Monday, is representative of the foremost European Ateliers, such as Reboux, Mons. Lewis, Talbot, Saget, Crozet, Hermonce and many others, together with the cream of the productions of some of New York's leading designers.

The manager of this department has recently been in Paris and London, where she personally selected the imported models in this display and where she gathered all of the latest information with reference to the new styles.

The colors which seemed destined to be most popular for Spring include Reboux blue, Chasseur green, Bresil or sand and battleship gray, while white and black, and black and white will also prove exceedingly popular.

The display of Women's Spring Suits, which we will make tomorrow, will exceed in magnitude, beauty and value-giving any that we have ever made. Every new style-feature that is correct and good will be found expressed in some of the many new models assembled here for your approval.

Without a doubt, the finger-length, short, fancy coats, boleros, Etons and Norfolk and Empire jackets are the accepted models in both the two and three-piece suits. Some of the coats show the military collars, while others are higher and smaller than last season.

The flare at the waist line is absolutely essential this season, while the skirts are full-shirred or plaited, set on a yoke or worn short.

These Fabrics Are Most Used for Suits

The fabrics most in favor are taffeta, silk faille, pongees, charmeuse, combinations of silk and cloth, gabardines, fine serges, Chuddah cloth, wool poplins, fancy checks and tailored hair-lines, linen crashes, cotton crepes, etc.

Linen Suits are priced upwards from $15.00

These Spring Coats for Women Cannot Help But Please You

The new Spring Coats for women are shown in styles that are as attractive as they are authentic, while the value-giving is characteristic of Vandervoort's Coat Section.

Every model that we show has been endorsed by Dame Fashion and women will simply revel in the diversity of styles which we are showing for the new season.

Quite prominent among these new garments is the coat of covert cloth, while those in pretty checked effects, plaids, stripes and tweed-like mixtures are indeed attractive. Rich silk faille, pongee, taffeta, etc. have also been used largely and most effectively.

The coats this season are cut in the new lengths and are built on loose, belted and straight lines and include military styles, the always popular and good looking Raglans, semi-fitting and tailored models, etc. Some are lined throughout, while others are but partially lined.

Silk Coats priced upwards from $22.50
Cloth Coats priced upwards from $17.50

MY TIRED FEET ACHED FOR "TIZ"

Let your sore, swollen, aching feet spread out in a bath of "TIZ"

"Just couldn't wait to take my hat off!"

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25-cent box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.—ADV.

SYMPHONY SOLOIST CAME NEAR BEING SHOT AS A SPY

Russian Who Will Appear Here This Week Was Arrested at Home in Munich.

Two events of more than ordinary importance to music in St. Louis will mark the Symphony Orchestra's calendar this week. A new symphony, the only composition of its kind which critics consider truly American, will be played at the concerts of Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, and will be explained and illustrated in advance by the composer, Edgar Stillman Kelley. One of the greatest of Russian compositions will be interpreted at the two concerts by a pianist who is a Russian.

The program of the Friday afternoon and Saturday evening concerts will include as its principal orchestra number the "New England" symphony, by Mr. Kelley. This will be its third public hearing since its publication last fall, the two preceding performances having been at the hands of the Minneapolis and Cincinnati Symphony orchestras, respectively, both within the month. Mr. Kelley will be present at the two St. Louis concerts, but he will come earlier and will give the talk at this week's symphony tea, Thursday afternoon, at the Winter Garden, in which he will analyze his new work and he and his wife, who is a pianiste of note, will illustrate the lecture with excerpts from the symphony.

Russian Soloist Coming.

The "New England" symphony is based upon certain phases of thought and sentiment peculiar to the Puritans who established a settlement in New England, its themes being symphonic embodiments of experiences in the mental and spiritual life of the early Massachusetts colonists. Quotations from the log of the Mayflower, which preface each of the four movements, tell the story of the symphony.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist, will be the solo artist of the two concerts this week, and will play the Rachmaninoff concerto for piano and orchestra. Gabrilowitsch is one of the few Russian artists to reach America this season. Just before his contemplated departure from his home in Munich he was arrested as a spy and would have been shot but for the timely aid of Mme. Olga Samaroff of St. Louis and her husband, Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. Mr. and Mrs. Stokowski were enabled to work through the American Consul and disprove the charges against the pianist and his American wife, who was Clara Clemens, a daughter of Mark Twain.

Program for Concert.

The complete program for the two concerts follows:

Overture—Ruy Blas..........Mendelssohn
Symphony No. 2—New England, in B-flat minor, Op. 33 (first time)........Kelley
Concerto for piano..........Rachmaninoff

Vera Barstow, a young American violinist whose performance in the East this season have gained for her fame, will be heard for the first time in St. Louis at the "Pop" concert this afternoon. She will play a ballade and polonaise by Vieuxtemps and a group of soli, all with orchestral accompaniment. Miss Barstow has recently returned from Europe, where she has been studying and concertizing for several years, and now is making an extensive tour of her own country.

Compositions by Orchestra Member.

A feature of this afternoon's concert will be the performance of two compositions by a member of the orchestra, Domenico Delledonne. Following is the program in full:

Overture to "Mirella"..........Gounod
Scene and waltz from "Gretna Green"—..........Guirand
Ballade and Polonaise for violin..Vieuxtemps
Suite Gale..........Gabriel-Marie
1. Entree
2. Intermede
3. Idylle
4. Danse
(a) Andante for clarinet (Tony P. Sarli)
(b) Nell' Andalusia..........Delledonne
Violin Soli—
(a) Sarabande et Musette ....Von Kunits
(b) Pierrot Gai..........Tirendelli
(c) Spanish Dance No. 8..........Sarasate
Overture to "Freischutz"..........Weber

IF KIDNEYS FEEL LIKE LEAD OR YOUR BACK IS ACHING, TAKE SALTS AT ONCE

We all eat too much meat, which clogs up the Kidneys, and they need a flushing, else we must suffer.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—ADV.

Spring Time—Remember Is Blood Cleaning Time

Entire System is Clogged—Great Hordes of Germs Congest the Blood to Cause Pimples, Boils, Carbuncles, Eczema and Other Skin Diseases.

S. S. S. Gives You Backbone, Nerve Strength with Pure, Invigorated Blood.

If you feel thick-headed, legs a-weary, tire easily and feel utterly used up your blood needs a bath.

It is astonishing how quickly you brace up after using S. S. S. After the long nights of winter have slowed you down, made your blood sluggish, and filled your system with the cramps, aches and acids of thick, stagnant blood you actually require the influence of S. S. S.

Eczema, rash, pimples, tetter, boils, and all impurities in the blood are quickly washed out by the remarkable action of S. S. S. It is in the nature of a bath for your blood. It is not a "dope," not a "physic," there is not a drop of harmful mineral drugs. It is a far better friend to your nerves than any "nervine" you can use because it is just as pure as the gruel you would feed to an invalid. The blood takes kindly to S. S. S., it doesn't bother your stomach but it does give you strength.

Rheumatism, catarrh, malaria, bronchitis, typhoid and all such painful or dangerous maladies cannot remain in a system washed and cleansed by the remarkable action of S. S. S.

There is scarcely a drug store or general store anywhere but what keeps S. S. S. in stock. It is prepared in one of the world's best and largest laboratories and has maintained the health of a host of people who use it every spring and fall because it gives them a feeling of renewed strength, puts the look of health in the eye and pinks the flesh with the ruddy glow of health.

The human body, like the habitation of man, is closed all winter and becomes clogged with stagnant impurities. In the spring nature attempts to overhaul the blood and thus we see pimples, boils, carbuncles and various skin afflictions breaking out to relieve the congestion within.

The remarkable manner in which S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, clears the system is a most interesting study.

It sweeps its way into the blood stream; flushes every artery, vein and capillary; awakens functional activity and causes a wonderful animation throughout.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating the myriad of cells to the healthy and judicious selection of their own essential nutriment. And if, from the presence of some disturbing poison a condition of eruptive disease is set up, S. S. S. so directs the action of the local cells that the poison is rejected and eliminated from their presence.

Thus, when the cells break down to cause the formation of carbuncles S. S. S. so stimulates cellular activity that new and healthy materials are rapidly supplied and eruptions cease. The same is true of mucous inflammations, of acid accretions and all those influences which cause rheumatism, catarrh, eczema, lupus, psoriasis, tetter, etc. The action of S. S. S. in effect is like giving the entire blood supply a good bath.

The medicinal properties of S. S. S. are relatively just as vital and essential to well balanced health as the food components of the grains, meats, fats and sugars.

And of one thing you may be certain there is not an atom of mercury, calomel, blue mass, iodide of potash or arsenic; nor does S. S. S. contain any other mineral.

It is a pure vegetable medicine and wonderfully acceptable to even a very weak stomach.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. from any druggist and note how quickly it puts your blood in fine condition. It is just what you need, a fine, bracing, purifying medicine that is sure to do you a world of good. And if you are troubled with some stubborn form of blood disease, write to the medical department of The Swift Specific Co., 136 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga., for free private advice.

GERMAN SPY USED HOUSE AT NIGHT, FRENCH IN DAY

Mystery of Why Kaiser's Men Spared Conspicuous Farm Place Is Disclosed.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The mystery of a lone farmhouse which stood for months undamaged on a conspicuous knoll in the very heart of the battle zone near Roye, with nothing but ruins all about it, has just been cleared up by a French infantry Captain.

From this building the French watched the operations of the Germans in their trenches a quarter of a mile distant. They expected every day to become the target for the German artillery which played all around and even demolished the hut of an old peasant woman only a hundred yards away. Every morning at dawn they crept up to the place from the rear and took their observations. A peasant farther back of the lines suggested that the owner of the farm had paid the Germans a round sum to spare his property and this explanation prevailed for some time.

One morning as the French approached the place they were met by the peasant women whose hut had been demolished and who had taken refuge in the cellar of the farmhouse.

"A spy came last night into the garret of the farmhouse," she declared, "and he made illuminated signals to the Germans from the window." The French officers could not believe it.

The next day and the next the old peasant declared positively that she had again seen the man come and had seen the light shining from the window. "A spy couldn't possibly slip through our line of pickets," the officer insisted.

The following morning the woman asked the officer to take particular notice of the stairs leading to the garret. In a thin coating of ashes that she had spread over the steps a man's footprints were unmistakably outlined. "We'll see about that tonight," said the Captain.

Instead of returning to the French lines after completing their day's observations the detachment concealed itself in bushes around the house and watched the garret window. At 11 o'clock, though they had seen no one enter the building, lights appeared in the window and the Captain ordered a rush upon the stairway. At the same time a heavy body dropped to the ground on the other side.

The Germans had tolerated the use of the house by the French during the day in order to utilize it themselves at night. A complete signalling apparatus was found but the spy, who knew the place better than the French seemingly, had made good his escape.

Your Grandmother's Remedy for Purifying the Blood

And Renovating the System in the Springtime

Ask for Sulpherb Tablets

What was grandmother's unexcelled remedy? Haven't you heard of it? Yes, you have! It was sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses. The main trouble with it was its nauseous taste

A modern method puts the cream of tartar and sulphur into a sugar-coated tablet and mixes them with herbs, roots, etc., making a wonderful tonic, blood purifier and system cleanser.

Just try Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur tablets), but Sulpherb—remember the name—and get the tablets in sealed tubes at 50c per tube.

Grown-up people and children who don't feel well, who are constipated or sluggish, or who have pimples, boils, carbuncles, ulcers and the like, can soon rid the system of these impurities by taking this good old fashioned remedy in modern form. Their action satisfies or money is refunded by the Prescription Products Company, Dayton, Ohio. A free trial sent to any address. Buy of any well-stocked druggist.

IF YOUR CHILD NEEDS A LAXATIVE GIVE IT DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS."

Every mother realizes that this is the children's ideal laxative and physic, because they love its pleasant taste and it never fails to effect a through "inside cleansing" without griping.

When your child is cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember a good liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

TURKEY TO REFORM SCHOOLS

German Professor Selected to Take Charge of Movement.

BERLIN, March 6.—In the midst of war Turkey finds time to begin the reform of its school system, and has turned to Germany for a leader in the movement. The man selected for this purpose is Prof. Franz Schmidt, who has hitherto had charge of a bureau of education in the German Foreign Office. He formerly conducted a German high school in Bucharest, and he has been a close student of foreign educational affairs. He is now to be attached to the Turkish Ministry of Education. Apparently he will play a role in the general educational life of Turkey similar to that played by the German military instructors in the Turkish army.

GEORGE J. GOULD REALLY RETIRING FROM RAILROADS

His Name Will Not Appear in the List of Missouri Pacific Directors to Be Chosen in St. Louis Tuesday, the Wall Street Committee Having Enough Proxies to Control.

SISTER HELEN ONLY WILL BE REPRESENTED

He Has Fought Long and Pluckily Against Powerful Adverse Interests—Nearly Succeeded in Welding Together a Trans-Continental System.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Reports of George J. Gould's retirement from railroad control have been bruited so often and so circumstantially that no one might be accused of skepticism if he took them with a grain of salt. Nimble and resourceful as he has been, whatever else his enemies may say about him, he has dodged out of many a corner.

But he is going out, and he is going out from the one railroad system which Jay Gould controlled at the time of his death. The Wall street committee which has obtained the great majority of proxies of stockholders of the Missouri Pacific, has left no loophole for escape. Their representatives is in St. Louis with the proxies, though the annual meeting will not be held until Tuesday.

Confident in its position, the committee has announced the Board of Directors to be elected at the meeting and the list does not contain a Gould name. George J. Gould individually and the Gould estate, of which he is manager, are to part with their railroad heirloom. Only Helen Gould Shepard, who is reported to have lent her own money to the Missouri Pacific on several occasions and to have rebelled against any plan for separation of her father's road from his children, remains attached to it. Her husband, Finley J. Shepard, is on the list of directors that will be voted in.

What They Retain.

In Wall street banking houses hostile to the Goulds—which is to say practically all the important houses—it may be remarked that the Goulds still have railroad control. They still control the International & Great Northern and the Texas & Pacific. The banking comment is caustic. With the loss of the Missouri Pacific is also lost the Denver & Rio Grande, the Western Pacific, the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern, and, very likely, the Texas & Pacific. These roads have a trackage of 12,260 miles. With their passing, Gould railroad influence ceases, West as well as East. The last chapter is written in a career that aimed at railroad aggrandizement rivalling that achieved by Harriman.

In the first chapter George J. Gould, left in absolute control of the $100,000,000 market value of railroad securities left by Jay Gould, ambitious, energetic and possessing enough ability to draw to him the money of John D. Rockefeller and having as counsel not only the wisdom of Rockefeller but the prudence of Russel Sage, drew gradually away from them, marked out his own course and played his own game until he alienated every other powerful financial group in the country.

The period of formation of his most ambitious plans was in those first years of the twentieth century, which marked the formation of the United States Steel Corporation and most of the other great industrial triumphs and the consolidation and elaboration of great railroad systems—the days of the "captains of industry," when men talked and planned in hundreds of millions of dollars, when the "bet you a million" of John W. Gates was not considered greatly surprising.

George Gould may have been carried away by the spirit of the times. But whatever the actuating motive or the inspiration, it gradually leaked out, though none was more secretive about his plans, that he had ventured on the high enterprise of welding together a transcontinental system. It is to the pursuit of that undertaking that the passing of Missouri Pacific control must be ascribed.

Missed Goal 100 Miles.

Actually Gould came within less than 100 miles of working out his plan. Starting from East to West, he got control of the Western Maryland and brought for it the West Virginia Central & Pittsburg. That brought him from Baltimore to Cumberland, on the eastern side of the Alleghany Mountains, from Pittsburg. From Pittsburg he constructed Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal, which acquired the Wheeling & Lake Erie. The latter road connected at Toledo with the Wabash, in which he had built to a dominant position the stock left him by his father.

The Wabash took him to St. Louis, whence the Missouri Pacific and the Denver & Rio Grande afforded access to Ogden, Utah. Thence to San Francisco he undertook and completed the difficult task of constructing the Western Pacific through passes in the Rocky Mountains and Sierras on to San Francisco.

Everything seemed to be going very nicely in the early part of 1905. Money had been raised to complete the Western Pacific and its construction was well under way. Engineers were perfecting plans for a line to carry him from Pittsburg across the mountains to

They had stores in eight other cities and I brought them here.
They succeeded as I told them they would.

HONEST ADVERTISING

Five Years of straightforward, honest and truthful advertising.

Five Years Ago Tomorrow

Rhodes-Burford Came to St. Louis:

Their store today is the only one of its kind in America—it is not an installment furniture store, but a store catering to those people who are not fortunate enough to have ready cash, but honest, and trying to do the right thing in life.

We feel that we have saved many from disappointment by selling dependable furniture instead of the cheap worthless, "fall to pieces" kind which has to be paid for after it is worn out.

Our Dignified Credit Plan

Means that anyone in any station of life may buy furniture at cash prices for a ten per cent cash payment, the balance you can take care of by means of a weekly or monthly deposit book (same as a bank book) which will be given you. Your payments (a little at a time) as they are made will be entered into this book and you will hardly miss the money. When the last payment is made you will be the proud possessor of good, lifetime, dependable furniture.

Every Man Read This

This treatment is said to have acquired a wonderful reputation throughout the East, owing to the peculiar propensity to fortify the nerve force and generate health and a consequent personal magnetism, so essential to the happiness of every normal human being. It is claimed to be a blessing to those who are physically impaired, gloomy, despondent, nervous, or who have trembling of the limbs, dizziness, heart palpitation, cold hands and feet, insomnia, fear without cause, timidity in venturing and general inability to act rationally as others do. Also of vast benefit to writers, professional men, office workers and the victims of society's late hours and over-indulgence in wines, liquors, etc.

By obtaining the treatment at some well stocked pharmacy, no one need know of another's trouble. While the treatment has been widely prescribed and dispensed heretofore by physicians and pharmacists, the grain tablets are so prepared with full directions for self-administration that it is wholly unnecessary to pay a physician for prescribing them. Just ask for three-grain Cadomene tablets, begin their use and soon all the joy of a healthy body, sound nerves and strength will be felt. —ADVERTISEMENT.

a junction with the Western Maryland. Business was booming and traffic heavy on all lines. Few people could detect a cloud in the financial sky. It seemed to be almost time to bring out that great plan of merging all his lines into one and accomplishing that which has never yet been accomplished, before or since.

What He Controlled.

At that time Gould was at the zenith of his railroad influence. He then controlled absolutely roads with mileage and stock capitalization as follows:

Road.	Mileage.	Stock.
Western Maryland, West Virginia Central & Pittsburg	544	$16,000,000
Wabash & Pittsburg Terminal	60	10,000,000
Wheeling & Lake Erie	498	36,000,000
Wabash	2,517	100,000,000
Missouri Pacific	3,492	78,000,000
Denver & Rio Grande	3,218	84,000,000
Western Pacific	925	75,000,000
International & Great Northern	1,160	10,000,000
Texas & Pacific	1,848	39,000,000
Total	14,262	$448,000,000

Barring the little link from Pittsburg east and the unfinished portion of the Western Pacific, these roads could carry traffic from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Actually, they were in successful operation as a line across country north and south from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of New Orleans and Galveston and to Mexico at Laredo and El Paso.

Trouble came from where it was least expected. It came from the Western Maryland, which was considered one of the wisest of the Gould acquisitions, largely because of its coal properties and coal holdings. The failure of this road was the more surprising because there was Rockefeller and Dutsche Bank money in it. Surely, if the Goulds could not support it, Wall street argued, John D. Rockefeller and the Deutsche Bank could. All the financial district marveled at the import of the receivership.

The only answer that has yet been found to the question is that Rockefeller distrusted the ability of Gould and his associates to carry their plans to a profitable conclusion, or disliked the plans as too venturesome. Previously he had invested heavily in the Gould properties. Not only was he heavily interested in Western Maryland, but in bonds of the Missouri Pacific and its many subsidiary and affiliated companies.

Rockefeller Takes Control.

Whether or not Rockefeller's refusal to follow Gould further was responsible for the failure of the Western Maryland, on reorganization it came out with Fred T. Gates and Henry E. Cooper, Rockefeller's representatives, on the board and free from Gould control.

It is also well known that since that time Rockefeller has given away rather than bought Gould securities. He has distributed them with a lavish hand to colleges and universities and for philanthropic purposes, including bequests to the Rockefeller Foundation.

Bereft of Rockefeller support, Gould labored under great disadvantages. The credit of his other roads was hurt because the failure of Rockefeller to come to the aid of Western Maryland dissipated an idea long entertained by thousands of investers and many bankers. They had thought that in the final analysis in the final period of stress the oil money would come to the relief of his former protege. With that opinion, perforce, abandoned, Gould securities lost much of their attractiveness.

The second disadvantage was that in the course of working out his plans Gould had alienated most other powerful financial groups. Particularly in the railroad field he stood alone, without a friend or ally, if not an Ishmael, at least a person against whom everybody's hand might be raised on occasion.

Some enmities he inherited. The Vanderbilts and J. P. Morgan were unfriendly from the start. With them the days of cut-throat competition between the Vanderbilts and the Erie were too fresh in mind to permit forgetfulness of the clogging of the Erie tracks with freight from Vanderbilt lines and to permit consideration of a Gould as a builder rather than a wrecker of roads.

Gould did nothing to allay this inherited hostility. Rather he inflamed it. Pushing the Wabash into Pittsburg and extending the Western Maryland to the same city meant the upsetting of long standing "gentlemen's agreements" and threatened the community of interest. The Western Maryland extension was particularly obnoxious to the Baltimore & Ohio capitalists. The entrance into Pittsburg from the west aroused the Pennsylvania Railroad group to vigorous action.

Principally to this Pennsylvania attack may be ascribed the receivership of the Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal and its subsidiary, the Wheeling & Lake Erie, which were the next to go. On the first news of his Pittsburg plans the Pennsylvania had declared in no uncertain terms what it thought of them. Under the direction of the late Alexander J. Cassatt it had cut down the Western Union Telegraph poles and abrogated its Western Union contracts.

Following this retaliation upon a Gould property for invasion of its territory, the Pennsylvania contested every inch of the way to Pittsburg. With its then supreme influence in the politics of Pennsylvania, it was able to throw obstacles in Gould's way at every avenue of approach. It was ordered that the new road must enter Pittsburg on an elevated track at a cost of $1,000,000 a mile. The new company had to issue $50,000,000 bonds and incur other indebtedness on account of this. Of course, it could not pay its way, and when the financial stringency of 1907 came along it had to go under.

Lighter Cruisers Continue Attacks on Turkish Fortifications for 120 Miles on Asia Minor Coast to Keep Troops Away.

France to Assemble Soldiers in Northern Africa for Operations Against Turks—Sultan Ready for Flight.

By Associated Press.

PARIS, March 7.—The Ministry of War announces that on account of the situation in the Dardanelles and in order to meet every eventuality the Government has decided to concentrate in North Africa an expeditionary force which will be ready to put to sea at the first sign that it is needed and be directed to the point where its presence is required.

LONDON, March 6—The British battleships Queen Elizabeth and Prince George and the battle cruiser Inflexible, with their eight 15-inch guns and an even dozen 12-inch guns, yesterday opened an attack on the principal forts on the European side of the narrows in the Dardanelles.

Two of the forts were damaged, and the magazine of a third was blown up. The forts, which guard the narrowest part of the straits from the European side, are believed to be the strongest along the entire waterway, although those on the opposite side of the narrows almost equal them.

One of these forts, marked on the Admiralty maps as L. is armed with two 14 inch guns that could hardly reach the Queen Elizabeth, which fired 29 rounds from her 15-inch weapons by indirect fire and had the advantage of aeroplanes to direct her gunners. The two other forts are armed with three 11-inch guns and some smaller cannon.

Attack on Asia Minor Coast.

Meantime lighter cruisers continue attacks on the fortifications along the coast of Asia Minor from Besika, which is near the entrance to the Dardanelles, to Smyrna, about 120 miles, doubtless th a view of preventing reinforcements g sent to the straits, where there dy are a large number of Turkish s with whom the marines who were ed to complete the destruction of orts at the entrance to the straits been in contact. Tonight's official dispatch from the Admiralty disclosed that the East Indies fleet under Vice-Admiral Sir Richard Peirse, who is flying his flag on the Euryalus, has joined the allied fleet and that he undertook the bombardment of the fortifications of Smyrna which were damaged seriously.

Wednesday, the ships continued the bombardment of Fort Dardanos on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles. Destroyers and mine sweepers are pursu ng the work of clearing the outer traits of mines. French ships are eeping up a bombardment from the ulf of Saros.

British Admiralty's Statement.

The official statement issued by the Admiralty tonight regarding the Dardanelles operations says:

'Further reports have now been eived from Vice-Admiral Carden, ncerning the operations on March and subsequent days.

RAID HALTS SOCIETY DINNERS AT PALM BEACH

Proprietors of Club Held, Though No Gambling Paraphernalia Is Found—Rich Men Go Before Grand Jury.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 6.—While the Beach Club was filled with fashionable people from all over the land Friday night, Sheriff Baker poked open the front door and conducted a quiet and unostentatious raid. They found at the threshold suave and self-possessed John E. Bradley, proprietor, and one of the best-known sportsmen in the country. They all shook hands and began a search of the large clubhouse, looking for gaming devices which Theodore Bauer, a detective, had sworn were there.

An orchestra was in the casino, and several people were dancing where the roulette and hazard tables were said to have been. Then Edward Bradley joined the group. All parties stepped into a private office, and the Bradleys were arrested. They gave bond of $5000 each, and today they pleaded not guilty before Judge Pattishall.

While the raid was in progress the Sheriff walked through certain rooms, interrupting dinner parties being given by Mr. and Mrs. de Witt Cuyler, Mr. and Mrs. Willard, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Frelinghuysen, Mr. and Mrs. Thaw, S. L. Schoonmaker, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Cary, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Guerney Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Gerand Foster and others of New York.

The grand jury examined today Col. James M. Schoonmaker, vice-president of the New York Central Lines, and Charles I. Cragin of the Fourth Street National Bank of Philadelphia. Subpenas to appear before the jury have been issued for ex-Mayor John Fitzgerald of Boston; his brother, Henry H. Fitzgerald; John F. Harris, one of the leading steel brokers of the country; Lyttleton Fox of Philadelphia, Harry S. Black, president of the United States Realty Co. of New York; Thomas D. Shevlin of Minneapolis, the former Yale football star; Henry Gleason, a New York lawyer, and Franklin Pettit and Robert Franklin Adams of New York. Five grand juries have investigated the club, but each failed to indict.

Bauer, said to have been employed by Gov. Trammel, says in his affidavit that he played roulette and other games for money in the club every day for two weeks.

GOETHALS MAY RETIRE AS CANAL GOVERNOR IN YEAR

Requests That Younger Man Take His Place; Opposed Own Promotion Over Civilians.

PANAMA, March 6.—Major-General G. W. Goethals, Governor of the Panama Canal Zone, in a speech tonight at the annual banquet of the Society of the Chagres, announced his probable retirement as Governor within a year.

He said he had requested that he be relieved in favor of a younger man and that the request undoubtedly would be granted.

Gov. Goethals declared that he had been opposed to his own promotion, together with other officers, when civilian canal employes had been overlooked. In the course of his speech the Governor stated that he had opposed charging employes rent for their living quarters

MAN REALLY GETS INTO HOT WATER WHEN STREET CAVES IN

Leak in Pipe of Heating System at Edwardsville, Ill., had Formed Underground Pool.

Louis Kershaw, a resident of the south part of Edwardsville, who is employed at a grocery store, had an experience yesterday morning which sent him to bed. He was walking across a street in the south part of town, when he suddenly disappeared into the ground.

His cries seemed to be occasioned by something more than fear and people in the neighborhood made haste to assist him. They found the young man not only in a cave-in of the ground, but standing to his knees in scalding hot water.

The pipes of a heating system, passing through that neighborhood had sprung a leak, which had undermined the street and at the same time accumulated a hidden pool of hot water, into which Kershaw plunged. He was so severely scalded that he will be kept at home several weeks.

GEORGIAN KILLS 5 MEN AND WOUNDS 32, THEN IS KILLED

Real Estate Dealer Shoots Lawyer in Office and Fires on Crowd in Street.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 6.—Monroe Phillips, a real estate and timber dealer, killed five citizens with an automatic shotgun in the business district today, wounded 32 others and was shot dead. Of the wounded, two probably will die.

The police believe Phillips became suddenly insane because of alleged financial difficulties. At the busiest hour of the day he entered the office of Harry F. Dunwoody, an attorney, killed him, and then shot Albert H. Way, who probably will recover.

Walking to the street, Phillips encountered a crowd which had been attracted by the firing. Immediately he began shooting.

R. M. Deaver, a policeman, was killed when he attempted to arrest Phillips, who continued to fire in all directions. Phillips was shot down by E. C. Butts, an attorney, half an hour after Dunwoody had been killed.

Others killed were W. M. Hackett, an undertaker; W. P. Padgett, a former policeman, and George W. Asbell, a motorman.

Every physician available was called our to dress the wounds of Phillips' victims.

DEAF MUTE ROOMMATE HIT HER WITH LID-LIFTER, WOMAN SAYS

Mrs. Anna J. Deters Suffers Broken Wrist and Bruises; Other Declares Hand Was Bitten.

Miss Anna J. Deters, 34 years old, of 4136 Grove avenue, was treated at the City Dispensary last night for a broken wrist and many bruises which, she told the police, were inflicted upon her by her roommate, Miss Mary Surmeir, 45 years old, a deaf mute. Miss Surmeir was taken to the city hospital for examination.

A patrolman was passing the Grove avenue house when he heard screams He forced his way inside and found Miss Deters lying across a chair, moaning. She told him that, after quarreling with Miss Surmeir over her refusal to accompany the later on a Sunday excursion, Miss Surmeir attacked her with a stove-lid lifter. Miss Surmeir exhibited a lacerated hand and said Miss Deters, who is lame in both legs, bit her.

Neighbors say the two women are cousins and have lived together 8 years.

WORKMEN OPPOSED TO WAR NOT FORCED TO MAKE SHELLS

PITTSBURG, March 6.—Workmen disapproving of warfare for humanitarian reasons are not compelled to join crews making shrapnel shells for European armies in a majority of the dozen or more Pittsburg plants turning out this material, it has been announced by officials of the factories.

Mechanics are invited to assist in the work, but they are informed at the same time that there will be no insistance if they possess views antagonistic to furnishing war materials for a belligerent nation.

Thus far, it is said, only a comparatively small number have declined to be transferred to shell making departments.

NEGRO BEAUTY DOCTOR'S PROFITS $25,000 A YEAR

Formula to Take Kinks Out of Curly Hair Brought Big Returns, Man Says in Suit.

HE ASKS FOR $22.000

Alleges Woman Broke Partnership Contract—Tells of Earnings of "College."

The celebrated subcutaneous relationship existing between the Colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady, of which Kipling sang, also exists between Mrs. Private Place of St. Louis and her negro laundress, acording to some unusual revelations in a case pending before the Circuit Court.

Evidence develops that if the white mistress has her beauty doctor and her hair dresser to whom she pays extravagant fees, the servant also has her beauty doctor, and pays so generously to have the kinks removed from her sable tresses that one St. Louis specialist makes between $25,000 and $45,000 a year out of the foibles of her sisterhood.

An account of these astonishing profits came to light in the lawsuit of Walter L. Majors, a negro, against Mrs. Annie M. Pope-Turnbo-Malone, proprietor of Poro College, 3100 Pine street, negro beauty parlors. Majors is asking for $22,000 to which he says he is entitled under a contract of employment with Mrs. Malone. That sum would represent his share of the profits of the concern for two years, he declares, if Mrs. Malone had kept agreements with him.

Owns $6000 Auto.

The proprietor of the "college" denies Majors' claim. She avers that Majors was only her chauffeur at a salary of $150 a month. She owns a $6000 automobile, which is driven by a liveried servant and is one of the smartest turnouts in the whole city.

Testimony in the case has been taken before Leighton Shields, a referee appointed by the court. In the course of the special hearings a rather unusual mix-up occurred. Hugh K. Wagner, who was originally attorney for Mrs. Malone, withdrew from the case, after explaining to the referee that his client has refused to pay him further fees unless a decision were returned in her favor.

"I have always paid you," retorted Mrs. Malone, "but didn't think it was fair to pay any more before you got through."

"I am my own judge of when I need money," the lawyer replied tartly. The defendant then employed Attorneys Glendy B. Arnold and Cleveland A. Newton to represent her.

Mrs. Malone said she started in business at Lovejoy, a negro settlement near Alton, Ill., in 1901, with a formula guaranteed to take the kinks out of curly hair. It had the additional merit of being good for dandruff. Equally important, it cost little to manufacture. The enormous profits it has yielded seem to bear witness that the feminine owner of kinky hair is more than eager to pay liberally for anything that will straighten it.

Opened "College" Here.

The business grew too big to be handled at Lovejoy. Mrs. Malone—who was not Mrs. Malone at that time—brought her formula and her paraphernalia to St. Louis and opened up the "college." It was called "college" because pupils in hair-dressing were received there and learned the trade, paying, of course, for their tuition. When they were "graduated" they entered other establishments and became good buyers of Mrs. Malone's preparations. In addition, the "college" does a mail order business and has representatives scattered over the country.

Majors was in Mrs. Malone's employment two years before the alleged contract was made. The defendant declares he was simply a chauffeur and a doer of mechanical odd jobs about the "college." Majors declared that he virtually furnished a great deal of the brains of the institution.

Since she brought the business here she married Aaron Malone, a school teacher. She has incorporated her business and has transferred to Malone 497 shares of the 500 shares of stock in the company, which is capitalized at $50,000

Majors declared that in the first month of his contract the concern netted $3800 in clear profits.

Mrs. Malone insisted that Majors quit voluntarily. Not only that, she says he set up a rival establishment, "the Oxford College," at 4246 West Belle place.

Mrs. Malone made no comment upon the statement of Majors' attorneys that her profits are somewhere between $25,000 and $45,000 a year. Her concern is said to have 1500 agents in the United States and each agency must pay a $25 fee for the right and handle her products exclusively.

COL. W. R. NELSON CRITICALLY ILL AT KANSAS CITY HOME

Publisher, 74, Sick Since December, Suffered Relapse Friday, Which Is Unchecked.

DAUGHTER CALLED HOME

Charters Special Train From San Antonio—Editor Big Figure in City's Progress.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 6.—William Rockhill Nelson, 74 years old, editor and owner of the Kansas City Star, who has been ill at his home here since December, was announced as in a very serious condition tonight. A decided turn for the worse, which took place Friday, has been unchecked, his physician announced.

Mrs. Irvin R. Kirkwood, Mr. Nelson's daughter, and Mr. Kirkwood, who were in Texas, returned to Kansas City tonight on a special train.

Col. Nelson's physicians late tonight entertained little hope of his recovery.

Nelson has been indisposed for several months but not until the latter part of December would he consent to being confined to his home. Since that time he had not been at the office of The Star, where formerly he appeared every day and took an active part in the editing and management of both the afternoon and morning papers.

His two sisters, Miss Eva Nelson and Mrs. H. W. Bond, have been summoned from their homes in Fort Wayne, Ind. Tomorrow is Col. Nelson's birthday.

Col. Nelson Prominent Figure in Progress of Kansas City.

Col. Nelson did not enter the newspaper business until he was nearly 40 years old, but he became one of the most successful and prominent newspaper published in the country.

He was bridge building, with headquarters in Indiana in 1878, when Samuel E. Morss, city editor of the Fort Wayne Sentinel, went to him with an ambition to start a newspaper. Nelson had just finished a bridge in Iowa and the County Court was to meet and approve his bill the next day. He thought of turning the money he received for the bridge work into Morss' newspaper scheme, but that night a freshet washed away the bridge and Nelson's work was never paid for. "It is this incident more than anything else which plunged me into the newspaper business," said Nelson. He and Morss bought the Fort Wayne Sentinel, ran it a year and sold it at a sufficient profit to start a paper on a bigger scale in Kansas City in the fall of 1880. This paper, the Evening Star, quickly found a place in the affairs of Kansas City, and all the Middle West, for it became stamped with the thoughtful and vigorous personality of its chief editor. The partner, Morss, withdrew on account of ill health after a few months. Twenty years after the Star was founded it absorbed The Times.

Col. Nelson—whose title was conferred upon him by his friends—was largely responsible for developing Kansas City's vast park and other progressive movements "to make Kansas City a good place to live in." The quotation was a slogan he always had above his desk.

Col. Nelson's fortune was recently estimated at anywhere from $7,000,000 to $15,000,000.

He was born at Fort Wayne, Ind..

LILLIAN COOK ENDED LIFE TO AVOID DISGRACE

Autopsy Reveals Motive for Action of Virginius Mayo's Employe in Killing Self.

By a Staff Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 6.—The cover was closed today upon the strange, tragic romance which was thrown open to public gaze by the suicide of Lillian May Cook, the little Brooklyn typist who killed herself nine days ago out on a lonely mountain top.

The story of tangled lives had already told of the dual existence of the girl's rich employer, Virginius J. Mayo, a childless married man, in this city, who was "James Dudley," father of three beautiful children, and presumed husband of a beautiful young woman, in Brooklyn.

That would seem to be enough of an unfortunate revelation. But the last page brought still another one. And that was that Lillie Cook, Mayo's protege, who lived in the Young Women's Christian Association here and never was out later than 10:30 at night, and whose conduct and demeanor were apparently beyond the shadow of blame, ended her young life because, in all likelihood, she feared the ordeal of an unmarried maternity.

No One to Be Arrested.

Coroner Mix and State's Attorney Alling announced today that the case was ended. A verdict was rendered by the Coroner (at least as much of a "verdict" as is ever rendered in this country) to the effect that Lillian May Cook had killed herself because of "despondency." No one was to be arrested. No one was to be interrogated further. The formal report which the Coroner will file later with the proper authorities will give "despondency" as the sole reason for the act.

But in announcing that this would be the case, Coroner Mix made known what he had learned from the two physicians, Dr. Marvin M. Scarbrough and Dr. Richard F. Rand, who performed the autopsy upon the young typist's body.

They found, the Coroner said, certain indications that Miss Cook might have realized, within the past three or four weeks, that eventually—although at a distant time—the most dreadful thing that a young girl might face would be her lot.

There were other indications, too, which seemed to show that either the girl herself, or, as appeared more probable, some experienced surgeon, had made certain preparations for an operation. It was remotely possible, the physicians believed, that a minor operation might have been performed: but they rather trended to the theory that such a thing was merely contemplated and had not been carried out.

But whatever was the case the signs were sufficient to show the medical experts that some man was

JITNEY DRIVER FATALLY INJURED REPAIRING TIRE

Dies in City Hospital After Skull Is Fractured When Machine Slips From Jackscrew.

Walter Hogg, 28 years old and married, of 7445 Maple avenue, Maplewood, driver of a jitney automobile, died at the city hospital at 9 o'clock last night, two hours after a peculiar accident at Delmar boulevard and Spring avenue, in which his skull was fractured while the car was standing still.

Hogg's brother-in-law, Andrew Duncan, 20 years old, who had been his assistant in running the car, a five-passenger Ford, since it went into service a week before, was the only person with him in the car when, just west of Grand avenue, a front tire blew out.

Hogg ran the car to Spring avenue, and the two then got out and undertook to repair the tire. It was necessary to jack up the front axle, and the slippery condition of the street, with the down grade, made this task difficult.

Duncan first used a jackscrew, but just as he got it adjusted, the rear wheels slipped, and the weight of the machine tipped the jackscrew over.

Hogg said he would do it, and replacing the jackscrew under the axle, he lifted the axle. He did not block the rear wheels. As he bent under the front of the machine, it slipped again, and the metallic fender hit him on the head. Because of the peculiar position in which he was, he was unable to save himself with his hands, and his head struck the asphalt pavement with great force.

ALL SAFE ON BURNING SHIP LA TOURAINE

French Ship, Which Took Fire 1200 Miles From Havre, Reports That Liner Rotterdam Is Standing By, Prepared to Remove 84 Travelers if Necessary.

Four Other Vessels, Which Were Hurrying to Assistance of Liner Bound From New York, Are Told Help Is Not Needed Now.

Crew of 200 Fighting Blaze With Every Means at Disposal—4000 Cases of Cartridges Included in Cargo of La Touraine.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Sunday, March 7, 1:03 a. m.—A late message received at Queenstown from the French liner La Touraine, reported earlier today to be on fire at sea, says that the steamer Rotterdam is standing by prepared to render every assistance, including the transfer of passengers, if necessary. Wireless messages have been sent out to the steamers Arabic, Cornishman, Swanmore and Stanford, saying that their assistance is not now required.

Meantime, however, an S O S call had been picked up by a British cruiser on patrol duty in the Atlantic, and she proceeded at top speed to the assistance of the Touraine. Her aid is not considered necessary, as the captain of the Rotterdam has promised to stand by La Touraine until she is safely navigated to port. When the Rotterdam reached La Touraine the crew of the latter vessel were fighting the fire with every means at their disposal.

La Touraine, bound from New York to Havre, took fire in latitude 48:06 north and longtitude 20:14 west, about 1200 miles from her destination, according to a wireless message received by Lloyd's from the wireless station at Valentia, Ireland. In addition to giving the position of the vessel, it stated that the steamers Rotterdam, Swancore, Cornishman, Arabic and others were going to her assistance.

La Touraine has aboard 38 first cabin passengers and 43 in the steerage. Among the first-class passengers is Paul Faguet, general agent of the French Line in this city. She carries a crew of about 200.

A message from Queenstown says that the fire on La Touraine "is fierce." Otherwise this message is a repetition of the one received by Lloyd's from the wireless station at Valencia, Ireland.

Official of Company Says Fire Started at 6 A. M.

PARIS, March 6.—A director of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique said this afternoon:

"From a wireless dispatch we have received we are given to understand that fire broke out on La Touraine at 6 o'clock this morning. Four ships which were within wireless range have gone to her assistance. Among them are the Arabic and the Rotterdam."

He added no word had been received concerning the ship with the exception of this message.

This director stated that the fire "apparently was serious."

"The Arabic and Rotterdam," he said, "should now be close to La Touraine, which is 900 miles from Havre."

The French Ministry of Marine received from one of its wireless stations today the news that the steamship La Touraine was afire about 400 knots off the Irish coast. Beyond this bare announcement the ministry has received no news of the vessel.

RUSSIANS DRIVE AUSTRIANS BACK IN EASTERN GALICIA

Czar's Troops Reported to Have Pursued Archduke Joseph's Force Beyond Stanislau and to Have Driven Defenders From Nadworna, Northeast of Czernowitz.

GERMANS RETIRE ALONG THE NIEMEN

Muscovites Interfere With Efforts to Fortify Ground Taken in Advance From Prussia — British Yield Near Ypres.

LONDON, March 6.—A staff correspondent of the London Daily News at Petrograd sends the following dispatch: "Archduke Joseph's army of Austria is now in full flight through the woody country between the Dniester and the Pruth, pursued by a Russian army which traversed Stanislau (Eastern Galicia) on Thursday.

"The Austrians have been forced to discard a number of guns and baggage trains, leaving them stuck in the heavy roads.

"The other extremity of the Austrian army has been driven from Nadworna (67 miles northeast of Czernonitz) in Galicia, partly broken and dispersed.

"Austrian efforts from the mid-Carpathian passes to clear the first part of the road towards Przemysl, which were maintained furiously in the early part of the week, have been abandoned in despair.

"The Russian Northern army has begun a series of determined flights, especially across the western section, between Mlawa and the Vistula. Several hundred prisoners, with light artillery have been captured at Konopko, where an attempt was made to hold the Mlawa Railway for the Germans.

"The Russian middle army from Przasnysz has now a great quantity of undamaged guns and ammunition captured from the Germans, including 12 field guns and 29 machine guns, besides aeroplanes and hundreds of supply wagons.

"Germans are now surrendering in large numbers. The prisoners say that the infantry companies, which three weeks ago numbered 240 men, now number about 80 only. About a quarter of the men still in the ranks are suffering from enteric sickness."

Russians Drive Back Germans on Left Bank of Niemen.

PETROGRAD, March 6.—The following official communication was issued today:

"On the left bank of the Niemen the Germans have been driven back behind the railway station of Simno and also in the district of Leipouny (near Suwalki). The distribution of troops on the right bank of the Narew shows no essential change.

"On the road in the direction of Lomza obstinate fighting continues. On Friday night we dislodged the enemy from a commanding height on the west side of the high road from Stawiski to Lomra. Near the village of Karwowowo we captured seven machine guns. On the left bank of the Vistula, in the Pilica River district, the Germans yesterday opened an attack on a limited sector of our positions at the village of Domanevice.

"In the Carpathians the Austrians continue their futile attacks in the direction of Baligrod.

"In Eastern Galicia we are continuing the offensive after having driven the Austrians from their fortified positions on the River Bistrica, where we captured 100 prisoners."

Rain Hinders Operations in France; German Attacks Repulsed.

PARIS, March 6.—The following official statement was issued tonight:

"In Belgium, in the Dunes, our artillery has executed very effective firing on the heavy batteries of Westende.

"To the north of Arras, in the region of Notre Dame de Lorette, our counter attacks have continued to progress. At this point the Germans, who employed large effectives, suffered a serious check.

"In Champagne in the ravine to the northwest of Beausejcor, a German counter attack has been repulsed. Rain, which has fallen all day has caused a slackening in the operations.

"In Alsace the progress made by us in the Vosges at the Hatmanns-Weillerkopf extends over 300 meters (about 325 yards) of German trenches.

"On the evening of the fifth we repulsed a counter attack opposite Uffholtz and blew up an ammunition depot at Cernay. Last night we swept with our fire the enemy's advance post, who attempted to establish themselves on the Sillakerkoff, east of Honneck."

Germans Capture British Trench Southeast of Ypres.

BERLIN, March 6, by wireless to London.—The official statement issued by the general staff reports the capture of an English trench in the Ypres district. The statement follows:

"On March 6, in the western theater of war, southeast of Ypres, we made a counter attack and captured an English trench. An attempt by the French to take the conquered positions on Lorette Heights failed. We took 50 French prisoners.

"In the Champagne district the French continued their works near Perthes and Le Mesnil, but were repulsed. Near Perthes we captured five officers and 40 French soldiers.

"In a counter attack we occupied the small wood north of Perthes and the Piro trench of their position near Le Mesnil. The French attacks against our positions near Vauquois and east of Badonviller and northeast of Celles were unsuccessful.

"In the eastern theater our entire war booty in the forest district northwest of Grodno and around Augustowo has been collected, in spite of energetic Russian counter attacks. Our troops, which were employed for this task, are now at our disposal for other operations.

"Northeast of Przasnyysz a Russian attack broke down with severe losses to the enemy. Northwest of Plonsk a Russian attack was also repulsed."

Shipping Companies Won't Accept German Goods for America.

banks and the enemy was found to be holding villages in force.

"On this day also, further down the coast, the Sapphire silenced a battery of field guns north of Dikili, in the Gulf of Adramyti and the defenses of Besika were shelled by the Prince George.

"The following casualties were sustained on March 4: Nineteen killed, 3 missing, 25 wounded.

"On March 5 the attack was begun by indirect fire from the Queen Elizabeth upon the defenses at the narrows. This attack was supported, in dealing with the howitzers, by the Inflexible and the Prince George. The fire was confined to Forts Rumilieh-Mejidieh, Hamdieh No. 2 and Namazieh, which are armed as follows: Fort J.—Two 11-inch guns; four 9.4-inch; five 3.4-inch. Fort L.—Two 14-inch. Fort T.—One 11-inch; one 10.2-inch; 11 5.4-inch; three 8.2-inch; three 5.9-inch.

"The Queen Elizabeth fired 29 rounds with satisfactory results. The magazine in Fort L, which is an important fort, armed with the best and heaviest guns, blew up. Two other forts were damaged.

Concealed Guns Fire at Ships.

"The fire of the Inflexible and Prince George was observed from inside the Dardanelles by the Irresistible, Canopus, Cornwallis and Albion. Although these vessels were much fired at by concealed guns, they were not hit.

"The Sapphire again fired on troops in the neighborhood of the Gulf of Adramyti and destroyed a military station at Tuszburna.

"On March 5 the commander in chief of the East Indies, Vice-Admiral Sir Richard Peirse, advanced with a squadron of battleships and cruisers off Smyrna. A methodical bombardment of Fort Yenickals was carried out during the afternoon for two hours, under favorable weather conditions. Thirty-two hits were secured, inflicting considerable damage on the fort, and there were two heavy explosions, apparently magazines.

"The Euryalus, which flew the flag of the Vice-Admiral, shot with remarkable accuracy from her after 9.2 guns. The fire was not returned.

"Bombardment at closer range has now begun, weather conditions being good.

"Reduction of the Smyrna defense is a necessary incident in the main operations."

French Cruisers Bombard Forts Across Peninsula.

PARIS, March 6.—An official communication from the Ministry of Marine says:

"At the Dardanelles during the day of March 5 three cruisers stationed in the Gulf of Saros bombarded by indirect fire across the Gallipoli Pennisula the Turkish forts at Kilid-Bahr, which guard the European coast of the narrow strait between that point and Chanak.

"The fire was directed and rectified by four vessels stationed at the entrance to the Dardanelles. The results of the bombardment were very satisfactory.

"The powder magazine of one of the forts exploded. None of the vessels was damaged.

"During the day of March 5, three vessels of the allied fleet bombarded from a great distance the fort at Yassi Kale, at the entrance to the Gulf of Smyrna, which was seriously damaged and unable to make reply."

Post-Dispatch Man on Ship Standing By La Touraine

all graduates of the French hospital in New York, on their way to be attached to the new war hospital at the Chateau de Passy, near Sens. Funds for the hospital unit were supplied by Mrs. W. J. Fitzgerals, an English woman living in New York, who contributed $100,000.

The vessel was one of six big liners to leave this port the same day, the sailings being the heaviest recorded here for some time.

Cartridges on Board.

On board the Touraine were 4394 cases of cartridges intended for use in the European war.

The crew numbered approximately 200. The vessel was under command of Capt. Caussin, it was said, with M. Gaillard as second Captain.

Stored away in the vessel's hold was the ammunition, which caused keen apprehension as to the vessel's fate when it became known that a fire was raging aboard. While no record was kept as to the tonnage of this portion of the cargo it was estimated that the shipment contained, at the very least, half a million rounds and possibly several times this much.

In addition to the 4394 cases of cartridges, she carried 139, rapid-fire guns and a varied assortment of supplies for the allies' commissaries, both foodstuffs and clothing. Twelve hundred tons of her cargo consisted of uniforms, cloth for uniforms, sweaters and hosiery for soldiers in the trenches. There were 1500 cases of machinery aboard as well, many hundred wagon wheels and 275 bars of silver. In addition there was a large assortment of foodstuffs.

La Touraine Built in 1891.

La Touraine, a steamer of 12,360 tons, is one of the older transatlantic liners, having been built in 1891.

Since she was launched La Touraine has played an interesting part in the history of ocean travel. She arrived in New York Oct. 28, 1913, with 42 persons which she rescued from the Uranium liner Volturno, which burned at sea with the loss of 132 lives. Capt. Caussin was one of the first commanders of rescue steamers to get a boat over in the heavy sea to aid in the rescue work. The captain and crew were decorated with medals for their bravery on this occasion. It was the captain of the La Touraine who warned the ill-fated Titanic of the presence of icebergs in her course.

London Manager Thinks Bomb Caused Fire on La Touraine.

LONDON, March 6.—The manager of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique in London said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent today:

"Precautions against fire on modern steamships are such that the burning of La Touraine could be caused, in my opinion, only by an explosion of some sort of an infernal machine, which certainly would be the result of German machinations. We long have been aware that Germany's secret service in America has attempted more than once to place bombs with time fuses in French and British ships, but we have been constantly on our guard against this form of outrage and hitherto have been able to frustrate activities of this kind.

"It is hard to believe even Germans would sacrifice a whole shipload of innocent noncombatants by such diabolical methods. There can be no other explanation of the disaster to La Touraine, if she really is afire at sea."

Stenographer Ended Her Life to Avoid Disgrace responsible for the girl's action in ending her life.

No Law to Punish Him.

However, to find the man would be an unavailing thing, as the Coroner and Prosecutor pointed out. There is no law in the statute books providing for the prosecution or punishment of a man who brings about a girl's mental distress, even though that distress results in her death.

Mayo, tall, handsome, grizzled, but with the physique of an athlete despite his 54 years, almost wept when the reporter saw him at his home and told him of the findings of the physicians.

"I can scarcely believe it," he said. "As I have said many times before, I knew Miss Cook only as a sweet, good young girl, and this news about her is shocking. She was to me just an employe, whom I had given a place in my office with the consent of her parents, but I always had the highest respect for her, and it seems impossible that things the doctors have said are true."

The man was quite perceptibly affected by the story the Coroner had given as the reason for the typist's self-destruction.

Mayo was asked by the reporter about the identity of the third child now living in his Brooklyn house. He previously admitted—as did "Mrs. Dudley" or Lois Waterbury—that two of them were borne by that girl who, a few years ago, worked in his office, just as Lillian Cook did. But there has always been a mystery as to the third little one. The story has been repeated frequently both here and in Brooklyn—and never denied—that Mayo was the father of this, but that some woman other than Lois Waterbery was the mother.

Child Has No Identity.

"What is that child's identity, Mr. Mayo?" he was asked.

"The child has no identity, that's why it's there," he replied slowly. Then he declined to talk any more. His counsel had advised him not to talk at all, he said.

One of the peculiar angles of the whole Mayo-"Dudley"-Cook case has been the attitude of Frank Cook, Lillian May's father, toward Mayo. When Cook and his surviving daughter, Laura, were here a few days ago, they both told the police that they did not know Mayo and "Dudley" to be the same person. Later Cook told the same persons that he had misinformed them before, and always had been aware that "Dudley" was really Mayo. It was only when Coroner Mix had a long talk with Cook yesterday at his secret inquest, that the full story of the acquaintanceship of the two was brought out.

According to Frank Cook's testimony, the girl, Lillian May, about three years ago decided she would like to help out the family resources by work of some sort, and so she registered at the Brooklyn Y. W. C. A. and then answered an advertisement inserted in a Brooklyn paper by the "Dudleys," who wanted a nursemaid. She went to the "Dudley" house, accompanied by her mother, and obtained the position.

While she was there, Frank Cook, her father, was taken ill. He was sent to the free ward of the Long Island College Hospital. He had merely the pay of a sexton of a church and could afford nothing better. Lillian spoke of her father's condition to "Dudley." Within a day Cook was changed to a private room and a special nurse cared for him throughout his illness.

"Dudley" Settled the Bill.

For two months he was there. When he was about to leave he learned that "Dudley" had settled all the bills.

The Cooks and the "Dudleys" became well acquainted. "Mrs. Dudley" frequently visited the Cook house. Lillian's father and sister often went to call upon her and her children.

When the children in the Brooklyn house no longer needed a nurse, Lillian Cook returned to her home. But she was unhappy idle, and then "Dudley" offered her a place at $10 a week in the office of his radiator factory here. With the consent of her father and mother, she accepted it and came to this city. The parents, of course, knew that she was to work for Mr. Mayo and could not have failed to know that he and "Mr. Dudley" were one and the same person.

Stories innumerable were repeated about New Haven today that little Miss Cook, some months ago, had been automobile riding with young men; that there were parties of four in which she, with another girl and a man who has been mentioned in this case, and a salesman from New Britain, had figured. But neither the police nor the Coroner nor the newspaper investigators have been able to find the slightest indication that these rumors were true.

Body Sent to Brooklyn.

Miss Cook's body was sent to Brooklyn today. The girls in the Mayo office sent a handsome floral piece of orchids, as did also Mrs. Mayo, the legal wife of the little girl's employer. But neither Mayo nor his wife visited the undertaking establishment to look at the body.

The body had no relative nor friend to accompany it to New York. Only an undertaker went along.

Thus the queer, tragic tangle ends. Lillian May Cook is dead, with a blot on her name. Virginius J. Mayo lives, with his dual mode of existence shown to the world. The name of the man who was responsible for the pistol shot out on lonely West Rock will never—at least officially—become known. The identity of the mother of the third child in the Brooklyn household of "Dudley" will probably likewise remain a secret. The Mayo-"Dudley"-Cook case is over.

FRENCH OFFICIAL NOTE PUTS GERMAN LOSSES AT 3,000,000

Calculation Is Based on Known Casualties in Ten German Regiments.

PARIS, March 6.—An official note issued by the French Press Bureau declares that the German losses since the beginning of hostilities in killed, wounded, sick and prisoners reaches the enormous total of 3,000,000 men.

This calculation is based on the known casualties in 10 German regiments.

"Analysis of the German losses during five months, in 10 regiments taken from army corps on both the western and eastern German fronts, shows a total of 36,281 officers and soldiers; that is, an average per regiment of 725 monthly," says the note.

DIPLOMATS STAY IN MEXICO CITY, AWAIT U. S. ACTION

Foreign Envoys Hope Washington Will Force Carranza to Let Food Enter City.

SITUATION STILL GRAVE

Dispatches Indicate Carranza May Order That Supplies Be Allowed to People in Capital.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Advices indicating that Gen. Carranza might heed representatives of the United States and direct Gen. Obregon to permit food and supplies to reach Mexico City, received late today, are regarded as encouraging at the State Department.

While the situation was still described as grave, the intimation was given that Carranza was beginning to yield to the diplomatic pressure being exerted at Vera Cruz for an amelioration of conditions in Mexico City, where famine had been threatened.

Another disturbing element in the general situation reported to the State Department was the outbreak of an epidemic of smallpox at Tampico. Twenty-nine cases are now in the hospital. Within the last three days eight deaths have occurred. Consular dispatches say it is not known how many more cases have not been officially reported. With the expected attack on Tampico by the Villa forces and the arrival of thousands of Carranza reinforcements, conditions in the seaport are becoming almost as uncomfortable for the foreign colony as in Mexico City.

Obregon Refuses Transportation.

In the Mexican capital foreign diplomats are exerting every influence possible to persuade Gen. Obregon to accept the proffered aid of an international relief commission which raised 250,000 pesos to buy food and supplies for the needy. Obregon thus far has refused them transportation facilities to bring freight from towns in the vicinity.

During the day some of the foreign diplomatists here received messages from their representatives in Mexico City indicating that the diplomatic corps was desirous of leaving.

One message said the diplomats had decided to leave in a body, and asked that arrangements be made for the care of diplomatic interests by consular interests remaining. A similar message was received by the Swedish Minister here from his Government at Stockholm.

Late today he called on Secretary Bryan to ask what the United States would advise in case of foreign diplomats desiring to leave. He informed the Secretary that his Government had been advised of a report that the diplomatic corps contemplated such action. After his conference with Bryan the Minister said he would advise for the present the Swedish Legation be maintained in Mexico City to look after the increasing needs of the Swedish residents.

Depends on U. S. Course.

It was learned in this connection that the decision of the diplomatic corps to leave was dependent to some extent on what might be the course of the United States in the circumstances. If the Washington Government is making efforts to better conditions in the Mexican capital, the diplomats would be content to remain. A final settlement of the question of maintaining foreign legations in Mexico City probably will be reached within a few days.

Another embarrassment in the situation is the fact that Gen. Carranza, two days ago, issued another invitation to the diplomatic corps to come to Vera Cruz, where, he said, conditions were not so uncomfortable. The Ministers have consistently refused to accept Carranza's invitations because they feared this would be regarded as a recognition of his Government.

U. S. NOTE DRAWN ASKING DETAILS OF ALLIES' EMBARGO

President and Bryan Consider Communication Following Inquiries From Shippers.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—President Wilson and Secretary Bryan had under consideration today a note of inquiry to Great Britain and France asking how the declaration of an embargo by the allies on the commercial intercourse between Germany and neutral countries was to be carried out in actual practice.

So numerous have been inquiries from American shippers and exporters as to what would be the legal status of ships and cargoes if detained by British or French cruisers and taken into port, that the United States Government has prepared a general inquiry on the subject to be addressed to Great Britain and France. Up to late today the inquiry had not been sent.

In some quarters it was believed the Washington Government might await receipt of the order in council in which it is reported Great Britain is preparing to explain in some detail the general terms of her original declaration. Inasmuch, however, as the State Department has received no intimation of when the order might be expected, it also was considered possible that the inquiry would not be long delayed but might be sent tomorrow so as to indicate to the allies the solicitude of the United States over the general restrictions to its commerce implied in recent Anglo-French notes.

That the American inquiry will indicate clearly the grounds on which subsequent protests will be based generally was believed in diplomatic circles. It was expected the American Government would ask Great Britain and France for an explanation of their recent notes since President Wilson has spoken of the rather general and vague policy announced in those communications and the necessity for discovering how the principles expressed would actually be enforced.

As yet, no reply has been received from Great Britain to American proposals for the abandonment of submarine warfare, the removal of mines and the shipment of foodstuffs and conditional contraband to Germany under supervision that would guarantee their distribution to the civilian population only.

U. S. to Care for German Interests Should Allies Take Constantinople.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Germany has asked the United States to care for its diplomatic interests in Constantinople should the allied forces occupy the capital of Turkey.

Ambassador Morgenthau has been instructed to assume that duty when the German Minister to Turkey leaves with the Ottoman Government for Eskichehir (in Asia Minor, 125 miles southeast of Constantinople), the newly selected temporary capital for the Porte. The Minister is arranging to place the German legation in charge of the American Ambassador.

Should the allies move closer to the capital it is practically certain that the Government departments will move, but this will in no way affect the intention of the military to make every resistance against the invaders.

March 7, 1841. His father had been identified with the upbuilding of the state, and his maternal grandfather, William Rockhill, settled in Indiana when that region was almost a wilderness in 1819 and was the first farmer in America at Notre Dame University. He was a hard worker all through life, and in the early days of the Star he spent eighteen hours a day "on the job," as he said. He did not have a private office, but insisted on having his desk in a room where editors and reporters surrounded him.

In 1896, after being abroad with an expert for two years collecting works of art, Col. Nelson presented to Kansas City a collection of copies of the world's greatest art treasures done by masters. Col. Nelson himself was an art expert and for years he conducted an educational campaign to acquaint his readers with the masterpieces.

In 1881 Nelson married Ida Houston of South Charleston, O.

The Nelson home, Oak Hall, is one of the show places of Kansas City. It is built of brown stone, with a high French garden wall surrounding the spacious grounds. It contains more than 100 rooms, and the wine cellars are said to be worth $250,000.

One of Nelson's hobbies, the running of boulevards everywhere, has resulted in greatly beautifying Kansas City. He built miles of them through property he owned, paved them and planted trees on them. He built good houses and rented them cheaply. His employes cut the grass, sodded the lawns and kept the flowers for his tenants.

PRESIDENT GOES SHOPPING

WASHINGTON, March 6.—President Wilson went on a shopping tour today in the downtown section of the city, accompanied by several secret service men.

He inspected golf clubs at a sporting goods store and made a number of purchases at other shops, enjoying a complete rest for the first time in several months.

BRITISH AIRSHIP SHED SHELLED BY SUBMARINE U-21

Semi-Official Naval Account Says German Boat Torpedoed Cruiser Pathfinder.

LONDON, March 6.—The annoyance of snipers, to which the British troops have been subject ever since they began operations in France, has now been practically stopped, according to eye-witness accounts from British General Headquarters.

"The activities of the enemy's snipers," he writes, "have diminished of late, owing to the marksmanship of our sharpshooters. These snipers frequently cover themselves with ferns or straw so as to render themselves less easily distinguished when crawling on grass or stubble. At one place one day out of five German snipers who had crawled out in front of their trenches and were trying to annoy us, three were promptly shot dead. At another point one of our marksmen recently accounted for six, single-handed. Similar rounding up of snipers by our patrols is taking place on other parts of the front and is an encouraging indication that this nuisance is being effectively dealt with."

He adds: "A party of our officers had an extraordinary escape. They were on the point of sitting down to dinner in a dugout when a bomb from a German trench mortar landed in their midst. When the smoke and dust of the explosion cleared away the dinner had completely disappeared but not a single man was hurt.

A London dispatch Sept. 7 said the Pathfinder had been blown up by mines.

MAN WHOSE SHOT KILLED EX-MAYOR REFUSES TO TALK

Louisiana Coroner Expects Inquest to Reveal Circumstances of Fatal Wounding of Col. A. M. Walker, Member of Governor's Staff.

NO BULLET HOLE IN OUTER CLOTHES

Question Raised as to Whether Shot Was Fired in Office—Walker Had Been on Street Apparently in Distress.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISIANA, Mo., March 6.—Louisiana is deeply stirred by the shooting of Col. Alten M. Walker, member of Gov. Major's staff and former Mayor of this city, by his friend Fred Wilkins, a young real estate agent, Tuesday night, from which Walker died Thursday afternoon. Interest has been increased by the fact that, although Walker declared in an antemortem statement that the shooting was accidental, Wilkins has, on the advice of his attorney, Ras Pearson, refused to say anything.

Corner J. H. Hendricks of Bowling Green will begin an inquest at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning which is expected to bring out circumstances of the shooting.

The first that the Louisiana public knew that there had been a shooting was at about 9:30 Tuesday night, when the telephone bell rang at the Elks Club rooms at Fourth and Georgia street. It was a call for Dr. J. W. Crewson. It was Walker speaking. He told Dr. Crawdson that he had been shot and asked him to hurry to the Walker office on Second street near Georgia street. "Walker has been shot," said Dr. Crewdson, as he hurried from the club rooms.

Walker and Wilkins in Office.

In Walker's office when Dr. Crewdson and others entered were Walker and Wilkins. Walker, who is a real estate agent, has his office on the ground floor. Wilkins' office is on the second floor next door. It is reached by a stairway that descends beside Walker's door. Walker explained that Wilkins had stopped in as he was starting home and that they had been examining Wilkins' revolver when it was accidentally discharged.

Wilkins, Attorney Pearson says, made no statement then and has made none since and that in refusing to make a statement he has been acting since about 10 o'clock that night, when Pearson reached Walker's office, on Pearson's instructions.

Dr. Crewdson is reported to have said that he found Walker with his coat and vest on and his vest buttoned. He refuses to affirm or deny this. He found a bullet wound in the lower left side of Walker's abdomen. Before he was taken to his home Walker called Dr. Crewdson, who is Mayor of Louisiana; Pearson, I. N. Bryson and several others about him and said: "If anything serious happens to me I want you all to know that it was purely accidental and that Fred is in no way to blame."

Wilkens Remained With Walker.

Wilkens, greatly distressed and agitated, assisted in the preparations for taking Walker home and accompanied him there and he and Pearson remained with Walker all night.

Between 3 and 4 o'clock Wednesday morning Wilkins and Pearson were sitting beside Walker's bed. Wilkins was greatly depressed, Pearson says. Walker laid his hand on Wilkins' hand and said: "Fred, I want you to quit worrying. It was an accident which might happen to any man."

Wilkins was at Walker's home much of the time until Walker died at 3 p. m. Thursday. He attended the funeral, which took place from the Walker residence yesterday afternoon.

Walker and Wilkins have been looked upon as good friends. Walker, who was about 45, had lived the greater part of his life in Louisiana. Wilkins, who is about 25, was born and reared in Louisiana, but lived for a time in Hannibal. He returned to Louisiana six months ago and occupied a house on North Third street, owned by Walker's mother-in-law, Mrs. Eliza Jackson. Latterly he had been associated with Walker in several transactions and Walker had conveyed to him the house in which he was living and is also understood to have disposed of the insurance branch of his business to Wilkins.

When Wilkins was seen at his home last night he refused absolutely to make a statement beyond saying that the affair was "deplorable."

Wilkins Bought a Ticket.

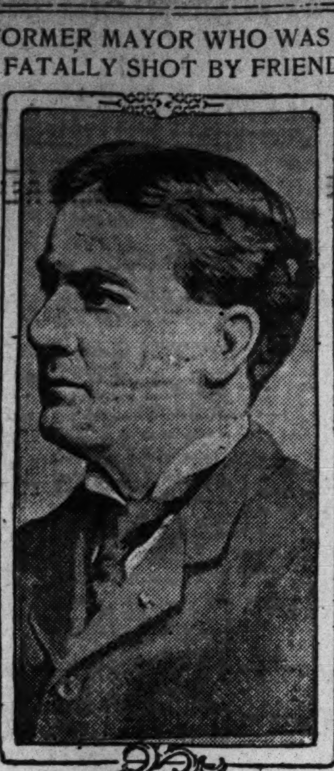
Investigation by the Post-Dispatch staff correspondent today disclosed that Wilkins went to the Burlington depot at 4:30 p. m., Tuesday, accompanied by Walker, and Wilkins bought a ticket for Clarence, Mo. R. A. Lonergan, the ticket agent, says he did not notice whether Wilkins boarded the train, but he saw him and Walker on the platform just before the train arrived. He took no notice after that of either Walker or Wilkins.

The train which leaves Louisiana at 4:36 p. m. makes no stops until it reaches Hannibal, 26 miles north. There is no train by which he could have returned to Louisiana before 9 o'clock.

Walker was seen about town early in the evening by several persons. He bought some sandwiches and bottles of beer about 8:45 and drove away in his automobile in the direction of his home.

Guy Rudd, negro proprietor of a garage, thinks it was about 9 o'clock when Wilkins came to the door of his home at Fourth and South Carolina streets and asked him if he could run Walker's machine. Rudd said he could. Wilkins told him to go to the Mercantile Bank corner, which is the north east corner of Third and Georgia streets, and get the machine and take it to Walker's office.

FORMER MAYOR WHO WAS FATALLY SHOT BY FRIEND



A.M. WALKER

On his way to the Mercantile Bank corner Rudd passed Tom Montgomery, a negro chauffeur employed by George Pribe, proprietor of a garage at Third and North Carolina streets, and Montgomery accompanied him to the machine, which was standing in front of the bank building, headed east.

Before the two negroes reached the corner, George Pettibone, a merchant, was going north on Third street, accompanied by his wife, returning from the Eagle Theater. They had just left Georgia street when they met two men going south on Third street. Pettibone says he recognized one of the men as Walker and said, "How are you, Alten," and Walker returned the greeting. He thinks it was pretty close to 9:30 o'clock.

Says Wilkins Was With Walker.

William E. Brazier of 417 North Fourth street, a motor boat pilot, says he was standing at the southeast corner of Third and Georgia streets at 9:30 when Walker and Wilkins passed.

Walker's form was bent. The front rim of his hat was turned up. His hair was ruffled. His shirt front was disarranged. He seemed to be in distress. Brazier says he looked like he was "all in."

Did Not Intend to Leave Town.

The reason that there is public interest in these developments concerning the movements of the two men on the evening of the shooting is that it is deduced from all of these circumstances that Walker may not have been shot in his office but that when he was seen passing along the street, supported by Wilkins, he had already been shot and they were on their way to Walker's office, from where public announcement of the shooting was made by the summoning of Dr. Crewdson.

Rudd drove the car around to Walker's office and remained in charge of it all night, driving about on errands and meeting the late train which brought Mrs. Walker from St. Louis, where she had been visiting.

Coroner Hendricks came here yesterday from Bowling Green and impaneled a jury composed of John M. Givens, Joe D. McAllister, Vic Agee, Walter Thornton, C. J. McCune and Fred D. Stitcher. Accompanied by Prosecuting Attorney T. B. McGinnis he took the jury to the Walker home and they viewed the body. The Coroner asked for and obtained the clothing worn by Walker when he was shot. He examined the clothing in the presence of the jury. He told the correspondent there was no bullet hole through Walker's coat, vest or trousers. The bullet passed through his shirt and union suit, Hendricks said, two and one-half inches below the waist line. The course of the bullet was horizontal, from left to right. The shirt was powder burned.

Did Not Intend to Leave Town.

Pearson says Wilkins did not intend to go to Clarence when he bought a ticket Tuesday afternoon and that Walker knew he was in Louisiana and Wilkins knew that Walker knew it, as they were together part of the evening.

Walker's statement to Pearson was that he had gone uptown to wait until it was time to call for his mother-in-law, Mrs. Eliza Jackson, who was out calling, and went to his office to sign some letters. Wilkins, he said, came in and sat down. Walker was sitting in a swivel chair at his desk. Walker showed him his revolver. Walker took it in his hands and after examining it, was handing it back when his chair tipped back and the weapon was discharged. "There is no question in the world," Pearson says, "that the shooting was accidental, and at the proper time and in the proper manner everything will be explained."

Pearson says he does not know where Walker's automobile was when he was shot. He says the lunch and beer can be explained.

Case Against Him Pending.

A verdict for $10,000 was returned by a jury at Hannibal last August in the suit of Addison T. Ogden of Louisiana against Walker, in which it was alleged that he attacked his stenographer, Miss Ethelyn Ogden, daughter of the plaintiff.

There was testimony that Walker had sent her to a sanitarium in St. Louis. Walker appealed to the Supreme Court without bond and the case is still pending. Attorney D. A. Ball, who represented Ogden, had an execution issued and levied on all the property of Walker he could find.

DEMOCRATS TO CONFER DAILY ON CAMPAIGN

Committee of Three Named to Conduct Business Arrangements for Primary.

Democratic members of the House of Delegates who are seeking nomination for the Board of Aldermen at the primary March 12 did not appear last night at the gathering of Democratic candidates and the Business Men's Conference at Lippe's Cafe and in consequence no mention was made of their candidacy in the discussion of campaign plans.

A committee of three candidates, Douglas W. Robert, Twenty-fifth Ward; George J. Schulte, Thirteenth Ward, and Daniel Seeger, Twenty-first Ward, was appointed on motion by Samuel Rosenfeld, chairman of the conference, to conduct the business arrangements for the primary and election campaigns. The committee was instructed to prepare 50,000 sample ballots for use in the primary campaign, on which the names of candidates not indorsed by the conference members and the Democratic City Committee will be scratched.

Secretary Fitzsimmons of the City Committee talked in favor of removing the list of men indorsed for Aldermen from the back of campaign cards that were decided upon by the candidates at a previous meeting. Fitzsimmons received no encouragement from those present, including many city committee members, and did not ask that his suggestion be adopted.

Chairman Rosenfeld said the campaign preparations were moving along without obstruction. Daily meetings will be conducted at noon at Lippe's until the primary, at which the candidates will confer with member of the Business Men's Conference and the City Committee.

DENVER, March 6.—A syndicate of Colorado capitalists today closed the $4,500,000 deal for the entire holdings of John T. Milliken of St. Louis in the Golden Cycle Mining and Milling Co.

The entire consideration is divided as follows: $1,500,000 for the Golden Cycle mine; $1,500,000 for the Golden Cycle mill and coal lands; $1,325,000 in cash in the Golden Cycle treasury; $40,000 in cash in the United Gold Mines Co. other companies and negotiable securities held by the Golden Cycle.

The Vindicator Co. in which the buyers are associated will pay for the mine in $50,000 notes as they fall due monthly. The earnings last year were $800,000 and in 1913, $650,000. If this rate of net profit is kept up for the next two years, the Vindicator will be able to pay for the Golden Cycle mine entirely out of its earnings.

Milligan Cannot Be Reached at His Home Here.

Milliken could not be reached by a reporter last night for a statement. Last week when dispatches from Denver told of the sale of his holdings, he said, "I have not seen any money yet."

GIRL SERIOUSLY STABBED; POLICE HUNT ADMIRER

Stenographer Says She Was Attacked in Quarrel Over Diamond Ring.

Miss Mamie Smith, 18 years old, a stenographer, was cut about the throat and seriously injured at her home, 2506A Palm street, at 7 o'clock last night. She told the police that she was attacked by an admirer, Gus Spilker, a shipping clerk, of 2914 Montgomery street. The police are looking for him. According to the girl's story, she gave Spilker a diamond ring, several days ago, to have it repaired. He called on her yesterday afternoon and she asked him to return it. She says he told her he would be back in the evening.

Because the girl's father, Charles C. Smith, objected to her receiving attentions from Spilker, Miss Smith says she met him in the yard outside the house. They quarreled and he seized her. She says they struggled for several minutes and that she fell. Then she felt a knife thrust under her left ear and screamed.

The father heard her cries and ran to her assistance. The girl's assailant fled. When Smith saw his daughter's condition he fainted.

The girl was helped into the house. Dr. A. L. Ellersieck dressed a cut wound four inches long and an inch deep on her throat. The knife severed some small veins, but did not penetrate a vital spot.

Spilker, according to his parents, came home for dinner and left the house at 6:16 o'clock. He returned a little after 7 and went away again after washing his hands. When his mother heard of the attack upon Miss Smith she went to the girl's home to express condolence.

About two years ago Miss Smith was married to a man known as E. C. Mittler. Her sister, Mrs. Dollie Fehring, who lives at the Palm street house, said this marriage was annulled.

EARTH SLIDE IN PANAMA CANAL

For Time Being Heavy Draft Boats Are Barred at Culebra.

PANAMA, March 6.—The Panama Canal has been closed to all but the lighter draft ships by a rapid slide of earth from the top of the Culebra Cut, at a point north of Gold Hill. A further slide is probable, but no serious tie-up is expected. The present channel is sufficient for navigation by ships with a draft of 20 feet. At one point the present channel is very narrow.

It is not likely that ships of 30 feet draft will be able to pass through the canal until the middle of next week.

TEN FINISH FIRST STAGE OF HEROIC DRUG HABIT CURE

Nourishing of Patients Back to Health Next Step in City Hospital Treatment.

Ten wretched, feeble, nauseated and disgusted men turned over on their cots in Ward 7 at the city hospital yesterday evening and groaned grudging cheers when informed that they had finished their medical course of the Lambert-Towne treatment for the drug habit.

"If I could get a shot of hop now," one of them remarked with an oath, "cure or no cure, you bet your sweet life I'd take it!"

An interne who heard him, smiled and remarked that the man would change his mind when, within the next few days, a little wholesome food had nourished the patient back to health, for then, in all probability, he would be free from all craving for the morphine that had enslaved him.

Of the 71 addicts who have applied at the hospital since the new Federal law, which makes it extremely difficult to obtain habit-forming drugs, went into effect, March 1, only the 10 have tried the Lambert-Towne treatment. It is a heroic cure. For at least 48 hours the patients have to undergo experiences that test their fortiude to the extreme. When it is completed, however, the victim who goes back to his old life does so voluntarily and not because of an abnormal craving.

Experiences Are Described.

Several of the 10 described their experiences to a Post-Dispatch reporter. The worst part of it, they said, was the sudden breaking off of the drug to which they had been accustomed. That was even worse than the effects of the belladonna and other substances in the remedy—and these were bad enough, all agreed.

The compound was given at first in hypodermic injections at half-hour intervals. The injections were followed by spoon doses of the same specific, sometimes taken every half hour. This dosing was kept up for 48 hours.

"I had hoped," said one of the men, "that after the first two or three 'shots,' I would be in a stupor. But I wasn't. I was fully conscious all the time. Indeed, I tried to sleep, but found it impossible to do more than doze. I tried to take food, but invariably it nauseated me. For the two days I have suffered from want of sleep and want of food and, most of all, from want of the drug I had been using."

"I feel like —— now," said another man, "but if I get to feeling better in the next day or two, you may be sure I'll never touch any dope again."

Felt Worse Than When He Came.

"I feel worse than I did when I came in," added a lame man, who confessed he had been using drugs for 15 years. "If I could get down on Market street, I know 200 drug users, and I'll bet I could get a shot from some of them."

The physicians explained this despondency on the part of the sufferers as due to their privations of the last few days. It will disappear, they think, along with the craving for drugs when nourishing food has built them up again.

Fourteen more addicts, nine of whom were women, applied for admission to the hospital yesterday, making a total of 56 in the hospital. Seventeen who have entered since Monday were unable to stick it out and departed.

Most of them have been taking the old, or "tapering off" cure. That is, they received their customary drugs, but in gradually diminished quantities. The drug is prepared in solution and, whenever a dose is given, the quantity removed is replaced by distilled water. After a time practically none of the drug is left in the vial.

The doctors believe that some of those who applied for treatment and went away after a day or so, were doing so to obtain the drugs there when they could not get them elsewhere. Each patient of sufficient strength may elect whether he will take the "tapering off" or the "Lambert-Towne treatment." None of the women have undergone the latter.

CHINA CONCEDES RAILWAY EXTENSION DEMAND OF JAPAN

Conference of Diplomats Agrees on 99-Year Period Asked for Manchurian Road.

PEKIN, March 6.—At the conference held today between Japanese diplomats and statesmen of China, the Chinese republic conceded an extension for a period of 99 years of the present Japanese railroad system in Manchuria.

The conference was one of a series inaugurated following the Japanese occupation of Kiaochau to discuss the demands made by her upon the Chinese republic.

China had been contending for the retention of a clause permitting her to repurchase the South Manchuria Railroad at the expiration of a period of 36 years from the date of the original lease of this line to Russia. The Chinese authorities are reluctant to grant to Japan requests concerning land ownership and trading rights. They are fearful that Russia would subsequently insist on similar privileges.

At the Chinese-Japanese meeting in Pekin, March 3, China extended to Japan for a period of 99 years the leases of the ports of Dalny and Port Arthur. The railroads of Manchuria came under the administration of Japan as a result of her victory in the Russo-Japanese War.

He became a Mason 75 years ago. He went to Sarnia nine years ago and lived with his niece, Mrs George R. McGee.

JOHNSON SURE DAUGHTER WILL WITHDRAW SUIT

Woman Who Filed Slander Action Against Stepmother Says She Has Not Decided.

Charles P. Johnson, former Lieutenant-Governor, said yesterday that he believed his daughter, Mrs. Louise Johnson, formerly Mrs. Ralph Jones, would withdraw the $40,000 slander suit which she filed Friday against her stepmother, Mrs. Anne Audrey Wilder Johnson, of 4300 Washington boulevard.

Mrs. Louis Johnson said her father had asked her to withdraw the suit, and that she might do so, but had not yet decided. The defendant is Johnson's third wife, and the plaintiff is the daughter of his second wife.

In her petition Mrs. Johnson alleged that her stepmother made remarks reflecting on her character June 15 and Nov. 15 last.

Mrs. Johnson said the slander suit petition was drawn up by her brother, Albert W. Johnson, whose law offices adjoin those of his father in the Navarre Building. After the papers were prepared another attorney was selected to file them and appear as attorney of record in the case.

Mrs. Louise Johnson divorced Ralph Jones, an automobile salesman, about a year ago and went to live at her father's home. A short time later her 5-months-old daughter, Louise Elizabeth, died there. One of her allegations in the slander suit is that her stepmother accused her of neglecting the child.

Members of the family say there was dissatisfaction when Johnson formally adopted his present wife's three children—Bernays, Carol and Andre.

Mrs. Louise Johnson felt that her father also should care for her and he gave her a monthly allowance.

Mrs. Louise Johnson told a Post-Dispatch reporter she had found it impossible to get along with her stepmother and for this reason she left her father's home.

20 MEN WORK TO RESCUE DOG

Rocks Fill Cave Opening as Fast as Dynamite Is Discharged.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Robert Washer learned that a silver fox had been seen near his home in Newton, N. J., and Friday, with two fox terriers and a shotgun, he went in search of the prize. The dogs trailed the fox to a cave with a small opening, but running far back into a hill. One dog went in and chased the fox to the entrance of the cave, where Washer shot it. The shot dislodged a ledge of rock which fell, and the dog was imprisoned in the cave.

With an expert in the use of explosives, and 20 other men, Washer went to the cave today to rescue his dog. As fast as an opening was made rock would fall further back. Thirty sticks of dnamite were used and still the dog was a prisoner. He could be heard barking and whining.

615 OUT OF 627 WRITERS WOULD FREE LEO FRANK

Letters From 14 States Give Views of Georgia Murder Case for Post-Dispatch.

587 ACCUSE CONLEY

28 Say Even if Evidence Looked Bad, Convicted Man Deserved Benefit of Doubt.

FIVE hundred and eighty-seven persons have written to the Post-Dispatch since last Sunday that they do not believe Leo M. Frank killed Mary Phagan. All these express the belief that the negro, Jim Conley, is the real murdered. Twelve persons express the opinion that Frank is guilty and should be hanged for the crime, in accordance with the jury's verdict.

Twenty-eight say the character of the evidence is such that, while the case against Frank can be made to look very strong, it cannot eliminate the reasonable doubt in the face of which no person should be convicted of a crime.

A total of 627 letters has been received at the hour this is written. They come from 14 states, extending from Iowa on the north to Louisiana and Texas on the south, and from Indiana on the east to Colorado on the west. Among the writers is represented every walk of life, showing the widespread interest in the case. All the letters are predicated upon the report, in two installments, in the Sunday Post-Dispatch of Feb. 21 and Feb. 28, respectively, by an investigator sent to Atlanta by this paper especially to give a fair and impartial account of Frank's trial and of the evidence offered by both sides.

Because of the unexpectedly large number of letters received, the Post Dispatch can reproduce excerpts from only comparatively few of them. But careful record has been kept of the opinion in each letter. Hundreds of writers have merely contented themselves with a declaration as to the guilt or innocence of the accused, without setting forth substantial reasons for their conclusions. The excerpts have been taken only from the letters that contained arguments of the case, for or against.

Frank's case is now in the hands of the United States Supreme Court, which is considering an application for a writ of habeas corpus in the defendant's behalf, on the ground that his constitutional rights were denied when he was not permitted to be in court when the verdict was returned against him. The decision turns wholly on a legal question and the case is not being considered on its merits. Following are excerpts from some of the letters.

By Henry C. Reigler, Lawyer of Little Rock, Ark., and member of the Arkansas House of Representatives.

I have carefully read the issues of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch of Feb. 21 and Feb. 28, concerning the Leo Frank case, and I wish to frankly state without prejudice or partiality that if the statement of facts as presented to the public by your paper are fully and impartially made as to both the State and Leo M. Frank, then there is no doubt in my mind as to Frank's innocence of this horrible crime.

If your statement of the evidence in this case is the same as that which was presented to the jury, then it is impossible for me to conceive how the jury reach the conclusion they returned.

In my opinion the theory advanced by the State as to Frank's connection with this crime absolutely proves that if the State's case is true, then it must be admitted that Frank is insane and not responsible for his acts. No sane man, however ignorant he might be, could have possibly taken the course to throw off his guilt as advanced in the acts of Frank in this case.

Claude E. Moss, Chief of Southwestern Detective Agency, Paris, Tex. After reading the impartial digest of the evidence for and against defendant, I am satisfied there was a gross miscarriage of justice. I have watched this case with intense interest from the time the murder was committed, and after a careful review of every scrap of evidence, I believe Leo Frank to be innocent of the crime for which he is sentenced to die. I believe Mary Phagan was murdered by the negro, Jim Conley, and there was no evidence produced, other than that of the drunken negro, to show otherwise. His actions, notes and past record connect him with the brutal crime in every way, and had the officers handled the case upon its merits, Conley would have paid the penalty long ago. Frank's trial was but a little short of burlesque—Frank stood convicted before he was ever tried—public sentiment, prejudice and police activity would permit nothing else. I cannot recall a single case in my section of the country where the word of a self-confessed drunken negro degenerate, outweighed that of a white man whose record from childhood is without blemish, and if Leo Frank is executed for the murder of Mary Phagan, there will be a stain placed upon the State of Georgia unequaled in the annals of justice.

William Preston Hill, St. Louis.—The verdict in the Frank case was clearly unwarranted by the facts and the evidence. Frank was the victim of a curious psychology. Many murders had previously remained undiscovered in Atlanta, when the people were thrown into a frenzy by the atrocious murder of the beautiful little girl. Then, in the excited state of the public mind, Frank became the victim of all sorts of false rumors and whispered insinuations.

E. R. Cheesborough, Postmaster, Galveston, Tex. The slips of paper intended as letters from the dead girl to her mother, admittedly written by Conley, convinces me more than anything else. The murder was the act of an ignorant, half-drunk brute. Assault and robbery were the motives. The murder took place in the basement and not in the metal room. The writing shows that Conley, knowing that the body would be found in the basement, in a blundering way attempted to direct suspicion against some negro whose description differed from his own. Later, finding that suspicion pointed to Frank, and fearing personal implication, Conley changed his original plan and

Views of Newspaper Men Who Investigated Frank Case Vary

By JOSEPH J. O'NEILL,
The Post-Dispatch Special Investigator Who Wrote the Impartial Report of the Trial and the Evidence.

THE Post-Dispatch sent me to Atlanta a month ago to make an exhaustive study of the case of Leo M. Frank—to talk to Frank, to dig into the records of the trial at which he was convicted, to learn the sentiment of Atlanta at the time of the trial and at the present time, and to write two articles, one giving the State's contentions, and the other presenting Frank's defense.

During a fortnight spent in the Southern capital I had many conversations with the young Jew who is making his last fight for his life. I got to know him very well, and, by reading the records of the trial and going over them with him, got to understand his case very thoroughly.

When asked now to write a definite answer to the question: "Is Leo M. Frank innocent or guilty?" the only reply I can make is, "I don't know."

I feel very certain that the young Cornell graduate did not have a fair trial. It is my opinion that he was doomed to conviction from the very start—and that opinion was formed from the admission of hundreds of citizens of various types in Atlanta. Nearly everyone there will tell you that they think he should have another trial, even though the majority of them still believe him guilty.

Had I been a member of the jury and listened to the testimony which afterwards I read, my vote would have been, unhesitatingly, "Not guilty!" That vote would not have been cast in favor of Frank, because I was convinced of his absolute innocence. I am not entirely convinced of that even now, after all my talks with him and all the delving into the reports of the case. I believe it is possible (although it seems hardly probable) that he did kill the little girl and got the negro, Conley, to help him dispose of her body.

I would have voted "Not guilty" because there was an overwhelming amount of doubt involved. The probabilities were at least as strong—if not stronger—that Conley did the killing and perjured away the reputation and liberty of his white employer to save his own neck. And the law says that the jury MUST give the defendant the benefit of any "reasonable doubt," and, where such a doubt exists, MUST acquit him. There certainly was enough reasonable doubt in this case to justify Leo Frank's acquittal.

Without the story of the negro, Conley, the State's case would have fallen absolutely flat. I find it extremely difficult, though not impossible, to believe Conley's story, and I do not believe that Frank dictated to Conley the so-called "murder notes." If he knew anything about the writing of them, he left the composition, as well as the actual writing, to Conley.

I do not believe that he was by any means proved guilty. I believe there is a strong possibility that he may be entirely innocent.

MOB CONVICTION SAYS KANSAS CITY STAR MAN

By Telegraph to the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 4.

I WENT to Atlanta with an open and unprejudiced mind, instructed by my paper to find out if Frank was innocent or guilty. If I had believed him guilty after the investigation I made I would have been as free to say so in the Star as I was to say that he is innocent. My judgment was taken absolutely in the matter. I was not instructed or influenced in one way or the other, except by the bald facts in the case.

No honest man, unprejudiced, and of sane judgment, can review the record of the Frank trial and not know of a certainty that Frank is innocent; that there was and is not any evidence that points to his guilt; or that even points the finger of suspicion at him; that the real murderer is a negro who gave the only testimony given against Frank; that the trial of Frank established beyond doubt the guilt of the negro; that the public and newspapers of Atlanta well know this to be true; but that the authorities and newspapers of Atlanta were goaded on by public sentiment and a mob spirit to the sacrifice of Frank, largely because he was a Jew accused of murdering a Gentile girl.

This racial prejudice and delirious public clamor for his sacrifice dominated the trial. Justice was hushed in the tumult of it. The jurors knew they would be lynched if they acquitted him.

It was not the evidence that convicted Frank. It was the mob and the speech of Solicitor Dorsey to the jury.

Dorsey spoke for three days. The speech was an appeal to the passions of prejudices of the mob which filled and surrounded the courtroom. The fury of that mob was seen and felt by the jurors. They heard its threats. They feared its vengeance if they did not convict Frank.

The Kansas City Star.

WRITER IN BALTIMORE BELIEVES FRANK INNOCENT

By Telegraph to the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, March 4.

MY investigation into the case of Leo F. Frank convinced me that he is innocent of the murder of Mary Phagan. I think the negro, Jim Conley, killed the child. Without attempting now an analysis of the case against Frank, I may say that the evidence, apart from Conley's testimony, was shot to pieces; and Conley's testimony, which differed from all of his four affidavits made prior to the trial, contains one item that shatters his own story.

Conley, according to his own testimony, drank a good deal of whisky and beer on the morning before the murder and carried a bottle of whisky when he went to the factory. He was in the condition which often is responsible for negroes' attacks on women. Every bit of material evidence from the time of his arrival there until the murder was discovered conforms to the theory of his guilt.

JOHN W. OWENS,
Baltimore Sun.

COLLIER'S CORRESPONDENT HOLDS FRANK INNOCENT

By Telegraph to the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, March 4.

I BELIEVE Frank innocent. I should never have taken any interest in his case otherwise. Conley's story is not only impossible of itself, it is contradicted by physical facts and a score of reputable witnesses. There is not a line of verbatim report of the testimony from the Coroner's inquest up to the verdict, outside of Conley's story, which, to the lawyer, has even the earmarks of evidence against Frank.

Before Conley's connection with the murder was known, there were circumstances which, in the inflamed condition of public mind, were suspicious. Upon these were built rumors which never had any foundation, but which convinced the public of Frank's guilt. The "murder notes" were merely an incident in the public mind at the time and were never seriously considered or correctly deciphered until after Frank's conviction. They were the real key to the crime.

Frank is the victim of one of these tidal waves of public sentiment quite natural under the conditions in Atlanta at the time, and possible under given conditions in any American community.

framed up the story he told at the trial. The negro did not know that handwriting differs. No sober white man of any degree of intelligence would seriously think of attempting to palm off the writing and diction of an ignorant negro as that of a white girl. The idea originated in the negro's own liquor-soaked brain. With an open and unprejudiced mind I have read the story as published in the last two Sunday issues of your publication and my conclusion is that Leo Frank is innocent.

William T. Richey, Cashier of First National Bank, Olustee, Ok.—I have just finished reading the impartial digest of evidence for and against Leo M. Frank, and I wish to say that I do not see how any 12 fair-minded men could possibly have convicted Frank upon the evidence given, and by such they solemnly swear to be guided. Possibly 999 other negroes having committed such dastardly crime would have flown, as Prosecutor Dorsey says, but could not there be one exception to this rule? Ah, yes, and there was. Conley is a very bright negro, so much so that the jury convicted the honorable Leo M. Frank upon his sole testimony. Conley would have long since swung from a very strong rope had this crime been committed in either Texas or Oklahoma, and Frank would be a free man. No 12 men in either Texas or Oklahoma would have rendered such a verdict against an innocent man, even had death been staring them in the face. There has never been a blemish on Frank's career; he is a noble, bright and high-minded man, and I sincerely hope the grand State of Georgia will wake up to this fact before it is too late.

By I. Landauer, Lawyer, Bank of Commerce Building, St. Louis.—Regardless of the guilt or innocense of the defendant, and basing an opinion on the facts disclosed by the Post-Dispatch's special investigator, is there an unprejudiced citizen of these United States who can truly say that Leo Max Frank had a fair and impartial trial by a jury of his peers as contemplated by the Constitution of the United States and of the State of Georgia?

The presiding Judge was so impressed with the contradictory evidence in the case that he is reported by the Post-Dispatch to have said in refusing the defendant a new trial:

> I have given this question long consideration and it has given me more concern than any other case I was ever in, and I want to say right here that although I heard the evidence and arguments during these 30 days, I do not know this morning whether Leo Frank is innocent or guilty. But I was not the one to be convinced. The jury was convinced and it is my duty to deny the motion.

When the jury was about to return their verdict the trial Judge called to his bench Luther Rosser, Frank's chief counsel. He had previously advised Rosser that he and the other lawyers and Frank himself had best be out of the courtroom when the pronouncement should be delivered. He had notified the local militia commander to have troops ready in case of a riot.

"You know what the verdict will be?" asked the Judge.

"Guilty, of course," answered Rosser, who told the story to the Post-Dispatch investigator.

"Yes, and if God had sent down His angels and they had told that jury that Frank was innocent, they'd bring him in guilty just the same," said Judge Roan."

Of course, the writer is not unmindful of the fact that there are several instances which, unexplained, look rathre bad for the defendant; for instance, Newt Lee, the night watchman, testified that Frank called him on the phone about 6:30 p. m. the afternoon of the murder, and asked, "Is everything all right at the factory?" and Lee testified that Frank had never called him on the phone before that time. Also,

Ten or twelve young girls, former employes of the pencil factory, were called by the State and asked these questions:

"Do you know the character of Leo M. Frank for lasciviousness?"

"Yes," they all answered.

"Is it good or bad?"

"Bad," they replied.

And the defendant's counsel didn't even cross-examine these young girls, and the reason given by the attorneys for the defendant to the Post-Dispatch investigator is absolutely flimsy from a legal standpoint, unless it be that these girls were telling the whole truth, and Frank's counsel thought it in the interest of their client not to cross-examine.

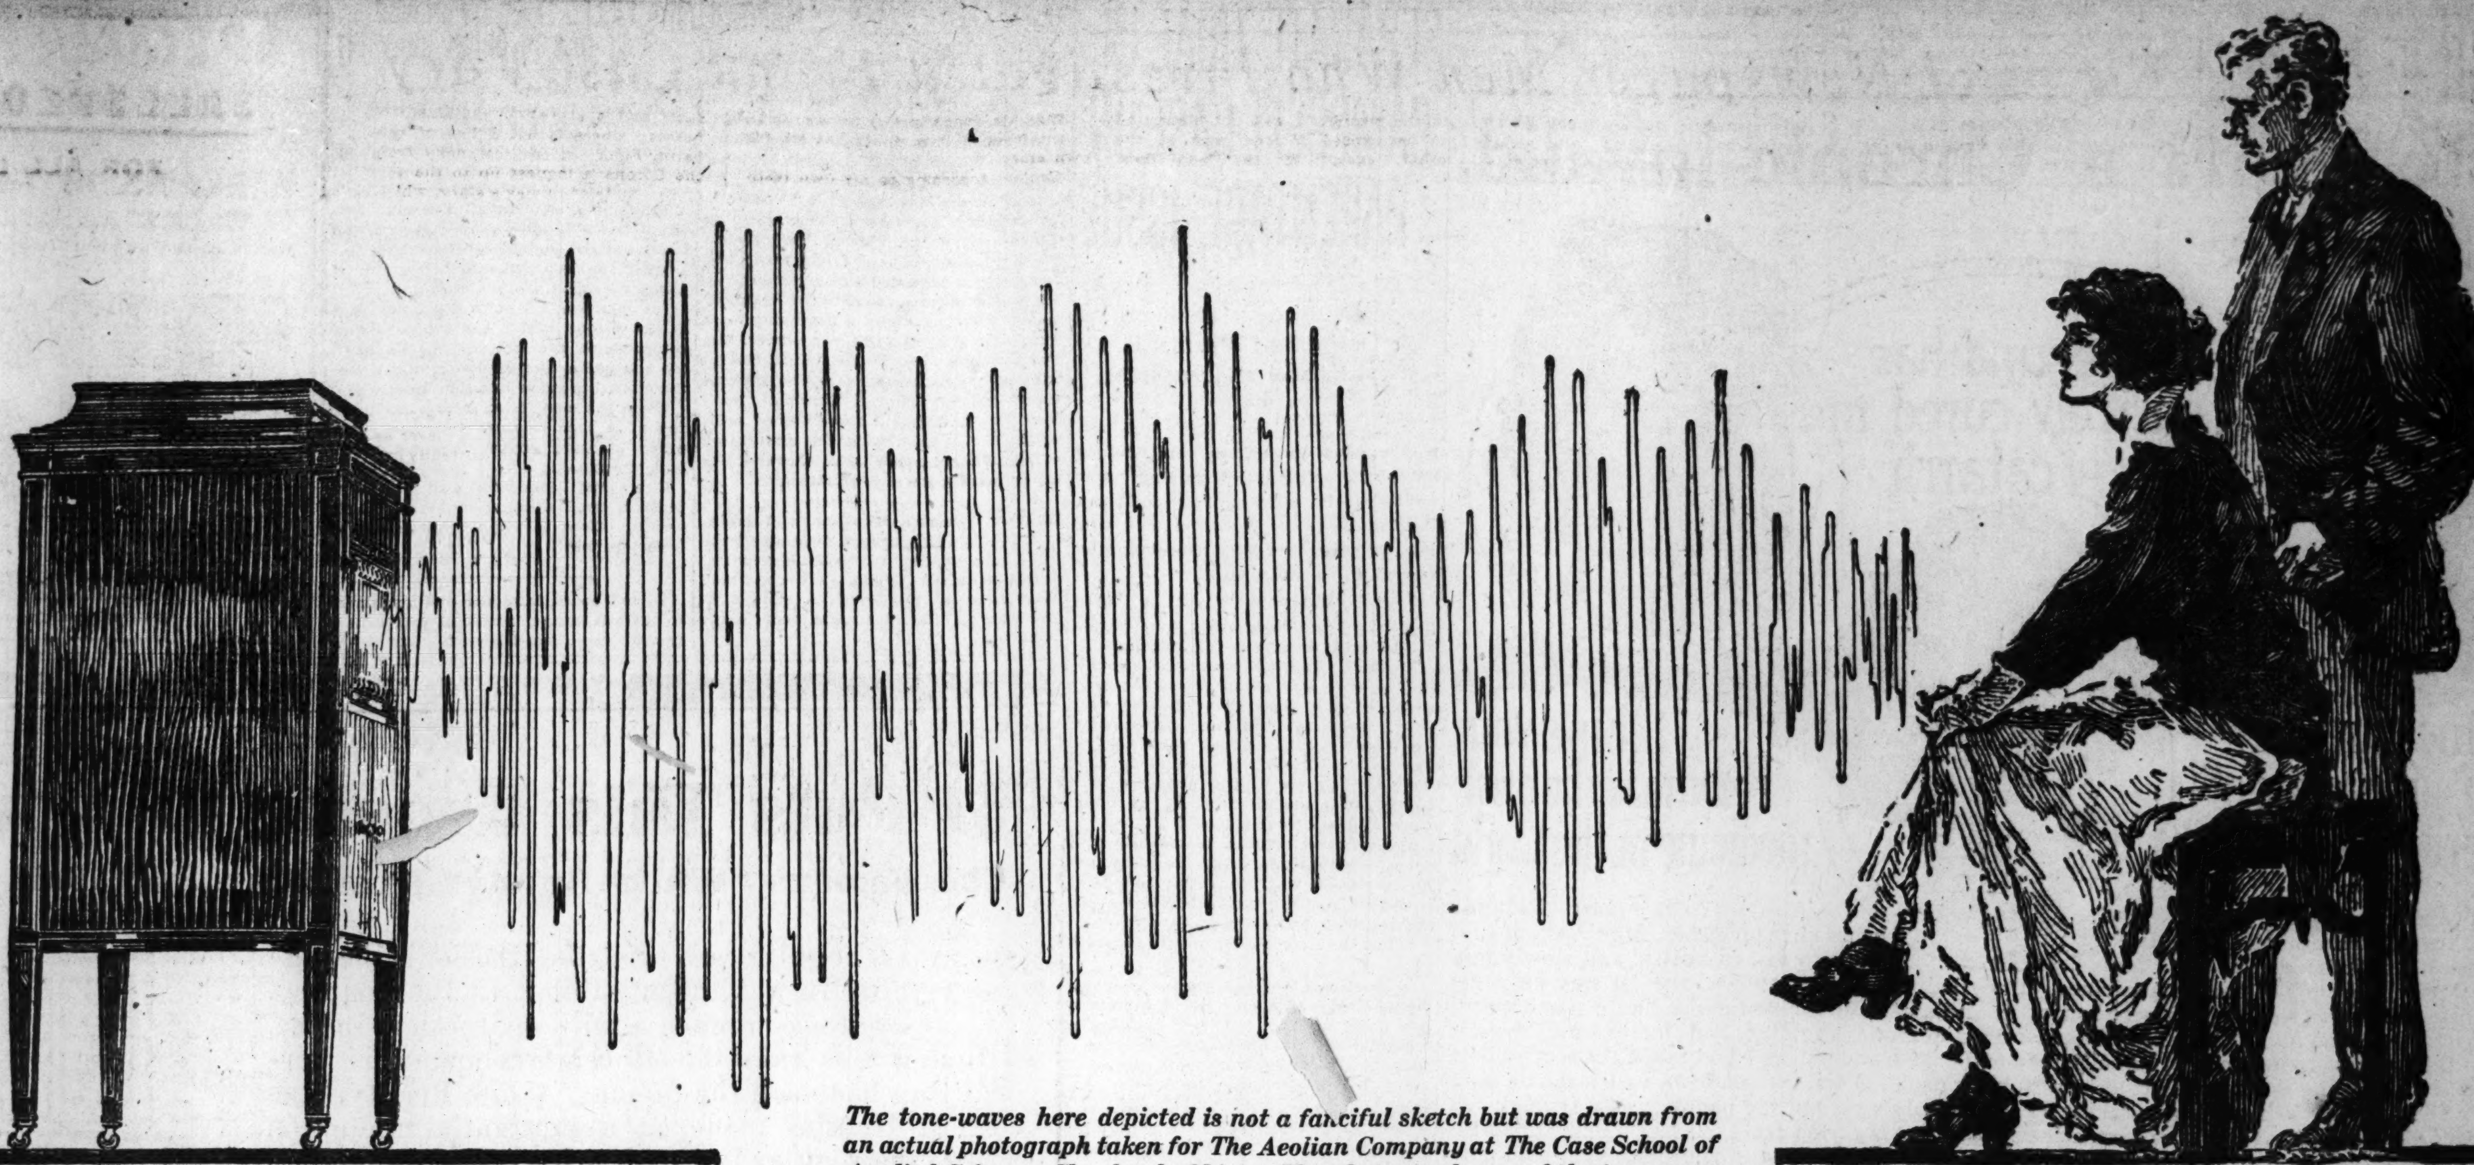
Martin Link, St. Louis. Solicitor Dorsey says: "You tell me that ever a negro lived on the face of the earth who, after having attacked and murdered a girl in that dark basement would have taken time to have written these notes!" But Conley did do it, for his confession is in both. "He pushed me down this hole," Conley's conscience dictated these words, while the dead girl lay before him. Why did he not hide the body? The second note shows why. He began to see things after he had killed her in the basement, for the condition of the body shows that Mary fought to her death in the cinders—spooks, "witch"—he became uneasy and betrayed himself in the second note. Does any sane man believe that negro carried the body on his shoulder as he states he did for Frank? There is not money enough in Georgia to induce one of the race to carry a dead body in that manner. This superstition kept Conley from hiding the body of Mary. Rather than touch that corpse he would fasten the guilt on others by writing the two notes.

F. A. Train, Blue Rapids, Kan.—I am fully convinced that Mr. Frank is innocent of this crime charged against him. He was found guilty from various reasons: First, he is a Jew; second, he employed white female help. These are the main reasons in my mind. The people of Atlanta worked themselves into one big, vast mob and wanted vengeance on someone. They wanted to see someone hanged or burned at the stake The one great crime in the South is to outrage some white woman.

George R. M[illegible]gee, St. Joseph, Mo.—There is, to be sure, some circumstantial evidence offered by the State of Georgia, but in the name of heaven, how could any jury say Frank was guilty? I believe in justice to all; therefore, by all means let the State of Georgia deal with this noted case with an eye single to justice. I am a laboring man.

Three Miles Of Autos,

HORSES AND VEHICLES, if they were arranged in a procession, are advertised in today's big REAL ESTATE AND WANT DIRECTORY.



The tone-waves here depicted is not a fanciful sketch but was drawn from an actual photograph taken for The Aeolian Company at The Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland, Ohio. The photograph was of the tone-wave created by the phonographic record of Tschaikowsky's "Marche Slave"

The Miracle of Sound

The time duration of the portion of the wave shown was 13/100 of a second and the instruments playing at the moment included violins, violas, violincellos, double-basses, flutes, clarinets, oboes, French horns, trumpets and trombones, with trumpets predominating. Here we see the physical means by which musical tones are carried through the air. Some sounding agent—a violin, a piano, a flute or phonograph—is set in vibration. This vibration produces sound, or tone-waves which travel at a velocity of about 1100 feet per second.

If the tone of the instrument is pure and simple like the flute, the waves it creates are almost smooth and symmetrical If complex like the orchestral tone shown above, the waves are exceedingly irregular and complicated. In any case, every different musical tone, whether simple or complex, produces its own peculiar and distinctive wave. And the wonderful thing is that when many instruments play at once, all their distinctive waves, merge into one wave, which enables us to hear all the different instruments and even to distinguish them apart.

There are few more interesting studies than that of the Science of Sound. While the general principles of this Science are taught in all text-books on Physics, there have been but few investigators who have achieved distinction in this Science, and probably not more than one or two who have specialized on musical tones. Moreover, it is a notable and significant fact that The Aeolian Company is the only business house that has carried on extensive research in this Science and applied its principles to the manufacture of musical instruments. The distinguished recognition accorded this Company's instruments both here and abroad, is largely dependent upon this fact. And it is due to The Aeolian Company's unparalleled equipment and experience that its latest production, The Aeolian-Vocalion, marks a new epoch in the field of the phonograph.

The Aeolian-Vocalion

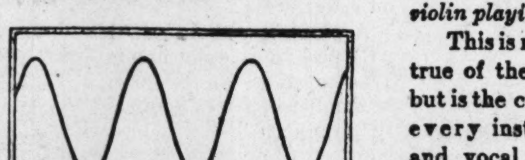
"A New Phonograph of Extraordinary Tone"

THE phonograph is unquestionably the most wonderful musical instrument that has ever been made.

A mechanism by means of which an inarticulate record can be translated into living sound; which can create from silence, as it were, the melodious tones of musical instruments, and the actual voices of human beings, is nothing short of miraculous. To the genius who invented the phonograph and those responsible for its present development should be accorded all praise.

But like every other great invention, the phonograph is subject to improvement and further development. And as it is practically a musical instrument, this improvement is first and foremost in the matter of its tone.

The Aeolian-Vocalion represents the development of the phonograph. It possesses several revolutionary features which make it virtually a new instrument. Among these, is a wonderfully effective method of artistic tone-control. Its most notable feature, however, is its extraordinary tone.



Tuning Fork

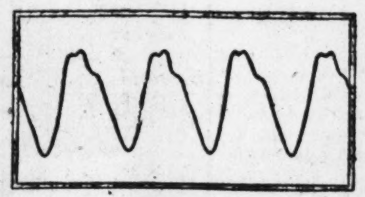
Illustration drawn from photograph of the tone-waves created by a scientifically mounted tuning fork. The absence of irregularities in the waves, or their symmetry, is due to the utter lack of partial tones in the tone of a properly mounted tuning-fork.

Strictly speaking, no phonograph has any tone of its own. One moment its tone is that of the violin, the next of the flute, or the clarinet, or the voice of the famous lyric soprano or operatic tenor.

To just the degree that the phonograph is able to reproduce the actual quality, or timbre, of these different tones without imparting any foreign quality of stridency or extraneous noises, does it approach perfection.

The Aeolian-Vocalion, in the matter of tone, is very nearly a perfect phonograph. When a violin record is played upon this wonderful instrument, one hears, not simply music, but a real violin playing.

This is not only true of the violin, but is the case with every instrument and vocal record. The musical tones produced are not only beautiful, they are characteristic. The tones of the flute have the pallid purity that distinguishes this instrument; those of the clarinet are plaintive and mellow; of the trumpet, full, pealing and military; of the trombone, grave and majestic. Human voices sound real and life-like, with never a question as to whether they are soprano, tenor or baritone, or as to whom they belong.



Flute

Illustration drawn from photograph of the tone-waves created by the note of a flute. The sligh irregularities in these waves are caused by the partials in the tone of the flute. There are very few of these, hence the flute is a comparatively "colorless" instrument.

Moreover when an orchestra record is played there is a wholly new sense of fulness and richness, due to the lower fundamental orchestral tones being, for the first time in phonographic reproduction, given their proper emphasis.

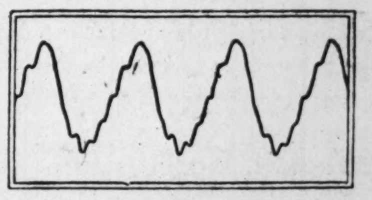
Those who listen to The Aeolian-Vocalion and hear these wonderful things, almost invariably ask in amazement the secret of its extraordinary tone.

The answer may be given in a word—it is due solely to the fact that The Aeolian-Vocalion is the most scientific phonograph that has yet been produced.

And in the last analysis it is strictly a matter of science. The phonograph that is able to deliver from its horn, the most scientifically exact counterpart of the tone-waves created by people singing or playing, is the best phonograph.

No concern in the music industry is so well equipped both by experience and means at its command, to build such a phonograph, as The Aeolian Company

This great Company has for years been scientifically developing musical instruments. It maintains elaborate departments of research both here and abroad. In its employ are the most able musical and mechanical experts in the music field. In addition, it has access to probably the most famous laboratory in the world for acoustical research, and the co-operation of one of the greatest scientific investigators and authorities on musical tone.

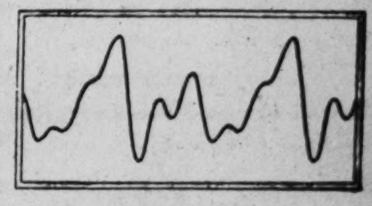


Violin

Illustration drawn from photograph of the tone-waves created by a note of the violin. The distinctive quality and character of the tone of every instrument is dependent on the number and character of its partial tones which are all represented in the peculiar irregularities in the tone-waves it forms.

The Aeolian-Vocalion is more than simply a new Aeolian instrument for commercial exploitation. Its production actually marks an epoch in the development of the phonograph, and as such is a matter of general public interest.

The Aeolian Company recognizes this and in consequence extends a cordial invitation to all, to hear this new instrument, without regard to any question of purchase. Demonstrations will be given at all hours during the day to those who visit Aeolian Hall for the purpose.



Human Voice

Illustration drawn from photograph of the tone-waves created by the human voice, saying "ah." There were 10 partials observable in this tone, consisting of a fundamental and 9 overtones. The voice is particularly rich in partials some having in their lower registers, 25 and more.

Those who are considering the purchase of a phonograph, however, will do well indeed to see The Aeolian-Vocalion before making any selection.

For the information of such, it may be said that this instrument may be obtained in any one of a variety of beautiful models costing from $90 upwards.

Easy monthly terms of payment may be arranged and allowances will be made on other phonographs in exchange.

Nine Years a Chronic Invalid.

"Peruna has entirely cured me of catarrh."
Mrs. W. Neukam, Almyra, Ark.
Mrs. W. J. Bryanton, Cincinnati, O.
"Peruna cured me after nine years of lingering poor health."
Mrs. Effie S. King. Johnstown, O.
"I think your Peruna is the best medicine in the world."

Mrs. William Neukam, R. F. D. 2, Almyra, Ark., writes: "Peruna is a sure cure for chronic diseases. It has cured me after nine years of lingering poor health. Nine years ago I commenced to fail in health, and slowly got worse. I tried all kinds of patent medicines. They helped me for a while, then it was the same thing again. I was so weak, had severe headache, and stomach troubled me so badly that I could eat nothing but bread and boiled milk. Then I tried doctor's medicine, and finally said I wasn't going to take any more medicine. I finally read of Peruna, and before I had taken the second bottle I felt stronger, and commenced to do my work as usual. I was so run down that it took a long time to effect a cure. When I began taking Peruna I only weighed 110 pounds; now I weigh 127 pounds and do all kinds of work, as I am a farmer's wife. My head feels so clear, and my appetite is good. I will be always thankful for the good Peruna has done for me. I am thirty years old now and feel better than I did at twenty. My case was catarrh of the stomach and systemic catarrh."

Other Women Rescued From Hopeless Ailments.

Mrs. Effie S. King, R. R. 1, Johnstown, Ohio, writes: "Peruna has entirely cured me of catarrh. I shall always speak in the highest praise of Peruna, and cheerfully recommend it to all."

Mrs. W. J. Bryanton, 509 W. 7th St., Cincinnati, Ohio, writes: "I followed the directions you kindly gave me, and now I find myself entirely cured. I think your Peruna is the best medicine in the world."

Mrs. Lizzie Haynes, 1418 Centerville St., Winston-Salem, N. C.: "I had cough, night sweats, loss of flesh, rapid breathing. I became very weak. Tired at the least exertion. Had to quit work. My friends who had given me up tell me how well I look. I tell them the whole credit belongs to Peruna. It was the remedy that cured me."

Mrs. L. Martin, Yolo, Cal.: "I had what the doctors called typhoid pneumonia. Sick three months. Very low and weak. All remedies failed to build me up. Peruna cured me in a surprisingly short time. I am sure Peruna saved my life."

Mrs. S. E. Henderson, Pollocksville, N. C.: "I had what people called cancer of the stomach. Indigestion, bleeding of the gums, complete prostration. Peruna cured me in three months."

Mrs. Marie A. Starr, 6712 Parnell Av., Chicago, Ills.: "I am seventy-nine years old. Used to be troubled with a dull, sickening pain in the forehead. Catarrh was the cause of it. I got no relief until I used Peruna. I am a well woman now."

Mrs. Mary E. Gray, R. R. 37, Union City, Ind.: "I had a bad case of catarrh of the head. Peruna cured me. I have two sons. They sometimes catch cold and have a cough. I always use Peruna. Peruna did wonders for my husband, who had a stomach ailment. He recommends it to all. You are at liberty to use this testimonial in any way you please."

When Tires Go Wrong

Remember There's a Better Road Above You

Goodyears Mean Content

By going wrong we don't mean tires' universal fate. All tires wear out in time. All makes will yield to mishap or misuse. We would not have you pass snap judgment on a tire.

We mean inherent weakness. We mean skimped quality. We mean faults which Goodyear ways avoid.

When you meet such trouble-makers, take the road above you. It is occupied now by hundreds of thousands to whom Goodyears brought content.

Vast Difference

Between a Goodyear Fortified Tire and the best of its rivals there's a wide, wide spread.

Goodyears combat rim-cuts in the most efficient way. They combat blowouts and loose treads by exclusive, costly features. One of them—our "On-Air" cure—costs us $450,000 yearly.

For safety's sake, each Fortified Tire has 126 braided piano wires vulcanized into the tire base. And our All-Weather tread—tough and double-thick—combats punctures and skidding as does no other tread.

How Can You Hesitate?

Note the place which Goodyear holds—the highest place in Tiredom.

Note its users and endorsers—more than any other tire ever had.

Note its growing prestige. Last year men bought 1,479,833.

Are you fair to yourself when you fail to prove out what is known to so many as the super-quality tire?

Reduction No. 3

On February 1st we put into effect our third reduction in two years. The three total 45 per cent. Yet we retain every costly and exclusive feature. We are spending $100,000 yearly to discover other betterments.

You will find that they average best. They mean less trouble, less cost per mile. The place they hold would be impossible without that. Our extra features would be folly.

SEPARATE TRIAL IN CAMPBELL CASE ON PARENTAGE ISSUE

Judge Kinsey Says It Must First Be Determined Whether Lois Was Financier's Daughter.

Whether Mrs. Lois Ann Burkham is the daughter of the late James Campbell, millionaire broker and public service magnate, was made the leading issue in the Campbell will contest case by Judge Kinsey in the Circuit Court yesterday.

The Judge ruled that this issue must be tried separately and first. The case is docketed for March 22.

If it is decided that Mrs. Burkham is Campbell's daughter, the will contest will fall through and the other issues in the case never will be tried, because proof that Campbell left a direct heir would invalidate the claims of the nephews and nieces who are attempting to have the Campbell will set aside.

Judge Kinsey's ruling sustained a motion by attorneys for the heirs named in Campbell's will, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Burkham and St. Louis University. It was opposed by L. Frank Ottofy, counsel for the contesting nephews and nieces.

In handing down his verbal opinion, Judge Kinsey said he believed the question as to whether Lois was Campbell's daughter should be submitted to a jury. He did not change his view on this point when several attorneys for the Campbell interests told him they did not believe a jury trial would be necessary.

Ottofy asked the Court for permission to take Mrs. Campbell's deposition at White Sulphur Springs, Va., next Friday. It finally was agreed by counsel that her deposition will be taken in New York on that day if her health will permit it. If not, she will come to St. Louis to make the deposition March 17.

GOMPERS SPEECH BARRED ON UNIVERSITY CAMPUS

Students of Pennsylvania Institution Hear Him in Hall, Then Censure Educational Authorities.

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—Barred from addressing students of the University of Pennsylvania in Houston Hall, on the campus, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, spoke at a student meeting in St. James Hall today.

Expressing amazement and condemning the action of the university authorities in curbing the right of free assemblage and free speech, Gompers said:

"Has it come to this, that in the great University of Pennsylvania, a man who is a man can't be heard for the cause which it espouses? Has it come to this that in this great seat of learning, in the Keystone State of our Union, that even posters announcing a meeting at which a public discussion is to be heard are to be torn down and that the official publication will steadfastly ignore that there is going to be such a thing as a public meeting at which a lecture is to be delivered?"

After the meeting the students drew up resolutions censuring the Pennsylvanian and the university authorities for their attitude.

LOBBYISTS EXPECT TO ESCAPE INQUIRY AT STATE CAPITAL

Grand Jury Adjourns Subject to Foreman's Call Without Calling Any Witnesses.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 6.—Indications today pointed toward an escape of the legislative lobbies from a grand jury investigation. The grand jury, which was instructed by Circuit Judge Slate to investigate violations of the anti-lobby law, has adjourned subject to the call of its foreman, Charles E. Dewey, without hearing any witnesses who sought to give information of the lobby.

Although Dewey has not indicated when he will call the jury together, it is considered probable that there will be no further meeting until after the adjournment of the Legislature.

The reason given for the adjournment of the grand jury was that the weather was so bad that farmers could not reach town and that it was difficult for the jury to get the attendance of witnesses.

The witnesses desired for an investigation of lobbying, however, have been in town at all times. Representative Becker of Polk County has had several conferences with Prosecuting Attorney Peters and has been ready to tell of the activities of the lobby, particularly of the railroad lobby.

'BOUQUET' OF APPLES TO SINGER

Mrs. Champ Clark Passes Missouri Fruit Over Footlights.

WASHINGTON, March 6. — Mrs. Champ Clark has distinguished herself by being the first person in Washington, if not in the United States, to pass apples over the footlights to a prima donna. Big Missouri apples, partly concealed in a bed of roses and violets, were presented to Mme. Ossip Gabrilowitsch after she sang her last number at a concert given by herself and husband, the Russian pianist, yesterday afternoon.

The audience thought the token to be simply the usual one of flowers, but hidden beneath their fragrance were huge red and yellow fruits, grown in the Missouri county in which lived Mark Twain, the father of the prima donna, who before her marriage was Clara Clemens.

MAN KILLED, TWO OVERCOME BY GAS IN BRICK CLAY PIT

Workers Returned to 75-Foot Level of Shaft Too Soon After Setting Off Blast.

Angelo Montevani of 5146 Shaw avenue was killed by gas in a clay pit at the Hydraulic-Press Brick Co., King's highway and Northrup avenue, Friday afternoon, and John Beresheim, 4559 Cadet avenue, and Joseph Porochela, 5120 Daggett avenue, who also were overcome, are at St. John's Hospital.

The men had set off a dynamite blast at the 75-foot level. It is supposed they returned to the bottom of the shaft too soon after the explosion and before the dynamite gases had time to escape.

When the men failed to give the usual tug at a rope to show they were safe other laborers entered the shaft and took them out.

Fire Chief Henderson and Dr. L. A. Millikin used a pulmoter in an unsuccessful effort to restore Montevani to consciousness.

JOERN'S THROWING HELPS C. A. C. WIN MUNICIPAL TITLE

South Side Basket Team Defeats Turners in Deciding Game, Score 34 to 23.

FINAL CONTEST MONDAY

Result Will Cut No Figure in Title—Victors to Play Intercity Matches.

The Columbian Athletic Club basket-ball team annexed the local Municipal League title by defeating the North St. Louis Turners, 34 to 23, in the second contest of the three-game interdivision series, at Louisiana Hall, last night. The C. A. C. five won the opening game of the series from the Turners by a smaller margin last Thursday night. Despite the fact that the championship is now settled, the third contest will be played at Louisiana Hall Monday night.

As a result of their victory, the South Siders will be awarded a post-season junket, on which they will play a two-game series with the West Side Y. M. C. A. team at Chicago and probably games in Cleveland and Peoria. The team will play the Central Sunday School champions for the local basket-ball title on the 15, 18 and 20 of this month.

Outside of a short but spirited spurt by the losers in the second half the Columbian five easily outclassed their opponents throughout. The team played an excellent brand of basket-ball on both the deefnse and the offense. The losers did not perform up to their usual standard until very late in the contest.

Joern Scores First Goal.

The first half was entirely in favor of the Columbian quint. About two minutes after play had started, Bill Joern drew first blood for the winners by tallying with a goal after foul. Marquard, the Turner center, evened the count by also dropping a free throw in the net. The champions then went ahead but were tied in the same fashion. After this, however, the blue and white-jerseyed team, by making a brilliant succession of five field goals, went into the lead, 12—2. The C. A. C. team was never headed after this.

Marquard broke the ice for the Turners by netting another free goal, but the North Siders could not stop the onrush of their opponents. The half ended with the score, 19 to 7, in favor of C. A. C.

In this period the only goal from the field scored by the Turners came near the end of play when Kreuger put the ball in the net.

Shortly after the resumption of play, the Turners seemed to hit their stride and, for a time, outplayed the South Siders. At the three-quarters' time the score was 28 to 21, but Von Dach, Joern & Co. once again got started and easily romped away. The final score was 34 to 23.

There was little rough play in the game and only on a few occasions did players take time out for bruises. Referee Bob Thomas ran the contest in faultless manner.

In the first preliminary game of the evening the Commerce quint won a hard-fought game from the Battery A five, 13 to 10. The second fracas resulted in a 27-to-4 onslaught for the Central Y. M. C. A. over the Crescent A. C.

About 500 persons were present.

Johnson Puts Over Kayo on "Kid" Frenchy

By Harry S. Sharpe,

Leo Johnson of New York City, introduced from the ring as the "colored lightweight champion of the world," and who has been referred to as "Joe Gans the Second," was the star performer of Sam Dixon's aggregation of negro boxers at the Future City Athletic Club last night.

Johnson was opposed by "Kid" Frenchy of Louisville, Ky., a strongly built fellow and a fairly clever boxer. For four rounds Johnson played with him, and then, acting under instructions of his manager, went out in the fifth round to end matters. Feinting a few times with his left hand and letting it go for light punches, Johnson soon saw an opening and sent a terrific straight right-hand punch to the jaw and Frenchy crumpled to the mat. Prior to this Johnson had put Frenchy to the mat several times, but when the latter arose Johnson obligingly gave him time to recover. Johnson is a fast and clever boxer with a hard punch.

Johnson was to have been opposed by Leo Patterson of Joplin, Mo., but the latter failed to arrive in time, and Frenchy was substituted. Johnson and Patterson will meet next Friday night.

In the semi-final, Earl Murphy was awarded the decision over "Kid" Sweet of New Orleans, after eight rounds of farcical boxing, most of the time being consumed by the boxers in galloping about the ring, first one and then the other in pursuit. This afforded much amusement to the spectators.

Referee Sam Dixon stopped the preliminary in the fifth round and awarded Lawrence Hawkins a decision over Benny Hall. This bout was distressingly slow, and the only excuse for handing down a decision at all was because Hawkins led a few times oftener than Hall.

About 200 spectators witnessed the show.

SPORT SALAD BY L. C. DAVIS

Mary and Her Lamb.

(Passed by the Irrational Board of Nonsensors.)

MARY had a little lamb,
She kept it in the attic,
Which goes to show that Mary was
A maiden quite erratic.

She was a most precocious child,
Albeit quite informal;
It always made her parents wild
To see her so abnormal.

This little lamb loved Mary so
That it refused to bite 'er;
Although its fleece was white as snow
And, some say, even whiter.

It followed her to school one day
To take a course in German;
It made the children laugh and play
To see a lamb called Herman.

In course of time this little lamb
The children got to buttin';
And when it turned into a ram
They turned it into mutton.

Pikers Lose in Closing Basket Game of Season

Washington University closed its basket ball season last night, losing to Missouri at the Francis Field gymnasium, 29—24, before a crowd of about 500 followers. The game was not nearly as rough as the one Friday night and a new referee—Waldman of the M. A. A.—was in charge. Waldman is used to handling games under A. A. U. rules and called many more fouls than a collegiate referee would have.

The trimming last night was the seventh of the season for the Pikers while they gained only one victory—that over the Tigers last night.

Coach Krause's aggregation was the first to score, when Modisette counted on a free throw shortly after the game started. Weir, the Missouri forward came right back though, and tied the score. After the Tigers got out in front they were never headed.

Weir and Modisette were the big stars of the game. The Tiger counted 25 of his teams' 29 points, while Modisette scored 20. The game terminated in a great free throwing contest shortly after it opened, with Weir having a slight edge on his rival. Out of 4 tries, Weir counted 19 free throws, while Modisette's record was 16 out of 21. Missouri scored only five field goals and Washington four during the game.

The line-ups:

Missouri (29).	Position.	Washington (24).
Weir (25)	Right forward	Busick-Phillips-Sprick
Williams (2)	Center	Modisette (20)
Palfreyman	Right guard	Berry (2)
Speelman	Left guard	Milford

Referee—Waldman. Time of halves—20m.

Carrigan Declines to Claim the Pennant Although Admitting Mack's Team Is Done

WILLIAM CARRIGAN.

By W. J. O'Connor.

WHEN first you focus your optics on Bill Carrigan's iron jaw, outjutting from a thickly-set, concrete neck, you conjure up a composite picture of Attila the Hun, the Messina earthquake, Jim Jeffries and other world disasters. You picture Bill at breakfast eating a dish of wire nails as a cereal, with more substantial food in the form of crushed horse-shoes in the offing.

But presently Bill speaks. Each word comes to you in a voice well modulated and musical. And then he's got you dead. The shock of getting something you didn't expect almost stuns. But you recover speedily, and surreptitiously start an ocular investigation to determine on which wrist William wears his watch.

Carrigan is about everything you don't expect. As one would deduce from the ring of his monaker, he's Irish, with the map of County Cork delicately traced over his fascinating mug; but he's a college man, and everything rough and tough seems foreign to his nature.

But enough about Carrigan. On with the story, which is about Carrigan's team. A ballplayer is identified by his team, and Carrigan's happens to be the Red Sox, who passed through on their way to Hot Springs Friday evening.

Mr. Carrigan Relaxed.

Now, there are upwards of a million free-born American voters who think that the Red Sox will win this year's pennant. So we hied ourself to the Union Station and snatched an interview from Carrigan, between soup and the cigars.

It was our intention to ask no foolish questions. The moth-eaten: "Who do you think will win the pennant?" was absolutely taboo. All we wanted to know was where the Red Sox would finish.

Carrigan was affable and indulgent to a degree. He left his bride of two months in care of Owner Joseph J. Lannin and prepared to be catechised.

"What effect do you think the loss of Baker, Collins, Bender and Plank will have on the Athletics?" was the opening shot.

Carrigan was very deliberate in answering. He was watching a man dishing out cigars at a counter a few feet away. But presently he answered:

"If that fellow took all the good cigars out of his case, do you think he would do any business? That's the way the Athletics appeal to me now. The punch went with Collins. Baker can be better spared than Bender and Plank. The team is only a shell, and I cannot regard it seriously."

"What about your own team?"

Wagner Has Recovered.

"Well, I have virtually the same ball club, except that Charles Wagner expects to play short. He suffered last year from what appeared to be water on the elbow. He's recovered now and I expect to have him in there the greater part of the season.

"Let me say more about Wagner. You fellows didn't appreciate him when he was in the box score every day. True, he got heaps of complimentary notices after he withdrew, but that appeals to me like the foolish stunt of saying everything good about a man after he's dead. I hope they say a few nice things about me that I can read myself.

"However, I expect Wagner to be a big help. I have signed Bill Sweeney, and he, too, should help my club. 'Dutch' Leonard's arm—it was the right one—is mended, while the players to a man are otherwise in good shape. I think my team will be improved over last year."

"But who have you got to beat?" we asked.

"Well, Collins has helped the White Sox a great deal. Detroit has a good ball club and—this isn't bull—I like the Browns. Rickey had them playing ball last year, and I expect more trouble from him this season.

"They're never going to take your team here seriously until they win a pennant, but my hunch is that Rickey will slip in there before he's in the league very long."

"Do you think the addition of Baker would make the Browns a contender?" Carrigan was asked.

"Easy. Baker is a star and one man often makes a ball club. But I figure the Browns in the first division without Baker. With him, of course, they'd be a contender."

How the Dope Works.

This ended Carrigan's talk and left one to figure out the next A. L. race for oneself. And these facts presented themselves:

Last year the Red Sox, off to a bad start, finished second, 8½ games behind the Mackmen. The Athletics don't figure this year.

The Washington club trailed Boston, 10½ games to the rear. Griff doesn't seem to have strengthened, perceptibly.

Detroit was full 10 games behind the Red Sox at the windup. This team, with Cobb in there regularly, may be a more stubborn foe.

Perhaps, too, Collins can close up the gap of 22 games that yawned between Chicago and Boston at the end of last season. Perhaps!

But of Carrigan's team let it be said that he has seasoned pitchers in Leonard, Collins, Foster, Wood, Gregg, Ruth, Shore and Cooper, with good youngsters in Comstock, Scott and Mays.

Wagner, if he returns to his old form, will be an invaluable prop to the infield. The team has a batting punch in Speaker, Hoblitzell, Hooper, Gardner and Cady. If it doesn't improve it figures better than any club in the circuit, but it figures to improve immeasurably if Wagner returns.

Therefore, be it resolved, That the A. L. race at this distance looks like a one-club affair.

Carrigan said Friday night that he felt the Athletics slipping, last season.

"They weren't hitting," said Bill, "and although I had neevr seen the Braves, I kept in touch with Stallings' club through Heine Wagner, who bummed around the Braves' park. Wagner came to me two weeks before the season closed. 'How are the Athletics hittin'?' he asked.

"I told him rotten.

"'Well,' said he, 'the next world's champions will be housed in Boston.' Two weeks later his prediction was verified."

CURLEY AGREES TO TRANSFER JOHNSON BATTLE TO HAVANA

Promoter of Juarez Match Now Puts Championship Fight Up to Jess Willard.

(Copyright, 1914, by Press Pub. Co.)

HAVANA, Cuba, March 6.—It is now squarely up to Jess Willard whether the world's championship fight between himself and Jack Johnson takes place in the near future. Jack Curley, who promoted the original affair, scheduled to take place at Juarez, has cabled Willard asking his consent to fight here.

Curley was unable to convince Jack Johnson that it would be safe for him to enter Mexico. The champion was not afraid of arrest, because a Mann act violation is not an extraditable offense; but he feared Carranza would hold him for ransom, if not on entering Mexico, then on departing. He also felt some hot-headed Texan at the fight would pop him when beating Willard, a feat of which he feels absolutely sure.

He said if Juarez were the only available place he would go; but he insisted that Havana will prove better financially to the promoters and offers freedom in every way.

Johnson told Curley he would return the advance expense money rather than go to Mexico. He is plentifully supplied with money, diamonds and two motor cars.

In his training Johnson looks fairly well. He ridicules the idea that any living man can hold his own with him. The negro is ready to fight Willard here the first week of April.

Local people have made us a bonus which Curley accepted and he now awaits the acceptance of Jones and Willard. If the fight is settled here, the racing meet will be extended two weeks.

When the report reached here from New York that a white and a black man could not meet in the ring, Senators called on Johnson and presented a statement signed by them that positively there is no racial question here.

Johnson today wired a ticket to Bob Armstrong to come on to assist in his training.

RESTA CAPTURES VANDERBILT CUP IN EXCITING RACE

Winner of Grand Prix Drives Same Car to Second Victory Over Frisco Course.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—D. Resta, driving car No. 9, in which he won the Grand Prix last Saturday, today captured the 300.30 mile Vanderbilt Cup race over the course of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, in what is said to have been one of the most thrilling contests ever run in this American automobile classic.

His time was 4h. 27m. 37s. He maintained an average of 67½ miles. Howard Wilcox, No. 26, was second in 4h. 34m. 36s.; Eddie Pullen, third, 4h. 35m. 37s., and Ralph de Palma, No. 22, fourth, time 4h. 39m. 7s.

Others cars finished as follows: Fifth, William Carlson; sixth, C. R. Newhouse; seventh, Barney Oldfield; eighth, Louis Disbrow; ninth, Hughie Hughes; tenth, A. H. Klein.

It was a heart-breaking race from start to finish. The pace set by the winner subjected the cars to a terrific strain so that long before the finish less than half of those which answered the starter's call were left in the runnnig. Every few minutes cars went to the pit for repairs.

Upsets Frequent in Race.

Upsets were frequent, owing to the fact that the track became slippery from oil drippings. Notwithsanding this, only one serious accident occurred when Bob Burman's car turned completely over on a right-angled turn. His mechanician, Joe Cleary, received a broken thigh and may be internally injured.

Resta, coming up from the ruck, was second at the finish of the tenth lap, being led by a trifle more than a minute by Alley No. 2. In the twentieth lap Resta went into the lead, which he held to the end. The card of Ruckstall, No. 6, who was running a good safe third and seemed assured of that place, met with a mishap at the seventy-second lap, pushing Wilcox into second place.

Pullen, who made a game fight for second place, was nosed out after the seventieth lap by Wilcox. Pullen was a favorite with the crowd, his daredevil drving bringing forth applause throughout the entire race.

DORSEY GETS DRAW WITH MATTHEWS IN 8 ROUNDS

"Bant" Dorsey, the Albany lightweight and Pierce Matthews boxed 8 rounds to a draw in the feature bout at Post Hall, Jefferson Barracks, last night. About 400 boxing patrons witnessed the show, which was the first ever held at Jefferson Barracks.

In the semi-windup, "Young" MacKenzie, of the Twenty-third Infantry and "Kit" Carson of the Twenty-seventh, went six rounds to a draw, while the curtain raiser between Jack Morse of the Eighteenth Infantry also was declared a draw after four rounds of milling.

Sox Seconds Defeat Frisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—Pitchers Ross and Couch of the San Francisco Coast League team went wild in the seventh inning today in a game with the second team of the Chicago Americans with the result that seven runs were piled up by the visitors. Final score was 8 to 5 in favor of the Chicagoans.

FIRST STATE GOLF EVENT FOR WOMEN WILL OPEN MAY 31

It Will Take Place in Conjunction With the Men's Missouri Championship.

BELLERIVE TO HOLD IT

Simultaneously the Glen Echo Club Will Run Off the Men's Title Tourney.

A state championship golf tournament for women, the first in the history of Missouri, will be played on the links of the Bellerive Country Club at Normandy, beginning May 31, and continuing to June 5. Simultaneously, on the Glen Echo Club's course, the State golf championship for men will be in progress, with starting and finishing dates coinciding.

This announcement was made by Secretary Bonner Miller of the Missouri State Golf Association, following a meeting at the Racquet Club, at which all the local clubs were represented. The arrangement was made after correspondence with out-of-town associations and caucuses had been held with the Women's Golf Association of St. Louis.

The men's tournament will be managed by a committee which will be made up of the following gentlemen: Jesse L. Carleton, chairman; Sterling Edmunds, Norman Jones, Dr. John Rule, G. H. Walker, George Mix, H. W. Loeb, Andrew McCreery, Cecil Bangman, T. B. Entz, F. M. Canter and Bonner Miller. A number of changes in the handling of the tournament were announced as follows:

Whereas, one man formerly handled the starting, seven will be in charge this year, three in the morning and four after 1 p. m. Of these four, two will act as starters, one will receive cards and one will post the scores.

After all the cards of the qualifying round have been turned in the committee will make the pairing for the next round of match play according to the numerical system.

The rules of the United States Golf Association will govern, except where modified by the Board of Directors and committee.

Women's Committee Named.

The women's tournament will be in charge of the following ladies, named on the committee by the delegates at the Racquet Club meeting: Mrs. Charles W. Soudder, chairman; Mrs. E. Lansing Ray, vice-chairman, and Mrs. Sterling Edmunds, secretary. They were given authority to name other ladies from the various clubs to serve on the general tournament committee.

A joint committee composed of Mr. Edmunds and Mr. H. Allen, representing Bellerive, and Mr. Carleton, representing Glen Echo, was appointed to arrange the program of social and entertainment features.

The committee was instructed by the board of directors not to permit any golfer to start on the qualifying round later than 4 o'clock p. m. The board also instructed the committee not to accept any entries which may arrive in the hands of Secretary Bonner Miller, later than 8:30 p. m. of Friday, May 29.

This is being done because of an innovation which will receive its first trial in this tournament. Each player participating in the event will be given a badge with his name and the club he is representing printed upon it. This decided upon so that the players will more easily get acquainted with one another without the formal introduction.

Mr. Edmunds announced that W. F. Cutler would present to the Missouri Golf Association for the ladies' tournament a silver trophy cup to be known as the women's team trophy. Teams composed of four members from each club will have a contest on qualifying day, the one with lowest total medal score made in the qualifying round will be awarded temporary possession of this prize, and the names of the winning team engraved thereon, the cup to be held until the next annual tournament. It will be played for annually, becoming the property of the club winning it three times.

Mr. George Mix announced that Maschmeyer and Richards would present the association for the ladies' tournament a silver trophy cup to be awarded in one of the classes.

Jones to Use Four Twirlers in Game Today

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HAVANA, Cuba, March 6.—Manager Fielder Jones of the Terriers intends to use four pitchers in the game against the Almendares team here tomorrow. Edgar Willett, Dave Davenport, Eddie Plank and Bob Groom, all veterans, are the flingers, who will be given a chance against the local stars. Chapman and Hartley will labor behind the plate.

With the contest with the Havana Reds scheduled for today postponed following a telegram from Pat Moran, manager of the Phillies, Jones' squad was forced to remain idle, when rain stopped the clash with Marsan's picked aggregation.

Commenting upon the right of Moran to have the battles postponed, Jones would only state: "Poor Pat, has an ax to grind." The Havana Reds depart tomorrow for the States, where they are booked to play 60 games.

Bill Borton, the first sacker, who was injured in practice Thursday, when he was hit on the knee by a batted ball, will be in the lineup tomorrow, as he has completely recovered from the injury. The players took a five-mile walk to Jack Johnson's training camp this afternoon.

BILLIKENS DEFEATED BY WARRENSBURG NORMALS

WARRENSBURG, Mo., March 6.—The St. Louis University basketball squad lost its second straight game to the Warrensburg Normals here last night, 34—21. The accurate passing of the local quintet was too much for the Billikens to overcome. When the first half ended St. Louis was out in front, 15—14, but the Normals completely outplayed Koegan's aggregation in the closing chapter.

RICKEY'S HURLERS YIELD ONE SAFETY IN FIRST VICTORY

Hoch Allowed That, but the Only Runs Were Made Off Loudermilk —Browns Win and Lose Games.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BEAUMONT, TEX., March 6.—Branch Rickey's Brownie Yanniga under the chaperonage of Bobby Wallace, the veteran shortstop, won the first exhibition game of the season by defeating the local Texas League a gregation here today, 6 to 2. The two counts for the locals came in th last inning.

Although Branch Rickey had Grover Loudermilk, the big right-hander, who forms one-half of the Browns' $30,000 battery from the Louisville club, in the South a full week in advance of the regulars, the big fellow showed a great lack of control in the three innings he worked.

In fact, by his work against the local aggregation, Loudermilk seems to be the same twirler he was when he was given several trials with the Cardinals—a regular wild man from Borneo, and a great strike-out flinger. Loudermilk hurled the last three rounds, and although he did not allow a hit, he passed five batters and hit another, while he whiffed six men.

The three hurlers used by Manager Wallace—Loudermilk, Hoch and Cochran—allowed only one bingle, a single by O'Donnell, the local catcher, in the sixth frame off Hoch.

Alexander Works Nicely.

Three Brownie recruits—Alexander, Stevenson and Walsh—showed up to good advantage. Alexander was the catcher when Loudermilk worked on the firing line. The Coast League recruit, who is getting his second chance to break into the big league, handled eight putouts and two assists cleanly, but failed to make a hit.

Stevenson, the youngster from South Bend, although a third-sacker, showed at short and covered lots of ground. He accepted four of his five chances cleanly. Dee Walsh, the St. Louis boy, put up a nice game at the three-quarter station.

Hank Severoid, the receiving end of the $30,000 battery, who swatted .317 in the American Association last year, failed to make a hit off the two local twirlers. He labored in right field and behind the bat and accepted four put-outs and one assist.

Derrill Pratt worked at first and handled everything that came his way cleanly. He also was the batting hero of the game, connecting for three wallops, one of them a double. Ernie Walker also played a stellar role with the willow. Walker cracked out two triples, while he also made a sensational catch of Robinson's liner in left field, robbing the latter of a sure triple.

Rickey's Squad, Houston Division, Is Given Setback in Opening 1915 Game

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 6.—The first full-dress rehearsal of the 1915 baseball season, staged here today, resulted in a 2 to 1 victory against the Browns and in favor of the Buffaloes. The triumph came just about one minute ahead of a drizzling rain and four minutes ahead of darkness.

Two years ago, when George Stovall, now Federalized, was bossing the Browns, the Buffs took two games from the men under contract with Hedges.

The mere fact that Branch Rickey is now in charge of the forces did not deter the aspirations of the Buffaloes. One Gerald Davis felt so elated over his recovery from a recent illness that he committed larceny at three stations and featured himself in the batting end of a successful squeeze play, Mowry scoring when the bunt bounced off the props of Lavan.

The Browns made their first threat in the first inning, nicking Glenn for a pair of safeties after two men had been retired. It was up to Kauffman to distinguish himself as a pinch-hitter, but Glenn wheeled his old groove ball into position and Kauffman fanned.

The Browns made their only run in the sixth. Gus Williams soaked a single to center and when Kauffman did likewise, Gus moved to third. Lee bunted to Edmondson and while Roger was engaged in throwing Lee out at first Williams reported at the counting station.

A good-sized crowd witnessed the performance and if the weather is good Sunday afternoon, ground rules will be in order.

Pitcher Glenn, by the way, is the youngster who set the Texas League afire the latter part of the 1914 season. The Browns have a very healthy respect for him tonight.

Rickey discussed the showing made by the recruits today. Taking them up in the order in which they appeared in the lineup, Rickey said that Pownall showed signs of rapid development. Clemens, the leading swatter of the Texas League last year, looks fast to the Browns' manager, but he has not seen enough of his work yet to pass judgment.

"Kauffman is a wise infielder," was his comment on the man who guarded the first station today. Lee was nursing a sore arm today, but made a satisfactory showing.

Rickey has not changed his mind abou Ruel, the St. Louis amateur. He caught pretty game, but needs more weight. Rick says if he had 20 more pounds averdup "he would make all the catchers in t League take care of their jobs."

Shotton occupied a sun box at toda game wrapped in a heavy overcoat. He st has his pain, but both Dr. Lawler a Manager Rickey say it is not serious a he will be ready to resume work in a day two.

Roche's Arm Coming Around Nicely; Cards Are Given Two Stiff Workou

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 6.—Miller Huggins would not allow the Cards to go downtown this afternoon to see Cleveland defeat the Broncos, 7 to 4. He put his crowd through two workouts that made them yell for help before it was through.

The boss loosened up tonight, the Cards accepting the invitation of the Grand Opera House management to see the play, "September Morn."

Huggins said tonight that Roche's arm is coming along nicely. He is not allowed to do much work, as it is not good policy to force it. Roche is taking extremely good care of the wing and the sulphur baths are helping it amazingly.

The squad is limbering up rapidly through the hard work. Several days of summer weather have brought the men along almost too fast in some cases. Huggins probably will declare a holiday tomorrow afternoon to permit the boys to see the Cleveland-San Antonio game.

A cool norther blew up late this afternoon and with it a light shower.

KERN ONLY LOCAL A. B. C. WINNER IN FOURTEEN YEARS

T. LOUIS NIGHT MARCH 29

ound City Will Be Well Represented at Peoria Tenpin Championship.

St. Louis tenpinners have had lit- success in making high marks in rollings of the American Bowling ngress since the first tournament as held in 1901. In the 14 tourna- ents St. Louis has captured only vo championships—an individual d an all-events.

Martin Kern, who was rated one the very best bowlers in this city, til he was forced to quit on ac- ount of illness, gave St. Louis the hampionships in 1904, when he won he individuals with a 647 score and aptured the all-events with 1804. Kern counted 536 pins in his five- an match, came back with 621 in he two-man and wound up with 647.

That is the only time that St. Louis as owned a leader; but the local in topplers are confident of doing ell in the fifteenth rolling of the owling classic, which starts in eoria, Ill., next Wednesday. This ty will be represented by 28 five- an teams.

Tournament Second Largest.

Fourteen alleys have been built by he Peoria tournament committee in he Coliseum of Peoria, and they will e brand new when the Leisy Juniors, with 14 teams, officially open the econd largest tournament held since he A. B. C. inaugural. The entry list his year owns 512 five-man teams. The record was made at Buffalo in 914 when 596 quintets competed.

The first squad takes the alleys t 8:30 o'clock opening night. This will wind up the bowling for the irst evening.

The St. Louis bowlers, or those xpecting to create some new records t the Peoria meet, will have to do ome starry bowling. In 1913, the lor de Knispel five of St. Paul set he five-man record. The mark 1304 made in 1909 by Schwoegler d Schwoegler in the two-man is ll high. Tom Haley of Detroit in 10 put the individual mark at 705, ile Ed Herrmann with 1972 hung the best all-events score in 1913.

Local knights of the alleys figure ey will have a better chance to first money in several of the nts this year than ever before, as stars of this city will bowl on e last two days of the tournament. n former years the local stars gen- rally bowled with the first squads.

A "Big Night" March 29.

The big night for St. Louis at the urnament will be March 29, when x local five-man teams will occupy e drives. The Hyde Parks, one of e best quintets in the city, will try r leading honors on March 28, while e Budweisers, Burks, Alpen Braus d others roll March 29. The Hyde rks and Budweisers, if they roll to their records in league matches, em to have the best chance of any the five-man teams.

Another quint, which should make a cred- able showing, is the Washington-De Soto ne team, captained by Morris Clary. The nion Sodas, Cabanys, Falstaffs and Fi- litys are other good local fives, that will mpete.

Jerry Ameling and Con Fuerman, two of Louis' ablest pin topplers, will try for o-man honors on March 30, the last day the tourney. Brace Jarrett, Jules hmitt, Morris Clary, Vandewater, Utley, lker, Masson, Ferguson, Menne, Pflue- r, Schuttenberg, Houser and Beresford are er "hopes" for St. Louis in both the -man and individuals.

he Martin Feilhauers, captained by Rob- Meinhardt, will be the first local five try for a record. The teams is com- ed of R. Meinhardt, Hippe, Weber, Fink, Meinhardt and Pitts. National League Race Not to Be Walk-Over for Boston Team

Giants and Cardinals Still Strong

St. Louis Club Should Be Improved Through Men Turned Over to Huggins by Cincinnati and New York —McGraw's Pitching Staff Is Sounder.

By John E. Wray.

THOSE fans who are convinced that the Boston Braves are going to walk away with the National League race, this season, may have to revise their opinions ere the schedule is half gone. Recent developments make it probable that New York will be stronger than last year, while the Cardinals, supposed to have been put out of the running by the Feds, are expecting first aid to the injured, shortly, of a sort to restore the team materially.

Strengthened by a hard-hitting outfielder, the man who drove in more runs than any other in the National League, Sherwood Magee, the world's champions of 1915 appeared, during the winter stove league period, a certain pennant winner.

Since that time it has developed that Bill James may not play at all or will enter the arena discontented; while Johnny Evers is said to be in a bad way from the effects of an attack of pneumonia and may not round to before midseason, if at all.

Besides this, it may be mentioned that it is by no means certain Red Smith's broken "prop" has mended. A broken ankle is one of the most stubborn hurts that an athlete can suffer. Several noted players have been absolutely ruined by similar mishaps, notably Harry Lumley, the once great Brooklyn slugger. It may be, therefore, that Stallings will find himself without a third sacker of big league caliber.

Stallings, too, will be minus several fair substitutes who served him royally in pinches last year, notably Third Baseman Deal, Outfielder and Utility Man Whitted and Outfielder Mann.

The cumulative effect of all these handicaps is considerable and may really knock the Braves out of a pennant look-in.

Giants Have Improved.

The loss of these two men would seriously cripple the Braves. This year, too, the Bostonians will be facing no over-confident, over-fed, backsliding champions. New Yorkers assert that this year's Giants will have the following advantages over that of last season:

A great pitcher in Perritt, in place of an ordinary hurler, Demaree.

One of the best third basemen in the game, Lobert, instead of a makeshift.

A captain and second baseman entirely recovered from an auto injury, Larry Doyle.

A great pitcher, minus the Jinx that last year cost him many games, Marquard.

An outfield considerably improved by the development, late last season, of a heavy hitter, Robertson.

An improved mental attitude on the part of the entire team which will hustle instead of rely on its past reputation.

They are counting out Christy Mathewson; but forget it. Matty will come back quite as strongly as the team, unless previous seasons are no criterion. They have been arranging epitaphs for the old boy for several years; but he has always made good. McGraw will have that bunch fighting hard from the beginning.

The Braves, at their best, will probably have to step faster than last year to win.

Cards and Dodgers Strong.

Other teams will make the contention hotter for this season's Bostonians, among them the Cardinals. When Wingo, Perritt and Magee quit the Brittons to go to the Feds it appeared that the crack third place outfit of the year before had been bent badly. Now, however, the return of Wingo and Perritt to the big fold gives Huggins trades with Cincinnati and New York which should net the team at least two good players—an outfielder and a pitcher.

The Cards have a great pitching staff. With some hitters coming from the Giants and Reds, the team will afford considerable resistance to the Braves.

The Brooklyn club was a stone in the path of the Stallings' machine, last season, being the only club to take a 22-game series from the world's champions, 13 to 9 being the tally.

This year the Dodgers should go well; and, although the club has lost Slugger Dalton, it may be expected to figure in the resistance afforded the Braves in their rush for the title.

George Stallings thinks Bresnahan will lead the Cubs into the contending position, second place, and fears the Chicago outfit more than any other in the league, he is quoted as saying.

Cubs Will Miss Leach.

However, take that with a grain of salt. Bresnahan has some good pitchers and catchers; two good infielders in Zimmerman and Saier; and a bunch of old 'uns and no accounts in the outfield. Frank Shulte is the only Cub gardener of merit and he's waning. Good, Johnston, Cy Williams, etc., are the others. Leach, a great attacking unit, is lost this season.

Cincinnati, Pittsburg and Philadelphia are negligible factors, all having been terribly weakened. But, for the matter of that, they were weak last year and will not cut a much worse figure this season. New blood may even improve them.

Pat Moran, if he picks up some hitting strength, has good pitchers; and that's the backbone of a new club. Minus the famous "Riding Club" rounders who, as members of the team for several years, ruined one of the strongest outfits in native power that ever assembled, perhaps the Phillies will do better, even if the material is weaker.

On the whole, there is reason to believe that the National's race this year will be more even than last year; but that it can prove to be more interesting or more surprising is impossible.

SOLSBERG OPPOSES ONLY BOXER THAT EVER FLOORED HIM

Kid Sullivan Will Be Hard-Hitting Bantam's Foe in Future City Feature.

By Harry S. Sharpe,

Referee for the Future City A. C. and the Post-Dispatch's Boxing Authority.

A good bout is in prospect when Johnny Solsberg meets "Kid" Sullivan at the Future City Athletic Club on next Tuesday night. The boys have agreed to make 118 pounds ringside, and have posted $50 each for weight and appearance.

Solsberg is well known to local followers of the boxing game and last season was a reigning sensation, but since his return from the East this season he has not been doing quite so well. He has lost decisions to "Dutch" Brandt here and to Monk Fowler and Eddie Herman at Memphis, Tenn. These are all fast boys, but if Solsberg had been going at the clip he was a year ago it is doubtful if the margin would have been so great. Solsberg appears to have changed his style to the extent of sacrificing some of his speed, in an endeavor to develop a harder punch. In his bout with Fowler, Solsberg was outpointed, but near the close of the last round he landed a punch that would have won for him had it been landed earlier. Fowler was saved by the bell.

Sullivan Drops Solsberg.

Sullivan is no stranger to Solsberg. They both come from Brooklyn, N. Y., and boxed each other 10 rounds before the Broadway Sporting Club of that city on May 2 of last year. On that occasion Sullivan accomplished what no other boxer has—knocked Solsberg down. This happened twice in the first round, the first time for the count of seven, and the second time for nine. Solsberg was saved from a knockout by the bell.

Sullivan, an Italian, whose right name is Steve Tricamo, has been seen in St. Louis before and made a very favorable impression. On his first appearance here, Oct. 20, 1914, he boxed Eddie Lennon of San Francisco at 118 pounds at 3 p. m., and the bout was stopped in the third round to save Lennon from a knockout.

Two weeks later Sullivan was matched with Bobby Burns of Dallas, Tex., at 116 pounds and was the winner on points. He then met Monk Fowler, on Dec. 1, at 122 pounds and lost the decision. The margin was not great, but Sullivan ruined his chances by clinching and holding and hitting while holding, for which he was penalized. It was an exciting battle, with Fowler having a pull in the weights of about four pounds.

Sullivan Defeats Wallace.

After his bout with Fowler, Sullivan left for his home in Brooklyn and has since boxed 10 rounds each with "Kid" Taylor and Eddie Wallace, both of whom are looked upon in the East as featherweights of exceptional ability.

The bout between Sullivan and Solsberg should be a good one because they are very evenly matched. They are clever boxers and straight punchers. Neither resorts much to hooking and swinging. If they refrain from unnecessary clinching, the bout should be an excellent exhibition of straight scientific boxing and hard hitting.

Larry English, formerly a police officer of New York City, and Gabe Gulart of Alton, Ill., heavyweights, will appear in the semi-final. This will be their second meeting. On the first occasion, April 28, 1914, English was the winner by a knockout in the sixth round. Prior to this Gulart had made Kingdon Belmont quit in the fourth round, on Feb. 27, 1914, and on April 14 of the same year he had knocked out "Sailor" Charles Fleming in the third round. For the past year he has been boxing in the West and is said to be greatly improved. He is reported to have recently defeated Jack Geyer. The latter is the boxer who scored a knockout of "Gunboat" Smith in the ninth round in the year 1911, after having been previously outpointed by Smith in a six-round bout and boxing the Sailor a 10-round draw afterwards.

English, who will oppose Gulart on Tuesday night, made his last appearance here Nov. 13 of last year before the Coliseum A. C., when he was outpointed by Frankie Hoe of Indianapolis.

"Bant" Dorsey of Albany, N. Y., and Johnny King of Chicago will appear in the preliminary bout at 133 pounds, and this should prove to be almost, if not quite, as interesting as the bout between Solsberg and Sullivan.

Dorsey started off here by winning from Al Gilbert of St. Charles by a knockout in the first round on Dec. 15 and on Jan. 19 he knocked out Jeff O'Connell of Birmingham, England, in the fifth round. He was outpointed by Mel Coogan on Feb. 9.

ST. LOUIS U. WILL HAVE ALL-VETERAN NINE, THIS SEASON

Baseball Work at Four Local Schools Will Be Begun the Present Week.

The baseball season of 1915 will be officially introduced to all university diamond performers of this city tomorrow afternoon.

At the close of school hours tomorrow St. Louis' four collegiate coaches will assemble the candidates for the school nines at the college gymnasiums or, if the weather permits, the campuses.

The fact that St. Louis and Washington Universities, Christian Brothers' College and Concordia Seminary are arranging attractive schedules for the coming season presages the liveliest baseball season enjoyed in local collegiate circles for some time.

There already has been scheduled two local inter-school series. The Washington and St. Louis U. teams will meet in three contests, the dates of which are yet to be decided. Three battles also have been scheduled between the Concordia and C. B. C. nines. These games will be played on May 29, June 5 and June 9. The two series should undoubtedly be the feature of the local school diamond season.

Concordia After Big Game.

Concordia is at present dickering with both the St. Louis and Washington Universities clubs for games. As yet no reply has been received. A meeting will be held at St. Louis U. this week to decide if contests should be granted to the embryo ministers. It is thought that the Pikers and Billikens are balking because of the series with C. B. C. Both schools look down upon an athletic fusion with the gold and purple institution. Therefore the only hope of settling the local collegiate title is in the event that Washington and St. Louis will meet Concordia.

Washington U. has two games scheduled with the Kansas Aggies to be played here May 27 and 28. Two games are agreed upon with the Cape Girardeau Normals, but the dates have yet to be set. Edmunds is trying to arrange a trip on which a number of the neighboring secondary schools will be played.

Chinese Team Coming.

Local enthusiasts will have the opportunity of seeing a team composed entirely of Mongolians when the Chinese University of Hawaii calls here for a game with Concordia on April 24. The theologians also will be pitted against the Rolla Miners here on May 22. A number of other games now tentatively agreed upon will be announced this week.

Outside of the Washington series the Billiken authorities have not closed any dates. However, Arkansas and Beloit have each asked for a contest, while McKendree and Shurtleff each petition two.

The schedule of the C. B. C. team is not yet completed. Besides the Concordia games, Beloit College will call here April 1; three games will be played with the Cape Girardeau Normals, two with McKendree College and one with the Missouri State Normals. Others will also be arranged.

Judging from material on hand with which the coaches have to form nines out of, Keogan of St. Louis has the best of the bargain. The Billiken mentor will have the team that represented the blue and white school last year intact. Lill, Le Masters and Jenkensen will do the twirling; Rhode will again be behind the bat; while Brinkop, Schmandt, Maguire and Adams will play their old positions, first, second, short and third base, respectively. Schmandt is the youth who was offered a contract by the Browns. Mohr, Capt. Whittwer and Thomas will again be out for the gardening jobs.

Hoerr a Piker Reliance.

Hewitt and Rollie Hoerr may be depended upon to do the pitching for Washington. "Pogo" Lewis is again in line to catch. Half of the Piker infield will be back. Hensky at first and Milford at short. Meinholtz will be the sole veteran outfielder. Bob Thomas will act as coach.

Lynn, pitcher; McCracken and Hart, catchers; Patterson, first; Quinn, shortstop; Gallagher, second; Donohue and Murphy, outfielders, will be the veterans to report to Coach Callahan at C. B. C.

Schlueter and Pete Schmidt, pitchers; Weinhold, catcher; Manager Bode, first base, and Ed Schmidt, fielder, are the letter men who will form a nucleus for the Concordia nine.

Collins' Hits Turn Trick.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 6.—Eddie Collins, with three-baggers and a single, today, was chiefly responsible for the Chicago Americans' 8-to-2 victory over the Los Angeles Coast League team. Score:

CLUB.	T.	H.	E.
Chicago	8	15	2
Los Angeles	2	9	0

WRAY'S COLUMN

That Pari-Mutuel Wave.

THE pari-mutuel wave, although in no way related to the marcel wave, except in Gallic ancestry, is similarly engaged in putting a big crimp in mankind. That fraction of the dear old public interested in "following the ponies" is affected.

The pari-mutuel is now being presented to various State Legislatures as an etherialized betting system, equipped with a full celestial plant of wings, harp and halo, which is supposed to denature the gambling end of the racing game and protect the public.

Instead, an expert of 25 years' experience told the writer the pari-mutuel is more apt to create a strong activity in the community's poor farm, chiefly because of the "breakage" system now in use.

The pari-mutuel, in the rough, is simply a pooling of all wagers on a race, and a subsequent division of the total among the bettors on the winning positions, according to the number of persons wagering on the successful horses—5 per cent being deducted for operating the machines.

After "Breakage," You're Broke.

BUT if your ticket happens to call for $10.59, do you get it? Nix. You get $10.50. ANY FRACTION OF 10 CENTS REVERTS TO THE TREASURY of the "machine." This change is called "breakage" among followers of the turf.

Thus, if 10,000 wagers were made during a day's racing, the "breakage" might theoretically run as high as $900—which is a pretty good rake-off. An average breakage for the same number of wagers would be $500.

Added to the regular deduction of 5 per cent, it will be seen that, in a 40 days' racing meet, the kitty might conceivably eat up a considerable proportion of a bank-roll.

Here's a Man Worth While.

ABOUT 100,000 persons who have directly profited by the efforts of Park Commissioner Dwight F. Davis to put men rather than grass in the St. Louis parks, will regret his passing as the head of the park system.

Since Mr. Davis came into the office the following supporters have been won over to him annually:

Holders of city tennis permits	10,000
Holders of public golf permits	4,000
Members of municipal athletic teams	3,000
Patrons of public swimming pools	30,000
Patrons of playgrounds	30,000
Users of park baseball diamonds	20,000

Mr. Davis' efforts in behalf of outdoor development have directly benefited this number of persons annually. Some of the figures are obtained from records kept in the Park Commissioner's office.

Mr. Davis and his associates have set the pace for the entire country in MUNICIPAL athletic development. The "St. Louis system" today is an object of outside municipal study. St. Louis' appropriation for the purpose, too, ranks twenty-fourth in amount as compared to other cities of the country.

Only recently Chicago appropriated $140,000 for improving municipal swimming facilities. Remember this, and then consider that a $10,000 TOTAL APPROPRIATION for public recreation here was not granted.

"It's all wrong." Perhaps, though, it explains the coming retirement of Mr. Davis.

The Sporting "Comeback" Is Here.

THIS is the year of the "comeback," for taboo sports. The three popular pastimes which, at various times, have been mauled more or less fatally by the militant reformer, racing, boxing and football, are now winning their way back to general recognition.

Recently the announcement was made that Columbia University athletic committee had recommended the restoration of the college football game, which was wiped out there several years ago when the "brutal sport" cry was heard in the land.

California is now about the last outpost making a stand against the great college game, and even there the support of rugby is none too strong.

Whereas the reform wave once swept the greatest of all personal contact sports from the map in many places for a time, few traces of the old rancor against the game is in evidence. This comeback is now permanent, a transformation it took eight years to effect.

Back to the Doggies.

NINE years ago the tidal wave of of unpopularity rolled up against crooked racing and wiped it out within a space of two or three years, from one end of the country to the other. Kentucky was at one time, the only active racing center.

Now horse racing is conducted almost the year round on United States soil, meetings are held in New York, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Colorado, Washington and at border points like Fort Erie and Juarez. Havana is a nearby newcomer to the pastime. Racing has been restored in Nevada and bills are up before the legislatures of half a dozen other states.

The movement toward restoring this game through permitting restricted betting seems more or less general right now.

Boxing Wins Recognition.

BOXING, probably more harassed, through a longer period of time than any popular sport, has been made legal in a score of states, and is tolerated in others. Bills to legalize the game are being considered in several state Legislatures.

California was recently voted out the fight game—the worst blow the sport has suffered in a long time. But it was an accidental one, and the supporters of boxing beat themselves through mistakes in regard to the ballot. Those who should have voted "No," voted "Yes," thinking they were supporting the existence of the game. Instead they voted for the measure, which provided for the abolition of the game.

There is no doubt, however, that a general change of public mind has taken place in regard to these three sports and that instead of further restrictions being made against them, a spirit of tolerance is in the air.

COLUMBUS AND MILLERS PLAY SECOND GAME TODAY

The game scheduled between the St. Leos and Innisfails for today was called off, because Building Commissioner McKelvey condemned the stands at Athletic Park, while patrons, who witness the clash at Robison Field tomorrow, between the Columbus Club and Ben Millers will have to stay in the grand stand and pavilion, as the bleachers have been condemned. No spectators will be allowed in the the Robison Field bleachers until 40 supports have been replaced.

MISSOURI WILL TACKLE DRAKE IN TELEGRAPH MEET

Will Be First Event of This Kind Tigers Have Ever Participated In.

TEAM STRONG IN SPRINTS

Followers Are Looking for Good Showing Against Kansas Next Saturday.

From the Post-Dispatch's Special Correspondent at Missouri U.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 6.—Tiger track athletes received their first test of the year in the K. C. A. C. meet at Kansas City last Saturday. The result of the trial was satisfactory. Thirteen of the pick of the Missouri team made the trip and all but one placed. Wearers of the gold and black won four firsts and two seconds.

The best showing was made in the 50-yard low hurdles. Here such stars as Joe Loomis of Chicago, John P. Nicholson of St. Louis, and Lawrence Winn were entrants. Dinwoody Groves, Missouri's star hurdler last year, but now ineligible, and Bob Simpson, running his first year as a Tiger, represented Missouri. In their heats both Groves and Simpson did the distance in 6 1-5s.

In the final Loomis beat Simpson by inches, and Groves finished third. Loomis was forced to do 6s. flat to win. Coach Schulte can well boast of a star in Simpson, who, besides the hurdles, excels in the sprints and the high and broad jumps.

In the pole vault Missouri's stars shone. Floyd vaulted for 11 ft. 9 in., while Powell, going 11 ft. 6 in., tied for second, with Campbell of Kansas, Reeves of Nebraska and Lindstrum of the K. C. A. C. Eaton of the Tiger team won the 440-yard handicap race. R. F. Pittman, a freshman at the university, entering unattached, won the high jump. A bright future is predicted for this boy.

Missouri Won Relay.

The relay race was one of the few events in which a line could be obtained on the comparative strength of conference teams. Kansas University won from Nebraska and Missouri won from the Kansas Aggies. In neither were the winners hard pressed and their times were not out of the ordinary. The Kansas team did the mile in 3m. 42s.; the Tigers, with Capt. Murphy, Neidorp, Wyatt and Porter running, did it in 3m. 37s.

Two other Tigers, now ineligible, entered the meet for the K. C. A. C. and showed well. Hutsell ran in the relay race against Kansas and was instrumental in his team's winning. Thatcher, who gained 5 points in the last conference meet, made second in the 16-pound shotput.

Local followers are busily engaged in figuring on Missouri's chances in the dual meet against Kansas University, March 13. Missouri won the meet last year by a point. Both universities showed well in the meet last Saturday. The outcome is extremely doubtful.

In all indoor meets the element of luck plays a great part.

Tigers Strong in Spirits.

In general it may be said that Missouri stands a good chance of winning the pole vault, the 50-yard low hurdles, the 50-yard dash, the high jump and the 50-yard high hurdles. Kansas is supposed to have the better chance in the shotput, the two-mile run, the one-mile relay, the one-mile run, and the 440-yard run. In other words, the Tigers are especially strong in the hurdles and sprints, and Kansas in the longer runs. The relay race and the 440-yard run may possibly be won by the Tigers, while Kansas may win the high jump. At any rate, nothing can be forecasted with sureness.

It is practically assured that Missouri will compete with track men of Drake University in a telegraph meet this month. This will be the second meet of its kind ever held by Drake, and the first for Missouri. Drake beat Nebraska last year in a telegraph meet. The idea is a novel one and was invented by a former student at the Bulldog school. Missouri should be able to turn out 250 athletes for the meet.

RICHARDS SETS NEW MARK IN HIGH JUMP

NEW YORK, March 6.—Followers of track and field athletics were treated to an innovation in team relay and group field contests tonight in Madison Square Garden. The occasion was the indoor meet of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America.

The honors of the night went to Cornell, as the Ithaca students took the 8000-yard relay, the shotput, the running high jump, the pole vault for height and third place in both the 750-yard and 4000-yard relays.

In the running high jump Alma Richards of Cornell, an Olympic champion, bettered the intercollegiate record with a leap of 6 feet 4 inches. Richards' jump excelled the previous mark of 6 feet 3¾ inches, set out of doors by Tom Moffitt of Pennsylvania. Wesley M. Oler Jr. of Yale was second with 6 feet 3 inches. Richards' jump was within half an inch of the world's indoor record.

For the first time in the history of the association competition was confined exclusively to teams and groups in the various events, no individual prizes being awarded.

Whales Leave for Shreveport.

CHICAGO, March 6.—Chicago's Federal League team, led by Manager Joe Tinker, left here for Shreveport, La., to get into condition for the 1915 season. President Weeghman did not accompany the players as he did last season but will visit the camp before training is completed. Besides the 24 Chicago athletes, 10 members of Newark team were on the train.

May Legalize Boxing in Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 6.—The bill legalizing 10-round, no-decision boxing contests in Minnesota was recommended for passage to the State House of Representatives today by the Committee on General Legislation. The measure, which is patterned after the Wisconsin boxing law, is expected to meet with much opposition when it comes up for consideration in the House.

DODGE OPEN WEEK SOLD THIRTY CARS FOR LOCAL DEALER

More Than 3000 People Came to Sales Rooms and Further Sales Are Expected All at Retail.

The "open week" idea for automobile dealers in St. Louis has several warm friends who tried it, and the strongest of them is probably Frank R. Tate of the Tate-Gillham Motor Car Co., agents in St. Louis for the Dodge car. The open week for the Dodge car was held at the office and salesroom, Twenty-third and Locust streets. last week. Speaking of it, Mr. Tate said to the Post-Dispatch:

"Our open week was a tremendous success. We made 30 actual retail sales up to Saturday noon. During the week 3000 people came to our salesroom and at times we had not enough room to permit them to move around. In my experience of 10 years in the automobile business I have not before met with as enthusiastic a lot of visitors. In addition to our actual sales, we have booked a number of tentative orders and a large number have promised to come back next week to close contracts for cars at retail.

"I have never attended any show where the mechanical details of a car were so closely studied or where so many prospects brought mechanics with them to examine the car. We had on display the exhibit from the New York and Chicago shows of the Dodge line, and in my experience I have never known a case where so many mechanics praised the details of a car as they did last week. As a rule the examining mechanics only look for things to knock. Our table covered with parts attracted more attention than did our open chassis. I will be greatly disappointed if we do not get 30 orders during the coming week as a result of this exhibit. Two nights last week we were compelled to keep open until midnight and the crowd was large every night, in spite of two nights when the weather was very bad.

"Since Dec. 20 we have delivered 40 Dodge cars. This is all St. Louis retail business and does not include sales or contracts with country dealers. We have not a single second-hand car on hand.

"This open week has been the biggest thing I have ever pulled. We sent out 1400 invitations to prospects and never had as many responses before to any previous invitation.

"We have five salesmen who report daily and personally look over 50 cars a day. Out of this number we do not find, as a rule, five prospects who have already bought or are not interested in buying. The usual percentage is 40 not interested out of every 50 prospects.

"We cannot possibly get all of the cars that we can sell this year and, therefore, will find it impossible to call on all our prospects."

ADVERTISING FRANKNESS

The Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. were manufacturers of national importance before they became advertisers of national importance, and when Firestone began to advertise nationally it was in a unique way.

Suddenly there appeared in newspapers and magazines a series of articles from the hand of H. S. Firestone that were not advertisements at all in the accepted sense of the word. These advertisements, condensed into pages in popularly read publications were talks by an expert on the tire-making industry.

In them, the whole industry was analyzed, the sources of materials, cost, methods of manufacture, prices and reasons for prices were explained to the public as ordinarily a manufacturer might explain such things to one of the stockholders of his company.

In the recent advertising of Firestone Tires, now running in newspapers throughout the country, again appears this note of utter frankness in regard to the making of tires. It gets at the facts of tire making and lays them before the reader.

ARE BUILDING TRUCKS

The manufacture of Garford and Garford-Utility trucks has been started by the Garford Motor Truck Co. factory at Lima, O.

The Geiger-Jones Co. of Canton, O., has purchased the motor truck interests of the Willys-Overland Co., which consisted of the manufacture and sale of both the Garford and Willys-Utility trucks.

This entire line henceforth will be manufactured under the Garford name, the Willys-Utility becoming the Garford Utility. This enlarges the Garford range of capacity until it covers practically every need for commercial vehicles from the smallest to the largest practical size. The Utility truck has a carrying capacity of 1500 pounds, while the Garford will be built in one and one-half, two, three, five and six ton sizes.

UNIFORM MARKS FOR HIGHWAYS IN NEW ENGLAND

Road Authorities to Work Out Color Scheme, Offering Suggestion to Western States.

Interstate road travel has reached its highest deevlopment in the New England states because of their early recognition of the fact that highways progress means many visitors and consequent investment and an increase of temporary and permanent residents.

Chairman William D. Sohier of the Massachusetts Highway Commission has come forward with a color scheme for marking the main routes, not only of the old Bay State but of all the New England commonwealths. In a communication to the American Automobile Association Touring Board the Massachusetts road head sets forth a summary of his marking proposition.

Chairman S. Percy Hooker of the New Hampshire Highway Commission has already put into effect a color scheme of his own, which he would have to revise somewhat in order to meet with the Sohier idea of one color for routes north and south, another color for roads east and west, and a third color for secondary and diagonal routes.

Former Highway Commissioner Charles W. Gates of Vermont, and now the Governor of the Green Mountain State, confronts the same difficulty as Mr. Hooker in New Hampshire, because the Vermont color scheme, while designating through routes, also denotes the kind of road, and what civil subdivision is responsible for its upkeep. One color indicates State highways, and another color specifies what are known as State aid roads; and hence all know that a blue marked road indicates State responsibility, and a red road makes clear that the local authorities are in charge.

Chairman Bennett of the Connecticut Highway Commission has agreed that the Nutmeg State will parcticipate in any comprehensive plan, and Chairman Lyman H. Nelson of the Maine Highway Commission asserts the Pine Tree State will accept any color scheme agreed upon by the others. The highway department in little Rhode Island also announces its vote in favor of the general plan.

A conference of the New England Highway Commissioners will take place in the near future and Chairman Sohier believes a plan can be drawn up which will make clear to the road traveler the interstate complexion of the New England avenues of communication.

REGATTA AT HANNIBAL

At the annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association in Chicago on Friday, Hannibal, Mo., on the Mississippi, 130 miles north of St. Louis, was selected for the 1915 regatta of the association, whose annual regatta is the largest meet of the kind held in the United States.

The meeting last year was held at Peoria, where there were over 1000 boats in attendance. At this meet several important speed records were established, and it is anticipated that, with the rapidly growing interest in boats and boating in the Mississippi Valley, the 1915 regatta will draw a still larger attendance and that still higher speeds will be established.

TO SELL WILCOX TRUX

The general agency for St. Louis territory for the Wilcox Trux line has been placed with the A. H. Sullivan company of 4145 Laclede avenue. The branch house hitherto maintained, with F. E. Hole as manager, has been discontinued and the new agents will handle a full line of parts as well as a well-equipped service shop which will take care of the Wilcox trux in service in St. Louis and vicinity.

BILL FORBIDS TRAILERS.

A bill was passed by the House of Delegates last Tuesday and is now before the Council which forbids the use of trailers behind an automobile truck, under penalty of $5 for each offense. A number of dealers who are interested have asked the Legislative Committee of the Council to hold a public hearing at which they can voice their objections to the bill.

Quality. Compare Prices

The Goodrich Tire, like the trained athlete is all brawn and muscle—no fat

THE old Olympic Game promoters were great for what we call "form."

Symmetry, proportion, soundness and proper balance out-bid bulging muscles for favor—yes, and out-won, too, just as they will today.

Mere bulk never was synonymous with endurance—and the truth of this statement drives home with a bang, when you apply it to tires.

IF thick, heavy tires were the last word in tire construction, we could wipe out of existence a Goodrich Research and Test Department employing seventy people. We would take off the road a battalion of ten automobiles, that run twenty-four hours a day and every day in the year, grinding tires of all makes to pieces, just for the sake of information to us and eventual economy to the user of Goodrich Tires.

There is where we learn to cut out of a tire the material which gets the user nothing.

Of course, when we stripped tire price lists of their padding—fictitious values—we expected rivals to say we had stripped our tires.

IT was their only "come-back." They had to say that, in stripping down prices to the point where they were fair to dealer and consumer and left no room for injurious price-cutting tactics, we had stripped our tires of some quality, too.

THE Goodrich Tire, like the trained athlete, is all brawn and muscle—no fat. It represents an achievement—the ability to cut out the extra costs of manufacture, the extra costs of labor, of extra, needless material, and to give you the best, long-mileage, high-standard tire in the world.

There are padded tires as well as padded price lists.

Don't pay for padding.

Now don't forget this—we are talking in the main about Goodrich Safety Tread Tires, for they represent ninety per cent of our factory output for resale.

Furthermore, while we have put the padded prices on smooth tread tires on the run, the evil of padded prices on non-skid tires still is in evidence, as shown in table below:

THE B. F. GOODRICH CO., Akron, Ohio

Note the following table of comparative prices on non-skid tires. Columns headed "A," "B," "C" and "D" represent four highly-advertised tires:

Size	Goodrich Safety Tread	OTHER MAKES "A"	"B"	"C"	"D"
30x3	$ 9.45	$10.55	$10.95	$16.35	$18.10
30x3½	12.20	13.35	14.20	21.70	23.60
32x3½	14.00	15.40	16.30	22.85	25.30
34x4	20.35	22.30	23.80	31.15	33.55
36x4½	28.70	32.15	33.60	41.85	41.40
37x5	33.90	39.80	41.80	49.85	52.05

If you are charged less for any other make than Goodrich, they are taking it out of the tire; if you are charged more, they are taking it out of you.

SAYS JITNEY CARS WILL REPLACE STREET CARS

"Even as the horse street railway service gave way to the electric car service, so the electric street railway service will in a great measure give way to the automobile," says H. H. Franklin, president Franklin Automobile Co., in a letter to the Franklin Automobile Co. of St. Louis.

Continuing, Mr. Franklin said: "As crude as may be the jitney automobile bus service, which is taking the cities of the country by storm, it is the beginning of a great and radical change in transportation. Fight it as they may, the street railway interests cannot stop the growth of the jitney service.

"The service has come to stay and the rapid development of public automobile transportation during the next five years will be another wonder in the marvelous progress of the automobile.

"While, at the present time, the jitney bus is any old automobile, it will not be long before cars beautifully adapted to the service will appear.

"The service will not be confined to cities. It will eventually cover the country from city to village and village to city, as do the interurban railways.

"The development of the jitney service cannot be stopped, because it is going to be quicker, more convenient and, in the long run, cheaper."

CHANDLER SIX
$1295

A Letter From Mr. Chandler

J. D. Perry Lewis,
St. Louis, Mo.
Dear Mr. Lewis:

We are not surprised to learn that you heard some people express doubts as to whether the Chandler selling for $1295 is the real Chandler, the same car that has been selling for $1595. We get the same kind of reports from all over the country. But at the same time we are getting such a quantity of orders that we are convinced thousands of people are taking the trouble to find out for themselves that it is the same car.

It isn't strange, at all, that there are some doubters. It does seem too good to be true. I recall that you had some doubts, too, at first. It is difficult, indeed, to realize the progress that has come in the automobile industry in the past two years. You remember what a sensation the Chandler Light Six was at $1785 two years ago. And again last year, when the car had been beautifully refined, and perfected in every detail, at $1595. Is it any wonder that people should marvel at the $1295 price?

The fact remains—you know it, and we know it, and anyone else can easily convince himself of it—that the Chandler at $1295 is the identical model that set the quality standard for light sixes and sold for $1595. We are standing absolutely pat on this model. We haven't changed a single part or feature or material, and we won't. This is our car for the year—and doubtless for years to come—and $1295 is the price.

The people who come into your store and examine the Chandler, and who go out and drive it, or ride in it, are convinced; and we won't worry about those folks who doubt without investigating. I feel pretty sure that every man who thinks of spending more than $1000 for an automobile is, at least, going to look at the Chandler. And if he does,—well, we will be satisfied with his decision.

The factory is breaking all our past production records and the big new building is being rushed through to completion.

Very truly, F. C. CHANDLER
President Chandler Motor Car Co.

TIRE MAKERS WARN TRADE TO BE "NEUTRAL"

In keeping with the terms of the agreement by which the British embargo on rubber was raised, American rubber companies are sending "neutrality warnings" to their dealers. The rubber companies agreed when the Government of Great Britain raised the embargo, not to "sell any manufactured or partly manufactured rubber goods to any person in the United States without satisfying ourselves that there is no intention on his part to export or resell the same for exportation to any countries in Europe other than Great Britain, France or Russia, or otherwise than by shipping to the United Kingdom and reshipping from there, under license to be obtained for export therefrom.

"If we export any manufactured or partly manufactured rubber goods to a destination outside Europe, not being in a British possession, we will, prior to or simultaneously with the shipment, give you particulars of the goods so shipped and their destination."

Cut This Out

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know someone who is troubled with catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. Experiments conducted in England some time ago seem to prove conclusively that catarrhal deafness, head noises, etc., were directly caused by constitutional trouble. It was further brought out that salves, sprays, inhalers, etc., merely temporize with the complaint, and seldom, if ever, effect a permanent cure. This being so, much time and money were spent in perfecting a pure, gentle, yet effective tonic that would quickly dispel all traces of the catarrhal poison from the system. The prescription which was eventually formulated and which has aroused the belief that catarrhal deafness and head noises will soon be extinct is given below in understandable form so that anyone can treat themselves in their own home at little expense.

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.—ADV.-B.

HORSE MOST EXPENSIVE OF FARM'S MACHINERY

That the horse is but a substitute for man power on the farm, and a poor one at that, because of his being a continuel unnecessary expense, is the statement of M. L. Pulcher, general manager of the Federal Motor Truck Co. "What the farm needs is power, the most economical power, and for that reason farmers are becoming great buyers of motor trucks," says Mr. Pulcher.

"The horse eats 10 pounds for every hour he works. He has only six hours a day of endurance. One acre out of every five plowed goes to feed the horse. The horse eats up a total acreage equivalent to all Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and Ohio.

"With the ever increasing demand for farm products that exists, effort is being made to add to farm yields. If the truth be known, however, the one thing that has retarded increased acreage and farm yields has been the lack of power on the farm. The farmer had no desire to take a larger contract on his hands, for he had all he could do with the power at his disposal.

"The farmer is finding, however, that the motor truck is giving him added power and economical power. A trip to market that formerly required a day for man and team is made in a third of a day with a man and a motor truck. This frees the man and the truck for other work on the farm during the remainder of the day.

"As I have said many times before, it was the adaptability of the horse for any kind of service that made it useful on the farm. When a farmer was not doing one kind of work with a horse he could be doing some other kind. And the very same is true with a motor truck. It will work in any harness and upon any job that a horse now is put and it will do that work faster and more economically than a team of horses can do it."

FOR CONSCIENCE FUND

This is truly an age of marvels. Office men at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. gasped the other day when they received the following letter, word for word, except as to the name of the writer:

"Dear Sirs—Last summer I returned two tires to you for adjustment, and I had run the tires more than I told you I had, therefore getting a better adjustment. I do not feel right about it, so I am sending you $10, which I think will fully recompense you. Begging you to forgive me, am

JOHN SMITH."

And this bona fide letter was accompanied by a bona fide check, which has since been collected.

ON NATIONAL BOARD OF CENSORSHIP

George M. Dickson, general manager of the National Motor Vehicle Co., has been given the title, "National Board of Censorship" by L. S. French, advertising manager. Dickson has a keen sense of humor and fully appreciates the joke. But French insists that there is more truth than poetry in it.

Dickson is a great believer in advertising, but also believes that every advertisement a company publishes is an obligation. He would not sanction an advertisement that his company could not absolutely fulfill. He says that when his company talks in print it is just as binding as though they had signed a contract, and explains that this is why National advertisements are always conservative and do not contain exaggerated claims or boasts.

Dickson points with pride to his company's 15 years of success and says that they have never said anything that they "had to live down" and never made any false or exaggerated claims.

RECORD FOR TEXAS

So determined is W. S. Dunbar of Port Stockton, Tex., to hold the Ford mileage record that he has sent his report to the Ford Motor Co. in the form of a sworn affidavit. It is certainly an astonishing record, too. Mr. Dunbar makes regular trips in his Ford between Fort Stockton and Pecos City, a distance of 65 miles, and carries four passengers. His model T, purchased in 1909, is still in service, with the same wheels, engine and transmission, and has a grand mileage of 150,000 miles.

In addition to that, Mr. Dunbar has repeatedly made the round trip of 130 miles, sworn to in his affidavit, on three and one-half gallons of gasoline, or 37 1-7 miles per gallon. It isn't remarkable, perhaps, that Mr. Dunbar should insist upon having these extraordinary figures preserved in affidavit form.

A HAPPY BALD HEADED MAN

Well-Known Politician Nearly Bald Now Has New Growth of Hair.

Tells How He Did It.

A western politician, well-known on account of his baldness and ready wit, surprised his friends by appearing with a new growth of hair. Many of his old friends did not know him and others thought he had a wig. On being asked how he did it, he made the following statement: "I attribute the remarkable growth of my hair to the use of the following simple recipe which any lady or gentleman can mix at home: To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the scalp two or three times a week with the finger tips. It not only promotes the growth of the hair but removes dandruff, scalp humors and prevents the hair from falling out. It darkens streaked, faded, gray hair and makes the hair soft and glossy. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost and mixed at home."—ADVERTISEMENT.

GOVERNMENT REVENUES INCREASE

Treasury Deficit Reduced From $85,000,000 to $80,000,000.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Government revenues have begun to show slight increase, due largely to the spring import business with consequent enlarged receipts from customs. The treasury deficit, which a few weeks ago was in the neighborhood of $85,000,000, has fallen to about $80,000,000, and in the next few months there may be a further reduction.

Although treasury officials are loath to make any predictions when such unusual conditions prevail, they figure on increased receipts from customs from about March 1 until the end of the fiscal year in June.

Secretary McAdoo has estimated that about $60,000,000 would be received from the income tax, but conditions have changed materially since his estimate was made.

WALL WILL SUE SCHOOL BOARD IF PAY IS WITHHELD

Contractor Threatens Action if Any Part of $85,000 Is Kept Back.

HE ISSUES STATEMENT

Explanation in Connection With the Condition of Grover Cleveland High School.

Further litigation following a wordy clash last Friday between R. M. Milligan, Building Commissioner of the Board of Education, and Percy Wall of the Wall Bros. Construction Co., is threatened by Wall over the uncompleted Grover Cleveland High School, the largest in the city, in which Milligan declared he found defects.

Wall was ordered out of the school by watchmen Friday, when he challenged Milligan to point out to a Post-Dispatch reporter, in his presence, structural defects which Milligan had described in an interview published in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday.

Wall told a reporter that the School Board will be sued for the recovery of any part of the $85,000 which it withholds from the contractor, on the ground that it may be spent in making changes. He denied statements made by Milligan and said that while defects existed, they were such as were unavoidable and common in similar structures or were the result of instructions given workmen by superintendents of the School Board during the progress of the work.

Wall Prepares Statement.

Wall prepared the following written statement: "The Post-Dispatch in last Sunday's issue, Feb. 28, published an article headed '$666,000 School Building Three Feet Out of Square' and other items as follows:

"Item No. 1. Building three feet out of square.

"Item No. 2. That bearing walls were hollow and filled with rubbish and broken plaster, and have been removed and rebuilt.

"Item No. 3. That greater part of woodwork and plaster has been torn out and done over.

"Item No. 4. Majority of window frames have been taken out and reset.

"Item No. 5. Composition roof leaks and will have to be done over.

"This is then followed with an article published in the Republic Monday, March 1, stating that the commissioner had remedied all defects and that building was finest west of Mississippi, and would be completed in 60 days.

"On advice of counsel, Mr. Wall of Wall Brothers Construction Co., went down to the building March 2 to see Mr. Milligan, who had done this work, and to see for himself the facts in the case. Arriving at the building, he met Mr. Milligan at the front entrance, and asked him if he had authorized the statements given to the press. He answered, No, and then added: "What's it to you if I did?" Mr. Wall answered and said that he came down to be shown personally, whereupon Mr. Milligan, the commissioner said, "that I don't want you in the building at all." Mr. Wall insisted upon going in, whereupon Mr. Milligan left.

On entering the building Mr. Wall inquired at the office in the building for Mr. Whitney, superintendent for the Board of Education. With Mr. Whitney, Mr. Meiher and Mr. Bouther, all superintendents for the Board of Education on building, and then beginning with each statement as itemized above, asked them as to the verity of same. They said they did not know who made the statements, but denied them in toto. They said that they had never tried to check building as to its being square, but presumed it had been built to City Surveyor's stakes, which it was.

Had Not Rebuilt Walls.

"Mr. Wall asked them if they could show him one bearing wall they had removed and rebuilt, and they answered they had not rebuilt any.

"Mr. Hall asked them to show him some window frames they had removed, and they couldn't, and finally said they had not removed any frames, but had fitted some sash.

"Mr. Wall asked as to the roof was leaking, and they told him that during the heavy snow, laborers were sent up there with picks and shovels to remove same, and in doing same had injured the flashing, causing leakage, and the same roofer who covered it for Wall Bros. is now repairing it for them.

"Mr. Wall desired to add to this statement that the same day at lunch Mr. Wall and his brother met Mr. Mieher, Chief Superintendent for Board of Education, who voluntarily said that Milligan had denied to him giving statements to reporter.

"When this was reported to counsel of Wall Bros., they sent notice to Post-Dispatch that said article was libelous and made an appointment for their reporter to meet Mr. Wall at building site Friday, March 5.

"On Friday Mr. Wall went to building to meet reporter and Mr. Milligan. The reporter was late, and Mr. Wall went in building alone. One of the workmen in the building told him that orders had been given to keep him out of the building, and after making an inspection he went down to the corner to meet the reporter, who had just arrived. They then went in building and up to office.

Talked to Superintendents.

"Mr. Milligan and the auditor were busy, and they left them and talked to various superintendents of work as follows: Superintendent of brick work, superintendent of carpenter work, assistant engineer for the Board of Education, head janitor and superintendent and several of the different mechanics now working on the job. All their statements verify statements given on Tuesday previous by Mr. Whitney, Mr. Mieher and Mr. Souther.

The reporter and Mr. Wall then met Mr. Milligan and they asked him to verify his previous statement in the presence of Mr. Wall. His reply was that he could not show Mr. Wall anything, and he ordered him to leave the building. Upon Mr. Wall's refusal to leave building he then went to office to have men put Mr. Wall out. At the request of the reporter, who agreed to meet and report to Mr. Wall, and to avoid further wrangling, Mr. Wall stepped outside of building. Instead of the commissioner showing the reporter these items under discussion, he had Mr. Whitney point out other defects of minor importance which were as follows:

The wall and immediately in front of the place occupied by the concrete mixer was covered with concrete which had fallen from the chutes above, and because they thought it would be cheaper to remove the face brick rather than clean it they had this done, but this is the only bearing wall removed. He then pointed out a curtain wall in which the bricklayer said he removed six four-inch tile, to which Mr. Wall said same was not completed at the time of assignment.

Removing of Plaster.

Last and not least as to removal of plaster, which, of course, means the removing of finish, Mr. Wall wishes to go on record as follows:

A few weeks after we began plastering we had a controversy with Mr. Whitlow, acting commissioner, relative to same, in which he demanded the removal of Mr. Wall from the said building. The plasterers were browning the walls at that time, and, with the Board of Education Superintendent's insistence on the brown mortar being 50 per cent richer than the plans and specifications call for and then saying it was so poor it would fall off. The Board of Education sent a letter to Wall Brothers requesting them to appear before them the following afternoon at 3 o'clock, and they did, and were told in the presence of the Board of Education and their lawyers that Wall Brothers were not the boss of that building, and that the acting commissioner was boss; and that would go whether he knew or not and whether it was according to the plans and specifications or not, and unless they agreed to that, would cancel contract. Mr. Whitlow, waiving Mr. Wall's removal, Wall Brothers agreed to try and work with the acting commissioner. This plastering and wood work was done after this agreement was forced on Wall Brothers with never less than two to five superintendents on the building, and was approved, paid on and ordered painted by the Board of Education's own superintendents. This is the plastering that they are now removing. Wall Brothers were not requested to remove any plasterer or painter for not doing his work as per instructions.

After going down to the building and giving the commissioner two opportunities to show him as to the verity of his statements to the press, and with the same reporter whom he gave it to, Mr. Wall can come to only one conclusion, of which his counsel will take care of.

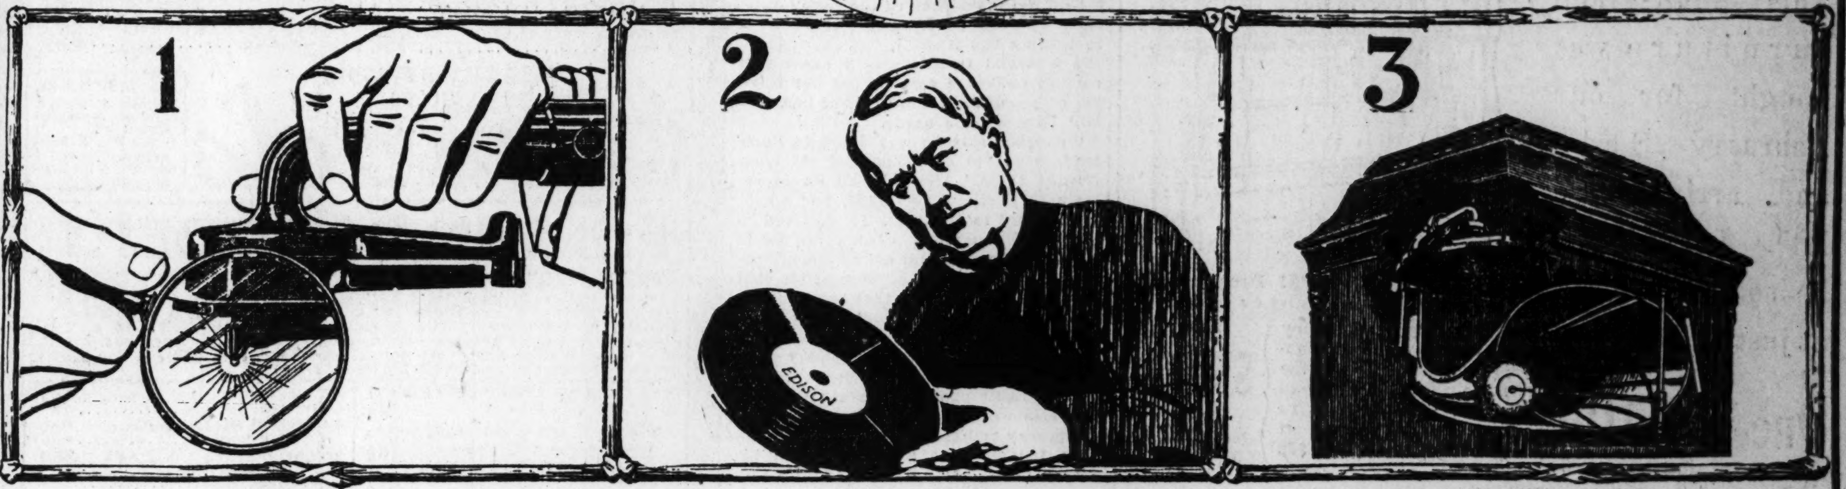
The Combination that unlocks the door to Perfect Music in the Home



1.—Diamond Point. 2.—Unbreakable Record. 3.—Sound Amplifier With Modulator.

These Are Exclusive Features of

Edison's Diamond-Disc

No part of this combination can be secured on any other sound reproducing instrument

There's the diamond that has done away forever with the bother of changing needles. See the point? It's a real diamond, rounded and highly polished, riding the disc records like a boat on the waves—simply floating over the sound grooves. Neither wears the record nor is worn itself.

THIS IS ONLY ON THE EDISON.

There's the unbreakable record, which children can safely handle, whose playing length is fully 50 per cent longer than any other make. Made from condensite, a new chemical compound of exceeding density and hardness. The most minute sound wave can be engraved upon it and never effaced or distorted.

THIS IS ONLY ON THE EDISON.

There's the oval sound chamber for amplifying sound, another Edison achievement. It has the perfect tapering lines necessary for the best reproductions of sounds, not a single sound wave escapes, all the tones are developed; the amplifier is scientifically curved and suspended upon ball bearings, allowing utmost freedom to the vibratory surface.

THIS IS ONLY ON THE EDISON.

Special Notice

All the records ever made, for any kind or type of instrument, the greatest opera stars and instrument soloists—all are at your command if you own an Edison.

While the Edison is the only instrument that will play the wonderful new Edison records with all their original beauty, all makes of records can be made to play on the Edison Diamond Disc Phonograph. And musical experts agree that because of Mr. Edison's new sound developer these records of other makes sound better on the Edison than the instrument for which they were produced.

CASCARETS TONIGHT! IF YOU ARE BILIOUS, HEADACHY AND CONSTIPATED.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy stomach.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely dosing yourself every few days with salts, pills, castor oil and other harsh irritants? Cascarets immediately cleanse and sweeten the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the system.

A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning—a 10-cent box keeps your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and you feel bully for months. Don't forget the children.

WENNEKER SAYS HE IS SEEKING FINANCIAL AID

Former Head of Candy Firm Here Due in San Francisco Last Evening.

Charles F. Wenneker, president of the Million Population Club, and lately president of the Blanke-Wenneker Candy Co., is supposed to have arrived in San Francisco last evening. The train on which he went West, and from which he telegraphed to St. Louis newspapers early yesterday morning at Winnemucca, Nev., was due to reach San Francisco at 6:30 p. m.

The first word obtained from Wenneker was by a Post-Dispatch correspondent, who saw him on the train at Salt Lake City, Friday.

To the correspondent Wenneker readily admitted that his sudden departure from St. Louis, Wednesday morning, was due to financial difficulties.

Tells of $50,000 Loss.

He said he lost more than $50,000 cash in Steel stocks, two months ago, and that the loss had left him without ready money, although he owned valuable property and securities. He said he resigned the presidency of the candy company because he did not feel justified in holding the position "in the face of the financial trouble that I knew was coming on." He said he did not leave his wife penniless, and that she has, and will have all she needs.

Wenneker said he was going to Portland, Ore., "to seek financial aid from friends there." He said he would remain in Portland two days, and would then return to St. Louis. He declared he had told a number of his St. Louis friends, who saw him off at Union Station Wednesday, the purpose of his visit to Portland. He added that "some of the biggest men in Missouri" had offered him business assistance.

"Question of Buy or Sell."

In his later telegram from Nevada to the St. Louis papers, Wenneker said no one else would lose a cent through his temporary embarrassment, and he asked that judgment be suspended until his return to St. Louis next week. He said he was on his way to meet a wealthy friend, and that it was "a question of buy or sell control of the business."

At the office of the candy company, J. B. Farmer, new president of the company, and Louis Schmidt, treasurer, showed dissatisfaction with Wenneker's statements, and said there was "wind" in the assertion as to buying or selling control of the business. They said they knew nothing of Wenneker's loss in Steel stocks and Mrs. Wenneker said the same, adding that her husband did not usually talk of business affairs with her.

NEW YORK FINANCIERS TO ATTEND M. P. ELECTION

Otto H. Kahn, Opera Supporter, Will Speak on Artistic Subjects While Here.

A party of New York financiers, accompanied by Finley J. Shepard, assistant to the president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, will arrive in St. Louis tomorrow evening, in a private car, to attend the stockholders' and directors' meetings of the Missouri Pacific, to be held here Tuesday.

Otto H. Kahn of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who is one of the chief financial supporters of the Metropolitan Grand Opera House, will take occasion, while here, to speak on subjects connected with the opera, and other matters of an artistic nature. He will make this address at a dinner at the St. Louis Club at 7 p. m. Tuesday, which will be attended by the Eastern visitors and by St. Louis bankers and railroad officials.

Beside Kahn and Shepard, the New York members of the party will be A. J. Hemphill, president of the Guarantee Trust Co.; Edwin G. Merrill, president of the Union Trust Co.; Edgar L. Marston of Blair & Co., W. H. Williams, third vice-president of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, and Paul D. Cravath, counsel for the Proxy Committee. An additional member of the party will be R. Lancaster Williams of Mittendorf, Williams & Co., Baltimore. Shepard, formerly in the St. Louis offices of the Missouri Pacific, has been stationed in New York since his marriage to Miss Helen Gould, two years ago.

While in St. Louis the visitors will be entertained by E. C. Simmons, William H. Lee, Festus J. Wade and Edward A. Faust, who have been nominated for election to the directorate of the Missouri Pacific at Tuesday's meeting. The visitors will drive through the city Tuesday afternoon, and will leave the city after the St. Louis Club dinner.

PRISONER ADMITS THAT HE KILLED WIFE OF A BANKER

California Prisoner Says Confederate Murdered Her Husband, Robbery Being Their Purpose.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 6.—Alfred Sells, under arrest here, confessed today, according to the police, that he murdered Mrs. Jacob Vogel in her home in the outskirts of Oakland, Feb. 11, and that a man with him killed her husband. Vogel was a retired banker.

The motive of the murder was robbery. Sells told detectives he had heard the Vogels kept $4000 in their home. He said they found only $25. Sells' confession came after immunity from hanging had been promised by the District Attorney.

The man who killed Vogel has not been arrested, the police say.

Many Operations Avoided

WHILE of course there are serious cases of feminine ills that nothing but a surgical operation will remedy, the indisputable fact remains that hundreds of operations have been avoided by the wonderful medicinal virtue of

and the very best proof of this is the unsolicited and grateful letters of the recovered ones themselves. By special permission we publish here four of them out of hundreds we have:—

Louisville, Ky.—"I think if more suffering women would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound they would enjoy better health. I suffered from a female trouble, and the doctors decided I had a tumorous growth and would have to be operated upon, but I refused as I do not believe in operations. I had fainting spells, bloated, and could hardly stand the pain in my left side. My husband insisted that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful I did, for I am now a well woman. I sleep better, do all my housework and take long walks. I never fail to praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my good health."—Mrs. J. M. Resch, 1900 W. Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

Decatur, Ill.—"I was sick in bed and three of the best physicians said I would have to be taken to the hospital for an operation as I had something growing in my left side. I refused to submit to the operation and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and it worked a miracle in my case, and I tell other women what it has done for me."—Mrs. Laura A. Griswold, 2300 Blk. East William Street, Decatur, Ill.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me, and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—MRS. C. H. GRIFFITH, 1568 Constant St., Cleveland, Ohio.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine.

Charlotte, N.C.—"I was in bad health for two years, with pains in both sides and was very nervous. I had a growth which the doctor said was a tumor, and I never would get well unless I had an operation. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I gladly say that I am now enjoying fine health."—Mrs. Rosa Sims, 16 Winona St., Charlotte, N.C.

It would seem wise before undergoing an operation to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

RELIABLE TESTIMONY.—All our testimonials are guaranteed to be genuine and truthful. They came to us entirely unsolicited and are sincere expressions of gratitude for actual benefits received from the medicine.—THE LYDIA E. PINKHAM MED. CO., LYNN, MASS.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF M e and Farms ONDITIONS

STOCK MARKET SCORES FAIRLY WIDE GAIN ON THE WEEK'S SPECULATION

Leading Shares Show Advances of One to Three Points on Active Trade.

FUTURE IS CLOUDED

Wall Street All at Sea as to Effect of War on Business.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review today, says:

"The notable fact about the persistent recovery on the Stock Exchange this week, is that it occurred in the face, first, of a doubtful and possibly critical situation in our relations with European belligerents; second, of continuing sales of our securities from abroad. There have been numerous explanations offered for this unexpected attitude of the market; some of them being drawn even from the day's diplomatic and military developments.

"Financial sentiment has been reassured by our Government's statesmanlike handling of the neutral ship controversy and by the knowledge that our foreign affairs are now being conducted under the auspices of trained and skillful experts. No rash or impulsive step is apprehended.

"Reassurance has equally been caused by the fact that, in response to our Government's attitude, Berlin has substituted friendly diplomatic correspondence for threats against neutrals by the navy board, while the British Foreign Office is moving slowly and cautiously in the matter. That is to say, the signs of the moment do not indicate either an outburst of angry temper on our part or serious interference with our commerce on the part of the belligerents.

Foreign News Favorable.

"These considerations were not formally argued out in the talk of the Stock Exchange; yet it is impossible that their underlying influence should not have been powerful. Wall street itself undoubtedly placed more stress on the news from the Dardanelles, assuming in a somewhat vague and general way, that the fall of Constantinople would make an important step towards the ending of the war. Even apart from that particular field of operations, there was a rather widespread feeling, in the financial community, that the course of events may be foreshadowing an earlier ending of the war than had lately been anticipated.

"How far the Stock Exchange recovery was a result of this belief and how far the belief was itself a consequence of the week's advance in stocks, is no doubt debatable. Chicago ascribes the violent collapse on the wheat market to the bombardment of the Turkish forts and the prospective release of Russia's blockaded grain; but there is very good reason for supposing that the inflated wheat prices would have fallen, even without the news from the Dardanelles, and the stock market may be in similar case. The one sure conclusion from the markets of the week is, that under a somewhat exacting test, financial confidence has shown itself, and to a considerable extent the financial skies have cleared.

"The qualifying consideration, in the mind of the business community at large, is the slowness with which home industry itself recovers.

"Granting the hopeful security market, the extraordinary returns of our foreign trade, and the testimony of the foreign exchanges to our strong position on international account, it still remains to say that the great manufacturing industries are working much below normal capacity, that mercantile trade hesitates, and that, except in parts of the agricultural West, the country's bank exchanges are still running far below last year's.

Outlook Is Clouded.

"It is not improbable that even the present status would have seemed incredibly favorable, under all the circumstances, if it had been predicted, say in September or October. But the point of view has changed considerably since then, and the steel and textile mills now describe the present business as disappointing. It certainly reflects a spirit of great caution. In some directions, it might seem to indicate (despite the large export orders), actual hardship caused indirectly by the war. In all directions, it undoubtedly shows the effect of the great derangement in the ordinary channels of trade, consequent on the conditions in Europe and in the neutral states.

"To what extent these domestic industries will be able to adapt themselves to the new conditions; how far the economic confusion resulting from the war will be offset by the enormous profits of the American grain producers; and how soon a genuine forward movement can reasonably be expected—these are just now questions which no one answers confidently. The answer is not likely, however, to be very long delayed. The war has thus far covered two separate periods of an industrial twelve-month. The autumn period of normally great activity, which was marked on this occasion by a paralysing unsettlement in the money markets, and the midwinter period of normal dullness, which has been characterized this time by at least a gradual improvement.

"We stand today, however, on the threshold of a third and even more important period; the spring time, with its traditions of reviving trade activity, and of resumption of business enterprise for the coming season. It is a well-known principle of American trade that the course of events, in April and May particularly, foreshadows the general character of the ensuing business year. It may at least be said that American finance approaches that interesting period under auspices so much more cheerful than those which had hitherto prevailed, as to mark an almost complete reversal of form in underlying economic conditions.

"Stocks showed gains of 2 to 3 points on the week. Yesterday's market was steady."

LONDON MARKET SHOWS A MORE CHEERFUL TONE

Success of Allied Fleet in Dardanelles Is a Favorable Factor.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, March 6.—Successful progress of the allied fleets has been most potent of the past week's developments in determining the trend of financial sentiment. A further fall in the price of wheat, and an upward turn in New York exchange on London are expected to follow the forcing of the Turkish waterway, but ultimately wheat is likely to recover because demands for the staple are enormous, apart entirely from that of Germany and Austria. Forcing of the Dardanelles might temporarily assist the exchanges, but our financing of France and Russia concentrates demands on London resources.

The feeling of your markets (as reflected in rising prices) that the war is drawing to a rapid conclusion, is not shared in here. Germany's refusal to employ her fleet in an effort to protect her commerce is expected to protract the conflict.

Proposals from the United States concerning traffic through the "war zone" are recognized to have been made with the best intentions, but unfortunately, as the Morning Post points out today, they are designed to help Germany at the expense of the allies. These proposals embody precisely the bargain which Germany proposed to strike when declaring her so-called submarine blockade in effect. America says to England now: "If you allow food to go to your enemy we will persuade that enemy to allow merchant vessels to sail in British waters."

"In other words, it is proposed that if Great Britain deprives herself of something within her right and power, Germany will forego something which we consider neither within her right nor power. The Morning Post challenges the American idea as to the rights and wrongs of the war, and observes that if the allies are right they ask no favor from America, except to be allowed to use their weapons unfettered by interventions, which, however well meant, have the effect of succoring the enemy.

"Nevertheless, it is admitted that the blockade will be made simple if it is regularized, and if all neutral parties know exactly where they stand. England is watching for a demonstration of your attitude with the keenest attention, not because of any expectation of the faintest departure from your official neutrality, but because of an expectation of a manifestation of the American conscience. It is impossible not to contrast our present attitude with that of America in the Mexican affair. British interests were then threatened, yet President Wilson was trusted and given a free hand.

"The Bank of England's loss of gold this week—£2,879,000—was due chiefly to an ear-marking of metal for Argentina. Our gold resources now consist of a little less than £60,000,000 in the Bank of England, £50,000,000 held privately by miscellaneous banks and another £50,000,000 held secretly and ear-marked in various quarters. This last-named amount includes £27,500,000 in the currency note reserve. These figures demonstrate the underlying strength of our finances more even than does the agreement with France and Russia.

"New York is likely to take gold steadily from Ottawa."

LARGE EXPORTS A FEATURE OF THE COTTON MARKET

Shipments Last Week Were 347,914 Bales, Against 224,119 Same Week Last Year.

Exporting has gone on uninterruptedly during the past week, in the face of disconcerting rumors of interference with shipping and the actual raising of insurance rates. Marine insurance was withdrawn on shipments to Italian ports on account of the accumulation of cotton in those ports. Insurance companies gave notice that no shipments of cotton to neutral countries in Europe would be insured without a clause excepting liability to the insurance companies in case of claims arising from capture, seizure, restraints, etc., by the British Government or allied Powers. Without this clause insurance is quoted at the rate of 30 per cent, which is prohibitive; and this applies to shipments insured prior to this date, which did not sail within 14 days after insurance was effected, unless these risks are made to conform to the above exemption clause within five days from March 4, when these notices were issued.

Exports Are Heavy.

Exports during the week just past totaled 347,914 bales, compared with 224,119 bales the same week last year. The total exports to date are 5,533,625 bales, compared with 7,359,425 to the same date last year. In February this year there were exported 1,544,512 bales, against 750,990 bales last year. The increase of exports may be shown by the comparison of month against month, this year and last, from Oct. 1 to March 1. Last year's exports decreased in volume from October on; this year they increased. Exports in February last year were one-half of the quantity that was exported in October of the same season. Exports in February this year were three times the quantity exported in October, this season; for the five months the total is about 675,000 bales less than for the same period last year. The figures follow:

Exports.	1914-1915 Bales	1913-1914 Bales
October	497,180	1,517,838
November	760,020	1,501,250
December	1,202,115	1,230,830
January	1,372,175	1,052,272
February	1,544,512	750,990

Peace Rumors a Factor.

Rumors of peace have been heard frequently of late, and dry goods people expect this to strengthen the spot cotton market and so raise the price of goods, and they are consequently more inclined to buy. Prices on almost all lines of goods have been increased and mills are rather inclined to be careful in making contracts for foreign deliveries. Most of these peace rumors seem to hang on the reports of cancellation of goods contracts by Russia. There seems to be no other news in the papers that is strong enough to hang a peace rumor on, and Washington does not seem to be very hopeful of an early cessation of hostilities.

The interior movement has been more free of late and the into-sight movement correspondingly larger. Apparently the excess movement is destined for foreign markets. Stocks in the interior counted towns have decreased in the last week, although receipts have been much heavier than in the corresponding week last year. Prices in the various spot markets are advancing. The movement therefore is consistent with the precedent set during the early season. After the first panicky feeling was over, cotton was held tight on any recession in price, but was sold freely at the advance. Such a course seems to be pursued now, for sales are larger than for some time, and at the same time prices are higher in actual business as well as in quotations.

Prices in the principal spot markets are given further along in this column.

In spite of this heavy selling in New York, that market has regained most of the loss from the recent high point, and is again in high ground, only 14 points under the high for October and December, and 27 below that for May, the near months having suffered worst in the heavy selling.

The weather in the South has been wet and cold and preparation for the new crop has made little or no progress, for the most part. It is too early yet to consider a forecast of what may follow. Acreage this year will depend more on prices than on weather, and as the market advances there is a lessening of the likelihood of great decrease. The Manchester Guardian estimates the Egyptian crop at 1,024,556 bales of 750 lbs. each, compared with 1,004,388 bales last year.

SMALL SUPP GOOD BEEF STEE ON LOCAL MARKET

Prices Average 15c to 25c Higher in the Late Week; Hogs Are Steady.

RECEIPTS AT NATIONAL STOCKYARDS.

	Week. Last	Week. Prev.	Ago. Year
Cattle	11,848	7,595	12,586
Hogs	79,914	45,835	59,253
Sheep	5,508	9,172	11,312
Horses and Mules	6,294	7,332	2,768

While receipts last week were heavier than those of the previous period, still they were only moderate and still a little below normal for this stage of the year. Beef steer supply was good all during the week, but quality was lacking, there being nothing strictly prime on sale, with the exception of a small bunch of yearlings which made $9.

The market fluctuated slightly, a decline being evident on Monday. However, this was quickly regained and as the runs became lighter during the middle and latter stages of the week, a 15@25c advance governed the steer trade. This gain stood for the week. Medium and common steers showed less advance than did better grades. No full loads of prime beeves were on sale and consequently $8.25 topped the best offer. A large string of native Oklahoma steers sold for $7.20@7.30.

Trade Is Rather Quiet.

Trade in heifers was in many respects similar to that in steers. While a liberal supply was received Monday and prices declined, still, with light runs subsequent to the opening day, prices gradually reacted and bulk of heifers closed steady. Choice light-weight kinds were in strong demand all week, and were mostly 15@25c higher. No full loads of heifers sold above $8.25 last week.

Cows were by far the firmest spot in the butcher trade. Just a moderate supply was on sale at all times, and there was a good demand for all grades. Canners were 10@15c higher and cutters up to choice heavy cows showed a 15@25c advance. Bulls were also in light supply and sold 15@25c higher.

Vealers were irregular and fluctuated widely during the week, finally closing 25c lower. Top during the early part of the week was $10.75, but later it dropped to $10.50.

Trade in stockers and feeders was conducted on a 25@35c higher basis and was by far the most satisfactory of any week since the quarantine was imposed. Local traders secured the bulk, and while country inquiry was light, competition was strong enough among the local buyers to cause the advance.

Receipts Are Heavy.

Receipts in the southern division were just about double those of the preceding week, but were still only moderate. A good showing of Texas steers was on sale. Steers predominated in the week's supply, Southeastern States also contributed heavily of steers. There was a good demand for them at all times and they sold firm at 10@15c advance. Texas steers made $6.30@6.40. Alabama was the chief contributor of Southeastern steers last week. A very light supply of canners, shestuff and mixed classes was on sale, and while there was a good demand there was no change in prices, market being steady from day to day. The same also applied to yearlings and heretics.

Each day there was a right good supply received and the total for the week is much better than either of the two previous weeks, but hardly as good as a month ago, when we were receiving around 90,900 per week. The fore part of the week there was a good many pigs and lights offered, a good many of which were not very desirable, but there was a lot of good hogs also received during the week.

Prices were not materially changed from the previous week, but still they were slightly better on an average. Shippers were good buyers most of the time for desirable offerings of weights, but the poorer grade of pigs and lights did not find a very good outlet. Packers were better operators than usual, and purchased a good share of the hogs for which they paid right good prices.

The top of the market averaged between $6.80 and $6.95 all week, while the bulk of the hogs went at $6.65@6.85. Best grades, 165 lbs. and over, sold right up close to the top each day, while plain mixed offerings went at $6.50@6.85 and rough packers $6.10@6.35. Best lights went at $6.60@6.85; fair, $6.25@6.50; best pigs, $6.35&6.65; fair, $6.00@6.30 and poor grades, $5.00@6.00.

Supply of Sheep Small.

With a very small supply on sale each day the market was in good shape all week and values were really on the highest basis they have been in the past two or three years. The arrivals, like for several weeks past, were practically all either direct from Colorado or else they were Westerns fed in Illinois, Missouri, Iowa or Nebraska, and most of them were strictly good.

City butchers paid as high as $10 for lambs, while the packers went up to $9.50, and a lot of good lambs sold as high as $9.50@9.85. Fair grades went at $9@9.40, and the culls and others that were not desirable $7.50@8.50. All lambs that could possibly be used went to the killers, as they really needed a lot more than arrived and would gladly have purchased them at good strong prices.

The good kind of yearlings went at $8@8.25, which is a pretty high figure for yearlings. Mutton sheep went at $7.25@7.40, if strictly good, and others $7@7.10. What few bucks were offered went at $6.

Trade last week in horses and mules was on a steady basis throughout. Receipts came in lighter than usual, and the auction demand was fairly strong. Buyers were here from the East and South and a fairly good showing of Eastern chunks and drafters were disposed of. Southern buyers took fair supplies at the usual price range. War animals were the strongest sellers and large offerings of these types found outlet.

Mule trade remained on a generally steady basis throughout the entire week. Buyers were calling for all the good big mules 15 hands high and over, and paid fair prices, but values have never recovered from the low range which they struck last fall. Shippers are being advised by sellers to buy cheap in the country.

Wheat futures touched the lowest prices in two months on the Merchants' Exchange last week under an avalanche of selling orders. There was a fair rally in the market yesterday, when the May option advanced 4⅛ cents. Quotations, however, were materially below last Saturday's finals.

Bombardment of the Dardanelles was used by the "bears" in putting prices down, as it was confidently asserted that the opening of these straits would mean the release of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat from Russia for absorption by England and France. There is little doubt, however, that this theory is fallacious. In the first place, Russia last year shipped only 176,000,000 bushels of wheat, not all through the Dardanelles, from a normally large crop. With war on her hands at present, wheat is the most valuable assets Russia has. It is not likely, therefore, that holders of wheat would throw their supplies on the market regardless of price.

Wheat has been cheaper in Russia than any other large country for several months past, but now that the opening of the Dardanelles seems possible, the price is advancing, and it will probably be found, should they be opened, that Russian wheat will be close to the level in other exporting countries, especially as if the war is to last, which seems likely, holders of wheat will hardly market their supplies freely until a new crop is assured.

It is likely that had not the attack on the Dardanelles developed as a factor to depress wheat, that something else would have been used as a "bear club." The market at the recent high level was honeycombed with pyramid accounts that had piled up in all domestic markets by traders who made fortunes out of "shoestrings." Once the selling wave started there was no stopping it until a thorough housecleaning took place. Best opinion now is that this has been accomplished.

Blockade Is a Factor.

Some traders attach more importance to England's embargo of shipments to Germany and countries that might supply Germany, than to the Dardanelles bombardment. Ever since England's embargo was declared there has been a lessening of our exports. Dealers and exporters are in fear of making shipments until there is more assurance that they will reach their destination unmolested. So much of the recent wide rise in prices was based on our enormous exports that any lessening in the outgo would mean a material adjustment of prices. There are some traders who think England's attitude will be modified, but best opinion is that the embargo will stand.

Reports from the domestic winter wheat belt are highly optimistic and last week the entire growing belt had beneficial snow and rain. There is every indication that the new crop will start the actual growing season under ideal conditions, on a largely increased acreage. If so, the "crop killers" will have to fall back on Hessian fly damage and dry weather for bull news.

The Modern Miller says: "Heavy snowfall in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahome and practically the entire soft winter wheat belt is highly beneficial to the winter wheat crop, which will be in fine condition to stand March weather. In the Southern belt reports indicate that the crop with growing weather shows rapid improvement. Weather conditions, with the possible exception of Texas, are ideal."

Broomhall cables: "Latest revised figures as compiled officially show that the territory held by the German invaders in France comprise: Wheat, 1,509,000 acres; barley, 113,000 acres, and oats, 1,251,000 acres. Weather has been altogether unfavorable where planting has been done, and the scarcity of labor has been a serious menace both to planting of new crop and harvesting the old."

Wheat on passage for the week totaled 48,520,000 bu, against 43,760,000 bu last week and 45,008,000 bu last year. Domestic crop reports were favorable.

The Oklahoma State report on winter wheat placed the condition on March 1 at 93, against 79 on Feb. 1 and 96 on Feb. 1 last year. The crop has been benefited by recent rains.

The domestic wheat visible decreased 2,073,000 bu for the week; corn, 800,000 bu; oats increased 257,000 bu.

Export clearances of domestic wheat and flour from the United States in February, as near as can be figured, were 30,587,000 bu, against 7,555,000 bu last year. Total from July 1 to Feb. 28 is about 240,000,000 bu, against 109,000,000 bu last season.

Corn futures were weak and lower in sympathy with wheat, but met good support on the break. Receipts are falling off rapidly and the movement from first hands promises to be small from now forward. Export demands are reducing the surplus slightly, but the visible is still cumbersome. Oats showed relative firmness on continued heavy buying by exporters.

CHICAGO WHEAT PRICES FAVOR BULL TRADERS

CHICAGO, March 6.—Wheat made a sharp advance in price today, influenced by firmness of quotations at Liverpool and by reports of a continuance of urgent cash demand on this side of the Atlantic. In addition, the advices from Petrograd saying the belief here that immense shipments of wheat from Russia would be made as soon as the Dardanelles were open, was unfounded. Unfavorable weather in Argentina counted also against the bears. After opening 1⅛c to 3½c higher, the market scored a moderate further gain and then steadied at a reaction of about 1c.

Lively buying on the part of commission houses carried corn upgrade. Offerings were limited and in the main were from pit speculators. The opening, which varied from the same as last night to ¼c higher, was followed by a decided general advance.

Oats ranged higher, with other cereals. Demand from the seaboard was again in evidence.

Strength in the hog market gave a lift to provisions. There was unusually free buying in small lots.

It was estimated that export sales in the United States today aggregated 1,000,000 bushels of wheat. The close here was steady at 2¼c to 3¼c above last night.

Strength of wheat formed the chief prop for corn. The close was firm at ⅝c to ⅝@¾c net advance.

SHAKSPEAREAN PAGEANT PLANNED HERE IN 1916

Percival Chubb Says Margaret Anglin Can Be Obtained to Head Company of 1000.

Percival Chubb, leader of the St. Louis Ethical Society and chairman of the Shakspeare Committee of the Dramatic League, who has just completed a lecture tour in the East, told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that, acting under the authority of the Pageant Drama Association, he had concluded arrangements with Margaret Anglin to conduct a great Shakspearean pageant in Forest Park some time during the summer of 1916. April 23, 1916, marks the 300th anniversary of the death of the greatest of English poets and the pageant will be in celebration of the anniversary.

Miss Anglin probably will be assisted by Otis Skinner and about 1000 St. Louisans in presenting one of Shakspeare's plays, with incidental dances of the Elizabethan period. Skinner has given tentative agreement to the proposal that he appear with Miss Anglin.

Report on Plan Friday.

Chubb will make his report regarding the plans for a Shakspearean pageant to the Pageant Association on Friday of this week. He said yesterday that when he went East he was commissioned to see if, in view of the Shakspeare tercentenary, it would be possible to arrange for a second big pageant that would equal, if not excel in dignity, that given last year. He said he believes the plans he has been able to outline will make the production the most important ever given in an American city.

While speaking in the East, Chubb addressed meetings in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Washington and Philadelphia, which were attended by city officials and representatives of almost all of the leading educational organizations of the city. The object of these meetings was to arrange for a nationwide celebration of the Shakspeare anniversary.

He says that the proposal as presented by him on behalf of the Drama League met with enthusiastic response, and that judging by the first plans agreed upon, 1916 will be a Shakspeare year. Schools and universities will be asked to give a Shakspearean touch to their commencement exercises, and librarians have agreed to give special prominence to the works of the poet and works regarding his career.

BATTLESHIP MAINE SUNK IN NEW YORK NAVY YARDS

Vessel Settles in Mud After Bonnet on Valve Gives Way, Letting in Water.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The Battleship Maine, doing duty as receiving ship at the New York Navy Yard, today was sunk in the navy yard. The misadventure came about while workmen were making engine room repairs. The bonnet on the port injection valve suddenly gave way and 12 feet below the water line a 12-inch stream of water rushed into the port engine room.

As the men scrambled out of the compartment the call to collision quarters was sounded and the water tight doors of the port engine room were closed. Under the inrush of water the battleship surged heavily against her mooring lines, and heeling to port as the water came in, settled in the mud. A few hours later the hole was plugged and the ship floated. Then it was taken to dry dock.

In 1896 the old Battleship Texas laid the foundation of her subsequent hoodoo reputation by sinking at a berth close up to where the Maine rested her keel in the mud, and under similar circumstances.

ROBBED BY CONFIDENCE MAN

A youth who said he was Charles Mitchley, 21 year sold, of Williamsport, Pa., told the police last night he had been robbed of $40 by a confidence man. He said he was standing at the levee and Market street in the afternoon when a stranger came up and spoke to him.

The stranger said he was a rancher from Nevada, and was hiring a crew of young men to work for him. He offered Mitchley a job as helper on a trainload of cattle he said he had bought for his ranch, and the young man accepted. They walked to Hall street and Bremen avenue, when the stranger said he must stop and procure railroad tickets. He discovered he had only $12 with him. Mitchley let him take his $46, and waited for him to come back with the transportation. He waited a long time.

West Virginia Colliery Workers Without Food or Drink Since Explosion.

HINTON, W. Va., March 6.—Forty-seven miners were rescued alive today from the workings of the Layland mine of the New River and Pocahontas Consolidated Coal Co., wrecked by an explosion Tuesday. The men for four days and nights had been without food or drink.

Rescuers, headed by J. W. Paul of the Bureau of Mines, Earl Henry, chief of the State Department of Mines, and H. M. Bertelot, general manager of the company, entered mine No. 3. Tearing down a brattice work to let in fresh air, they found five men, who seized and kissed them.

Continuing the search, the rescuers encountered another brattice about 500 yards beyond. Here in an entry they found 42 men alive. The miners were in such weakened condition that the rescuers had to carry them through the damp and gas to the entrance.

Medical aid was given the men and they were taken to their homes. All, it is believed, will recover.

Tonight 53 men, including those found today, had been rescued alive; 85 bodies had been recovered, and 30 or more were unaccounted for. All but 11 of the dead have been brought out.

That some of the men had prepared to meet death was evidenced by a note written by Hugh McMillan, which said:

"All hoping that the rescuers will reach us in time and all praying to our Saviour that such will happen, trusting to God that the air will last until they reach us. I am writing to my wife, Mary, to bring up the kiddies loving their Saviour as I am now. How our sins creep up in our faces in a time like this. Love to all."

Eat Insoles of Shoes.

Geno Murrelli, one of those found with Morici, said of his experiences: "It was a mighty long wait. We all wanted water, and bread, too."

Howard Hughard, 18, said:

"We Americans kept cool and some slept a little. We prayed and sung hymns."

One of the 12 American-born miners found in entry No. 10 was William Dorange, who escaped from the explosion in a mine at Eccles, W. Va., last March, when nearly 170 men were killed.

Frank Janony said: "We eat bark on mine post, get so hungry. Eat insoles of shoes and good, too."

FIRE AT NORMAL SCHOOL WILL NOT STOP CLASS WORK

Students at Warrensburg Will Resume Study Tomorrow in Churches and Public Halls.

WARRENSBURG, Mo., March 6.—In spite of the destruction of the Warrensburg Normal School building by fire this morning school will open as usual Monday. Arrangements have been made to use the Dockery gymnasium as an assembly and study hall. The manual training building escaped the flames and its equipment is intact. The Warrensburg High School building and nearby churches will be used for recitation rooms.

The loss is estimated at $500,000, with an insurance of about $75,000.

The fire was first discovered in the west side of Science Hall and an alarm was given. Within a few minutes the flames swept through that structure and the administration building, east into the main building and south into the auditorium and domestic arts building. All these structures are built in an "L" shape. The Dockery gymnasium and the manual arts building, which were detached were saved.

SALESMAN WHO HAD BEEN MISSING ENDS HIS LIFE

Friend Had Just Found Edgar Bergman and Taken Him to His Home.

Edgar Bergman, 36 years old, a sales manager for the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., ended his life at 12:30 p. m. yesterday by drinking carbolic acid in a room which he occupied in the home of Mrs. William F. Griffith, 5204 Maple avenue. He returned from a road trip six weeks ago, but had not been heard from by his firm until yesterday, officials there said. A search was made for him and he was found at the Pontiac Hotel, Nineteenth and Market streets, where he had registered as "E. Berg."

Charles Becker, a salesman for the dry goods firm, yesterday morning persuaded Bergman to return to his room at the Maple avenue address. Becker said that after he got him there Bergman started to undress. Becker stepped outside to speak with Mrs. Griffith. When he went back into the room Bergman had taken the acid.

A physician was summoned, but Bergman died without speaking.

Bergman had been with the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co. for 15 years. He had been in ill health for two years. He has a mother in Louisville, and a sister in Lexington, Ky.

CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

St. Louis Man's Alleged Accomplice Acquitted in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 6.—John Murphy, of St. Louis, was found guilty of manslaughter today. Leo McQuade, tried with Murphy for the murder of Robert Koch, was acquitted. The shooting occurred Nov. 4, 1914, in a rooming house in Chicago conducted by a woman known as Countess Lolita Predosa, and Murphy claimed he shot in self defense.

A portion of the trial was held in the apartment house where the shooting occurred, owing to the illness of the Predosa woman, who was one of the principal witnesses.

COLUMBIAN WYANDOTTE, FIRST-PRIZE HEN.

RAISING POULTRY PRIZE WINNERS IN A CITY BACK YARD

St. Louis Man Tells How He Succeeded by Intensive Selection of Breeding Pens.

"How to Raise Poultry Prize Winners in a City Back Yard" would be an appropriate title for the article that follows. The writer, Joseph Leithem of 4373 Neosho street, St. Louis, took home three prizes from the recent great State Poultry Show in the St. Louis Coliseum—one awarded to a Columbian Wyandotte hen and two to ducks he exhibited. Leithem had as his sole equipment when he began poultry raising his natural love for birds and information he gained in a correspondence school course. He writes:

The Columbian Wyandotte is the beauty bird alike among Wyandottes and all other varieties, although meager space is devoted to this fact in poultry publications. But to raise show birds and prize winners from a flock of Columbian Wyandottes means a long road of labor, experience and expense. The fundamental working principle may be called "intensive selection and breeding."

For the beginner, the first step is to obtain hatch eggs from a reliable breeder of Columbian Wyandottes, selecting only the best chicks as soon as their good points are visible. These pullets, a year later, should be placed with a male bird, also obtained from a reliable breeder of the same variety. Price should play no role in this step.

Mating Prize Winners.

This mating may produce birds that can be entered for exhibition for the prime purpose of comparing them with prize winners. Should any of these exhibits win a prize and are females, they should be mated with a cock of the same variety, preferably obtained from the best the showroom has to offer. Let the price of the cock be $5 or $10 or higher, as the bird's value may merit. If the winning exhibit is a male bird, the same plan should be followed by careful selection of female birds to mate with the prize cock

But even this procedure does not always produce prize winners and may have to be frequently repeated to obtain results. An almost infallible rule, however, would be: Always keep only your best birds and mate them with equally good or better stock until prize winners are obtained; from these matings select your stock and you will have good birds all the time.

Details as to body formation, color of plumage and prize points of Columbian Wyandottes can be obtained from the Standard of Perfection, the recognized publication on poultry types and classifications. It is available through any poultry club.

Experience the Gauge of Space.

In raising show birds not much space is required. Almost anybody can raise prize winners with only one or two pens, if the birds are properly mated. Only the best females should be kept and mated with the best male. From four to six females to one male is a good rule, but only two females to one male would be much better than four or six if the additional birds were not up to the standard of the two.

If a fancier or breeder hatches eggs from only two hens to one male, he knows exactly what stock he is dealing with and what to expect. He can keep closer watch over breeding confined to a few excellent birds than he can over a large flock of varying grades, and the selection will be quicker, surer and easier.

But even though a small city lot will provide sufficient space for raising prize winners, the beginner must remember results are not obtained in one or two years. The space of experience required is longer and greater than the space for housing the fowls.

The Columbian Wyandotte hen which won first laurels in its class at the State Poultry Show was raised by me only after the most careful selection in mating and breeding during five years.

Some Points on Duck Raising.

The two prize winning ducks are of the Muscovy type and of great value for market purposes. Their meat flavor probably excels that of any other fowl. A striking characteristic is that Muscovys make no quackling noise. They are of two varieties, that of white and that of various colored plumage.

My experience is that ducks are not more difficult to raise than chickens. They require about the same yard and floor space and as to housing and ventilation, their needs are about the same. As they do not sleep on perches the floor must be well cared for. I use a thin litter, dry leaves preferred to straw, and clean this out once a week. I see to it that the floor always is dry. They need no water except that to drink. In a general way their care is very like that of the chicken.

It is a good plan to watch the stores and markets for a chance to buy small and defective cabbages, also turnips or other root vegetables, at low cost. They will furnish excellent green feed, so much needed at this time of year. It's a good plan to hang up the cabbages and let the birds have some exercise in jumping up to pick at them.

Bankers Back Girls' and Boys' Poultry Ventures

Club Loan Plan in Arkansas Starts Youngsters Out With Flocks on Business Basis.

H. C. Read, Mayor of Fort Smith, Ark., H. K. Saunders, County Agent, and E. N. Hopkins, editor of Arkansas Fruit and Farms, are at the head of a group of business men who are organizing the boys and girls of the State into clubs to promote poultry keeping and stock raising. The plan has already achieved big results.

Bankers and others loan each boy or girl $5 for a pen of chickens or a pig or a calf, on a promissory note for the amount loaned, at 6 per cent interest and payable 12 months after date from the sale of original stock or its increase. The boys or girls must be members of the clubs and within the age limits of 10 to 18 years. There is no expense to the membership, and each investor must report on progress to the person financing the venture.

The plan also provides that the person financing the boy or girl and also the latter's parents take an active interest in the work and that parents or guardians waive all claim to any stock. Each county has its clubs, with officers and executive boards.

PURE BREEDING A PREREQUISITE IN POULTRY KEEPING

Success Hinges on Mating Strong, Healthy, Mature Birds —5 or 6 Hens to One Male.

Few duties in modern poultry keeping are of such vital importance as the selection of the breeding stock. The results of good or bad mating are so far-reaching that the necessity of following tested principles can hardly be overestimated. Whether wanted for laying, for meat, for show purposes or for any other uses, good parentage in birds is a prerequisite.

In sorting out birds for the breeding pen, only strong, healthy, mature specimens, that are known to be good producers, ought to be considered. If they possess all the other qualities, but you are not quite certain about their maturity, it is always best to play safe and let such birds go over for another year.

What a world of grief could be avoided for the breeder as well as for the buyer of eggs for hatching if the breeding pens received the attention they should. How much ill feeling and discouraging experiences could be sidestepped by more careful methods both in selecting the individual birds and in caring for them afterward.

Even when the birds decided upon for breeders are all above reproach, a common mistake is to have the proportion of females too large for the number of males. Five or six hens to one male of the larger breeds, and not more than eight or ten hens per male of the smaller kinds should mean 90 to 100 per cent of fertile eggs, if the males are vigorous and well-bred, and if other conditions are equal. It is always better to be on the safe side and have plenty of males to insure fertility in the eggs that are to be sold for hatching. This means satisfied customers, and satisfied customers mean more sales.

Another mistake frequently made with breeding stock is to feed too heavily of laying stimulants, thus overtaxing the vitality of the birds and diminishing the fertility of the eggs and the strength of the stock hatched from them. A barred rock hen, in the writer's experience last year, laid 34 eggs in as many days. She was in a pen of five females and one male. Every one of the first 16 eggs were fertile, but out of the next 10 only six were fertile. Not one of the last eight eggs laid would hatch. Then she took a rest, and on beginning to lay again, every egg turned out to be fertile.

There is nothing difficult or technical about feeding breeding stock for best results. The proper variety of feed, given with good judgment, is all that is necessary. If the birds are closely confined, the feed should be such as will supply the elements available when birds are on open range. Whenever possible, the feed should be given in such a way as to induce exercise. Grain can be scattered in a deep litter, and cabbages or roots may be hung up to obtain this result.

Briefly, the rations should be made up of the ordinary grains fed to poultry, such as corn, kafir, wheat and oats. Do not feed too heavily of corn or kafir or an overfat condition will result. Sprouted oats and chopped, scalded alfalfa or clover will satisfy the need for green food, while ground bone and meat scrap will furnish the animal portion of the ration. Sometimes tankage, such as is used for hog feeding, is fed with good results in place of other meat foods. The mineral part of the ration is supplied by grit and shell.

Poultry Paragraphs.

The flock that gets bone meal and oyster shell will have few cases of leg weakness. These feeds mean a strong frame for your birds. They are also valuable in egg making.

I think more and more of the practice of keeping wheat bran before the fowls all the time. It is inexpensive. It is excellent food. It is a good regulator of the bowels.

Look out for egg-eating pullets. In some places finely broken, dried egg shells can be purchased. They will help to prevent egg eating and are valuable otherwise.

If you purchase eggs to place either in the incubator or under the hen, keep them in a cool place, allowing them to "settle" for 24 hours before starting the incubation process.

Poultry Problems Solved

Laying Records.

I have read the article of M. M., who has 43 Leghorns and who got 573 eggs in June. I want to know if that was as good a record as they should have made. I submit the following: I have 17 pullets which laid 299 eggs in the same month. The feed I use consists of corn, wheat and oats, dry mash always in the hopper, green bone twice a week, green feed and plenty of fresh water. What do you think of the average?—E. C. W., Newport, Ky.

This is a very good record. Your system of feeding seems excellent.

Cost of Feed.

I have noted often that you place the estimate of the cost of feeding a hen at about $1 a year. Will you please tell me how this can be done? I keep 30 hens and at an average of $1 a year a hen the feed would cost me $2.50 per month, but I spend $5 per month in feed. I feed such grain as I think they need, mash, meat scraps and plenty of sprouted oats. I get about 20 eggs per day, which I think is doing very well, but if there is any way to accomplish the same results with less expense I should like to know it.—W. S., St. Louis.

I am sure you are mistaken when you say that I have given $1 a hen a year as the average cost of feeding. I don't think I have done that. I recall that I more than once stated it cost $1.50 or more at the present price of feed. I know it has been a common idea that fowls can be fed for $1 a year apiece. This could have been done when the price of feed was lower and perhaps something like it can be done in exceptional cases now, but it cannot be done if one pays the price now charged for grain and other feeds in the cities. You speak of feeding grain but don't say what grain you are feeding. Of course, if one is feeding any amount of wheat this year, the cost of feeding is pretty high. Wheat is almost twice the average price right now. In fact, if you are making wheat a considerable part of the ration, I don't know how you can do much better than $2 a year per bird.

Laying Records.

I noted the account of J. W. R. of St. Louis, who tells about the record of his 32 mongrel pullets. It is very interesting to me. My flock of 12 Buff Orpingtons, hatched in March, commenced laying in November and during January laid 214 eggs. The rations were kafir morning and night, table scraps and skim milk at noon. Is this a good record?—C. O. C., Leon, Kan.

It is a very good record. It is about 18 eggs per pullet during the month, which is good at any time, but particularly good in January, when weather conditions are not the most favorable and when fresh eggs in the cities are worth 3 cents apiece and up.

chickens have something which I must be the roup. Some of the chicks got it last fall when they e about 3 months old. It started h a cold. They have a rattling und in the throat. They have an odor hich is so bad you can hardly bear to andle them. They seem hearty and their heads are red. I now have two hens which have a rattling in the throat. Do you think they caught it from the others?—A. J. A., Pine Bluff, Ark.

Your chickens unquestionably have what is called roup. It is not clear to me whether the young chicks have the disease now or not. If it has persisted all through the winter I would get rid of the birds. I think the hens referred to have gotten the roup from the others. I have frequently recommended the use of permanganate of potash. Make a strong solution of it, put it in the nostrils and mouth with a common glass dropper and immerse the head momentarily in the solution. Try this twice a day. Be sure also that your poultry house is in a dry, sanitary condition. I would keep just a few crystals of the permanganate of potash in the water, just enough to give it a claret color.

Which is the best method of feeding, to have wheat bran before the chickens all the time or to feed it at each meal? Would ordinary kitchen white wash be all right for a chicken house with a little disinfectant added?—A. S., St. Louis.

I favor the plan of keeping the bran before the chickens all the time. They will nibble at it and will not eat too much. It is not very fatening. The white wash you refer to would be satisfactory for the purpose named.

Pigeons.

I recently bought a male homing pigeon. The other day I noted that its vent seemed to be sore. It looks scaley, or it may be dried mucous that gives it this appearance. I never saw anything like it before. Can you give me a cure?—J. S., St. L.

Without seeing the pigeon I am inclined to think the trouble is "kleet." It is dangerous and highly infectious. It is a venereal disease really. Don't breed from this pigeon until he is cured. In fact, I believe he should never be used for breeding purposes. I do not know a cure for kleet. Put him by himself, use carbolated vaseline, keep the affected part clean and watch him for a time.

Q. Recently you published an extract from a speech in Congress in which the American hen was lauded. It was stated in this speech that the hen could produce as much in six months as the annual production of pig iron in this country, etc. How do you figure this?—A. J. L., St. Louis.

Value of Poultry Products.

A. The poultry editor would not care to be held accountable for congressional oratorical effusions. The publishing of such a statement by a paper like this should not be understood as endorsing its entire correctness. Still I think the orator was not far out of the way. The New York World Almanac gives the total pig iron production for 1913 as $453,000,000. The total value of all marketed poultry products, poultry and eggs, according to the latest available figures is around $670,000,000. These figures do not include the poultry and eggs consumed at home by the producers. If these latter items were added the total would probably be not much short of $1,000,000,000. This total is sometimes given as the gross value of all poultry products.

URGES "EMANCIPATION OF MAN"

M. E. Grossman Tells Women Why He Favors Equal Suffrage.

M. E. Grossman, attorney for the Board of Education, speaking on "Mere Man" at the Town Club luncheon yesterday at the Annex, said that while mere man was not managing politics perfectly, "mere woman" would be able to do little to better conditions were she granted the ballot.

Grossman detailed the workings of the ward bosses in controling primaries, and urged women to take a greater interest in things political, especially the convict labor question and the workingmen's compensation acts.

Explaining why he favored equal suffrage, he said: "Mere man now goes to the polls and votes largely in accord with the wishes of his wife, sister or sweetheart. Give women their own vote, so that we may vote as we ourselves wish. The emancipation of man is my plea."

WOMEN INVESTIGA… BACK'S ACC…

They Became Suspicious … Errors in Report on Recei… at Bazar at Coliseum.

SHORTAGE TO BE MADE UP

Men Who Forced Him to Leave City to Repay Money to Jewish Charities.

The true story of the circumstances which led to the sudden and enforced departure of Jacques Back of 5896 Cates avenue, editor of "The American Jew," from St. Louis, was told to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday by persons familiar with the facts, who did not wish their names to appear as givers of the information. Back was required, by a number of leading supporters of Jewish institutions here, to leave the city within 24 hours or stand prosecution for his mishandling of funds intrusted to him. He at once chose the former alternative, and left St. Louis last Monday night.

Back's shortage with the Jewish charities and with the Young Men's Hebrew Association will be paid by the men who gave him 24 hours to leave the city. An audit is being made of the books of the Y. M. H. A. bazar, held a year ago in the Coliseum, to determine how much is to be made up to the association. The $500 lost to the charities by Back's cashing of a $500 check, to which the indorsement of Sigmund Baer was forged, will be made up by the same men.

Mrs. Back to Be Provided For.

It was also stated yesterday that Mrs. Back, who is still at the Cates avenue address with her two children, will not be permitted to suffer want because of her husband's absence, and that, when Back has established himself elsewhere, she will be provided with funds to go to him.

Insistent inquiries of women, who gave a week's hard work in the Y. M. H. A. bazar, first caused the investigation of Back's affairs, according to the story told to the reporter. These women, anxious to learn how much had been raised for the association by their efforts, inquired of Emil Mayer, treasurer of the bazar fund.

When the women heard of the reports Back had made to the treasurer regarding the receipts of various booths they told the treasurer that either there was a mistake somewhere or else expenses were being charged of which they had no knowledge. These reports became so insistent that a quiet investigation was begun into Back's affairs.

While this investigation was under way it was learned that Back had cashed at the Mechanics-American National Bank a check for $500 sent by Mrs. William Barr of New York for the use of Jewish charities here, and upon which had been forged the indorsement of Sigmund Baer of 5314 Waterman avenue, secretary and treasurer of the Stix, Baer & Fuller (Grand-Leader) Dry Goods Co., to whom the check was made out, although it was sent to Back at his solicitation. It was also found that in securing the check Back had used without authority the name of Mrs. Charles A. Stix of 26 Portland place.

Five men prominent in Jewish affairs held a consultation and summoned Back to meet them in the Pierce Building office of Moses Fraley, father of Mrs. Stix.

At this conference Back said he had been "found out" and admitted having diverted funds of the bazaar, and dues received for membership in the association, to his own use.

Saw No Way Out.

Back had begun the publication of "The American Jew," a weekly magazine. He said his affairs were so involved that he saw no way out. The men at the conference had no wish to prosecute Back. One of them said that Back had made many friends by the excellent manner in which he taught at the Sunday School of Temple Israel and at times read the Jewish service when Rabbi Harrison was away from the city.

After some consultation, the men in the conference told Back he could escape prosecution by leaving the city immediately and remaining away. Back had already closed a credit clothing business at 203 North Seventh street. He willingly accepted the terms offered.

The entire store will be decorated with flowers at the spring opening.

Patrick Coffey, 75, Is Missing.

While his family were moving from their old home at 4100 West Pine boulevard to their new residence at 1106 Forest avenue, Patrick Coffey, 75 years old, disappeared on Feb. 25, and nothing has been heard of him by the family since that date. Police search has been unavailing. When Coffey was last seen he wore a dark suit and a soft hat. He is minus the second finger on his left hand and has a red birth mark on his right cheek.

CREDITORS SUE BOILER WORKS

Bankruptcy Proceedings Are Filed Against John Rohan & Sons.

An involuntary bankruptcy suit against the John Rohan & Sons Boiler Works Co. of 1915 North Sixth street was filed yesterday by five creditors.

The petitioners were the Rubelman & Lucas Hardware Co., with a claim of $325.45; the A. S. Aloe Co., $30.27; Johnson-Peter Co., Pittsburg, $84.57; the Garland Nut and Rivet Co., $52.86, and the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co., $9.77. PLAN CITY OWNERSHIP LEAGUE

Chouteau-Lindell Citizens Name Committee on Organization.

A movement for the formation of a City Ownership League has been instituted by the Chouteau-Lindell Improvement Association, through the appointment of a committee. The committee consists of Felix P. Lawrence, chairman; C. W. Logan, J. H. Llewellyn, John L. Corley and Joseph F. Dixon.

The committee is considering plans to build up a city-wide organization for the city ownership of traction, power and lighting plants and city motor buses, with a view to construction of the proposed Missouri-Meramec hydro-electric plant in St. Louis County, and requests those interested to send their names to Joseph F. Dixon, secretary, 4067 Labadie avenue.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

7500 PARKWAY REFERENDUM PETITION NAMES ACCEPTED

Over 1500 Rejected of Those Canvassed by the Election Board Yesterday.

The Election Board announced yesterday that a canvass of 110 parkway referendum petitions disclosed 3412 acceptable signatures and 1574 names that were rejected.

The total of bona fide signatures now tabulated is about 7500, and the anti-parkway forces will succeed in forcing a referendum if 3000 more names are accepted of the 7000 that have not been canvassed. The first petitions of the supplemental filing indicate that the necessary 10,000 names have been obtained and when the Mayor's conference of civic bodies meets Wednesday evening at the city hall, it will be definitely known whether an appeal to the incoming Board of Aldermen to call a special election, will be required.

Under the petitions filed, the referendum vote would not occur until the next regular election, November, 1916. A special election can be provided by ordinance within 90 days, and parkway advocates are placing all candidates for the Board of Aldermen on record regarding the parkway election.

IF YOU LOSE ANYTHING, and will advertise it here, you will surely recover it if found by an honest person. A two-time ad seldom fails. Remarkable recoveries are brought about every day through this column. Your druggist our agent.

IF YOU FIND ANYTHING, bring it to the Post-Dispatch Lost and Found Bureau, 210-12 North Broadway. Get a claim check. Advertise the article. Reclaim it if the owner does not.

THE LAW—People who find lost articles are interested in knowing that the State law (sections 8283 and 8273, R. S. 1909) is strict in requiring them to seek the owner through advertisement and otherwise, and that a failure to do so, if same can be proven, involves a severe penalty. (52)

LEARN TO PLAY

PIANO OR ORGAN

IN A FEW HOURS

IN YOUR OWN HOME

A Detroit musician has invented a wonderful new system which enables any person or little child to learn to play the piano or organ in one evening. Even though you know absolutely nothing about music or have never touched a piano or organ, you can now learn to play in an hour or two. People who do not know one note from another are able to play their favorite music with this method without any assistance whatever from anyone.

This new system is called the Numeral Method. Write today for our Free Booklet, which will be sent postpaid at our expense and which will explain our special offer and tell you all about this successful method that has already brought pleasure and happiness to thousands of homes in all parts of the United States and Canada. Simply write us a postal card or letter, saying: "Please send me your Free Booklet." This will cost you nothing and put you under no obligation to us whatever. "IN JUSTICE"
To all well-meaning piano purchasers and curselves, we would like to impress upon you that a legitimate piano business is like any other business. A reliable dealer cannot afford to "give" pianos away, so to speak. We've been here over 40 years and know that we give our patrons more for their money than our competitors (our selling expenses are far the lowest. We have no solicitors). We have always sought to sell only reliable pianos and players and no factory has any strings tied to us, so that we represent them just as they are. In players we have 9 different standard makes for you to choose from. Just think of the assortment, from $350 to $900. All we ask is that you come and see what we can do for you before buying elsewhere. Terms arranged to suit you.
F. BEYER & SON, 17th and Locust.

As one man puts it: "In the matter of a home you work for the landlord or for yourself. As a renter you work exclusively for the landlord. As a homebuyer you work chiefly for yourself. Your payments increase your equity steadily until you are sole owner. That's better than paying endless tribute—the rent-payer's task." Consult the Post-Dispatch Big House, Home and Real Estate Guide for "home" offers.

POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF REAL ESTATE NEWS

BY BERRY MOORE

TENTH AND OLIVE DEAL IS ON BASIS OF $8000 A FOOT

Amount Disclosed in Shepley Estate Purchase Was $200,000; However, Price Paid Was Virtually $400,000—Property Brings Big Rentals.

BROADWAY MAY GET A SKYSCRAPER HOTEL

If Deal Is Decided Upon It Will Be Constructed at Washington Avenue—Ground Floor to Be Occupied by Several Banks.

Announcement of sales and of leases of high-class business and residential holdings continue to be features of the St. Louis realty market. The most notable was wherein the Shepley estate acquired the fee of the northwest corner of Tenth and Olive streets.

While the amount disclosed in the Shepley estate purchase was only $200,000, or at the rate of approximately $4000 a front foot, the price paid was virtually $400,000 or $8000 a front foot.

The additional $200,000, or $4000 a foot, was paid to the Maffitt estate, the former owner of the site, as a bonus about 12 or 15 years ago, when the Shepley estate acquired a 99-year lease of the holding. The lease, in which an annual net rental of $8000 was designated, provided for the purchase of the fee within a given period, at $200,000, or $4000 a front foot, the option to purchase being renewed several times for a consideration.

The site has a frontage on Olive street of 49 feet 8 inches, by a depth along Tenth street of 109 feet. It is improved with a modern five-story building, which is occupied by retail stores, and which was erected by the Shepley's estate at a cost of probably $75,000 or $100,000.

Rents Have Paid Handsomely.

Including the expenditure for the building, the purchase represents an investment of about $500,000, or $10,000 a front foot. The purchaser, however, has been reimbursed more or less by rents from the building, which, it is understood, range from $20,000 to $25,000 a year.

In assessing the benefits for the straightening of the street at Thirteenth and Locust streets, three or four years ago, the value of inside ground on Olive street at this point was estimated at $7500 a front foot, and corners at $9500 a front foot, exclusive of the improvements. Since that time, values on Olive street have been comparatively stationary.

Records disclosed the fact that investments in real estates on Olive street have been lucrative in the extreme.

The Tenth and Olive streets corner, previously mentioned, became a magnet for speculators or investors about 25 years ago, when it was purchased piecemeal by the late W. W. Culver for $75,000. A year or two later he disposed of it for $175,000 to the late P. C. Maffitt, who had just sold the Olive street cable line.

Thus the sales of the corner yielded Culver and Maffitt, in addition to rentals, respectively, profits of 0,000 and $200,000.

Catlin Now Owns Corner.

The northeast corner of Twelfth d Olive streets was sold by the late W. Culver to Daniel Catlin in 1914. hile the price announced was $600,-00, it is understood it was inflated counterbalance the advanced ices of a parcel of property given part payment.

The site, which is improved with mporary two-story brick buildings, s purchased by Culver prior to the rld's Fair for $250,000, his net fit on a conservative basis being m $100,000 to $150,000.

he Broadway Savings Trust Co.'s se of the northeast corner of Broady and Lucas avenue, announced exively in the Post-Dispatch two weeks provides for the purchase of the for $62,000, it was announced yesy. The lease is for a term of 20 , and calls for an annual rental of trust company, of which Franklin ackes is president, is now located at southeast corner of Broadway and nbers street. The new location, h is opposite Union Market and one north of Washington avenue, is situated for a bank or trust com-otiations involving the removal of s banks to the northeast corner of way and Washington avenue have nder way again and again. Both ra klin and the German-American ow located, respectively, at treet and Lucas avenue and nd Morgan streets, have been mentioned as prospective lessees of the corner.

The deal which is exciting most interest, however, is that which looks to the erection on the site of a skyscraper hotel, with banking quarters on the first floor. The prime mover of this project is a real estate man who has signalized himself in realty and building operations in downtown St. Louis, but who declines to allow his name to be used until things have taken a more definite shape.

The corner, which is owned by E. C Simmons, and which is occupied by a five-story building, adjoins the site of the new Missouri Athletic Association Building, now in process of construction. The present tenant of the corner is the Hub Furniture Co., which soon will remove to the southwest corner of Ninth street and Washington avenue.

SERIAL NOTES FOR $325,000 ON WINFIELD SCOTT ESTATE

Mercantile Trust Company Puts Out Issue of 6 Per Cent Paper on Property in Fort Worth, Tex.

The Mercantile Trust Co. has put out a new issue of $500 6 per cent first mortgage real estate serial notes. The pamphlet descriptive of the notes contains illustrations of the properties covered by the mortgage, and information concerning mortgage notes.

The mortgage, which was made by the Winfield Scott Estate, is for $325,000 and embraces eight parcels of real estate in the business district of Fort Worth, Tex. These properties are assessed for tax purposes at nearly three times the total amount of the loan, and return an annual gross rental of $113,000, the aggregate rental for three years exceeding the maximum mortgage. A substantial number of the notes are to be retired annually, the last maturing in five years.

Scott was a pioneer citizen of Fort Worth, but for several years before his death he lived in St. Louis.

SAM KOPLER GETS PERMITS TO BUILD FOUR BUNGALOWS

Two Will Be Erected on Page Near Sarah Street—Others in Forest Lawn.

Sam Kopler has taken out permits for the erection of two bungalows on the south side of Page avenue, 300 feet east of Sarah, and for two in Forest Lawn at King's highway and Oakland place. Kopler also announced that he is having plans made for the erection of eight bungalows on Columbia avenue, in Southwest St. Louis.

In many instances his bungalows are sold from the plans before completion.

Third Floor of Building Is Leased to Gus Eckert.

The North St. Louis Savings Trust Co. reports having leased the third floor of the building at the southwest corner of Grand and St. Louis avenues to Gus Eckert, for C. E. Zelle and A. W. Gibson. The floor is being altered for lodge hall purposes. Eckert will sublet to various lodges. The building will be known hereafter as Woesten Hall, the Woestens being pioneers near Grand and St. Louis avenues. This site formerly was occupied by the John Hancock Life Insurance Co.

NOVELTY THEATER IS SOLD

Easton Avenue Property Bought by O. T. Crawford.

The Novelty Theater Building at 3528 to 3536 Easton avenue was sold last week by the Albert G. Blanke Real Estate Co., on behalf of the Trinity Realty Co., to O. T. Crawford.

The property has a frontage of 51 feet on Easton avenue, extending through to Page. The building, which is of modern construction, was controlled under a lease by Crawford.

The price paid, it is said, was $20,000.

Kirschbaum Moves Downtown.

George A. Kirschbaum has taken a suite of offices on the third floor of the Wainwright Building, at Seventh and Chestnut streets. He was formerly located at Grand avenue and Arsenal street and at Grand avenue and Juniata street. He was identified with several important transactions while at these two locations.

CITY'S PROGRESS RELATED

Nine Members of Exchange Who Attended First Dinner 25 Years Ago Are Decorated.

Mayor Kiel, speaking at the twenty-fifth annual banquet of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, at the Mercantile Club last night, said that with the passage of the bond issue to insure the completion of the free bridge, one of the greatest steps in recent years in the progress of the city, he would be greatly disappointed if the bridge was not ready to be dedicated in October, 1916.

Edmund R. Kinsey, president of the Board of Public Service, declared the bridge would be ready to dedicate and open to traffic at about the time Mayor Kiel named. Kinsey asked the co-operation of the Real Estate Exchange in solving the problem of making the best use of the bridge when it is completed. He suggested that the city acquire the terminal tracks along the river front when the franchise expires, Dec. 15, next, and add other terminal facilities connecting the bridge with the industries of the city.

Both Mayor Kiel and Kinsey spoke of the central traffic parkway as a great need for the progress of the city, and other speakers predicted prosperity and many improvements for St. Louis in the next few years. Mayor Kiel called attention to the approaching completion of the new filtration plant at the Chain of Rocks and declared that St. Louis will then have 100 per cent pure water. Among other measures he advocated for the betterment of the city was the taking over of the Industrial School by the Board of Education and the development of river navigation.

Nine Get Silver Cross.

At a special table at the banquet sat nine members of the exchange who were present at the first banquet of the organization 25 years ago. They were referred to as the "class of 1890" and in honor of their many years in the business in St. Louis they were decorated by the exchange with the "silver cross," a medal resembling the German iron cross.

They were Gustave W. Niemann, Robert Rutledge, Joseph Dormitzer, Julius Pitzman, Charles F. Vogel, J. T. Donovan, Henry L. Cornet, Fred G. Ziebig and Samuel Bowman.

An entertaining feature was provided by A. R. Schollmeyer and Sidney Schiele, who gave a travesty of the quarrel scene between Brutus and Cassius in Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." Schollmeyer as Cassius is a "real estater" and finds himself in the toils of Brutus, a shrewder "real estater," as played by Schiele. He has "shot his clear farm" for a heavily encumbered equity in an apartment on the Apian way and is bound by a contract which obligates him to pay at a certain time whatever sum Brutus finds he has in bank.

He is on the verge of despair until after examining a map he finds a gleam of hope in his discovery that the apartment on the Apian way is in reality on the famed pakway. The piece closed with a touching scene in which Cassius vowed he would suffer even death before he would see his friend Brutus lose a commission. It contained many local hits highly enjoyed by the real estate men present.

Rise in Values Recalled.

Some of the older members were reminiscent in their speeches and told of the remarkable rise of real estate values over what they were in the early days. Julius Pitzman said he remembered the time, although he did not name the date, when the tract which would now be bounded by Lucas and Franklin avenues and Broadway and Jefferson avenue was sold for 28 barrels of whisky. Edward A. Bokern, president of the Exchange, who presided, said that in 1816 the northeast corner of Sixth and Chestnut streets sold for $325 and that in 1830 the northeast corner of Sixth and Pine streets sold for $1000.

John W. Gundlach, former president of the City Council, talked on the advantages of the parkway, the outer park system and an improved river front. His talk was illustrated with stereoptican slides and moving pictures showing water fronts and park systems in other cities and showing what could be done in St. Louis.

He declared that to prosper commercially in this day a city must be beautiful. The beautiful city, he said, will grow fastest.

Charles R. Davis, president of the Real Estate Association of Milwaukee, was present and gave a short address. Other speakers were Robert Rutledge, J. T. Donovan and Samuel Bowman.

Among the former presidents of the Exchange in attendance were Gerald B. O'Reilly, A. R. Schollmeyer, Adrian O. Rule Albert Terry, Fred G. Zeibig, Robert Rutledge, Judge John H. Terry, Edward Hildenbrandt and H. T. Haydel.

The banquet committee was composed of Charles Z. Trembly, Harry L. Borders, Eugene Epstein, John J. Dowling, A. H. Frederick, W. J. Hruska, Chas. C. Kunz and R. D. Kaime.

Charles Z. Trembly and John A. Watkins, the opposing candidates for the presidency of the Exchange, both of whom were present, were not among the speakers.

PURCHASE OF FINE ARTS BUILDING FOR SCHOOL IS PLANNED

University City Board of Education Obtains Option on Structure at $40,000.

The Board of Education of University City has obtained, through John S. Carter & Co., agents for Matt G. Reynolds, receiver for the Lewis corporations, an option to purchase the Fine Arts Building in University City. The price involved, it is understood, is $40,000.

The building is to be converted for high-school purposes, for which it is especially adaptable. The purchase is contingent upon the approval of a $60,000 bond issue, which will be submitted to a vote on Tuesday, March 9.

The building, which was designed five years ago by the late W. S. Evans, cost $50,000. It is more than 200 feet wide and is 25 feet deep. The construction throughout is fire proof, with the latest sanitary floors.

On account of the increased assessed value of the property in University City, the board is very confident that the bond issue will not increase the present school taxes, which are 60 cents on the $100.

Bonded real estate service is now offered St. Louis landlords by Conrad L. Schopp of 1003 Chestnut street, one of the most progressive and successful rental agents. The bond is furnished by the Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland, whose assets exceed $11,500,000.

Schopp believes this system should be extended. He declares the Legislature should pass a law requiring all agents to give bonds to landlords. He will try to get the Real Estate Exchange to indorse this proposal.

MYTHS AND TRUTHS ABOUT SPIES

"THE woman spy of fiction, though not absolutely a myth, is very rarely indeed. The siren of beauty and wit, mysterious as she is fascinating, makes a very pretty picture for a sensational melodrama; but it must be very obvious, on reflection, that she would defeat her own ends by the very mystery that is supposed to surround her."

Thus is one of the favorite errors concerning espionage exploded by a member of the English Secret Service in his new book, "The German Spy System from Within" (Doran). All of the glamor and romance with which spies are sometimes invested by popular imagination, led by lurid fiction writers, is swept away by the author, who declares that spying is the meanest and most sordid of careers, including listening at doors, stealing letters, blackmail and the corruption of victims with drugs like cocaine and morphine; and that the spy par excellence is one who has a decidedly criminal instinct.

The German spy of the higher class, says the author, undergoes a hard schooling of several months. He must speak at least one other language than his own. He must be a competent photographer. He must be a qualified surveyor, such as was the spy who, directed to obtain precise information about the Forth Bridge in England, was able, judging his distances merely by pacing, observing angles and triangulation, to ascertain the dimensions of the bridge with errors of less than a foot.

The spy must be able to draw from memory accurate scale maps, and must pass an examination in military affairs more rigid than that given army officers; for in technical matters the spy must not make a mistake; he must be able to place guns and men, works and engineering details, with accuracy, since misinformation is worse than none.

The naval spy must be an expert in topography, trigonometry, naval construction and drawing. He can recognize at a glance any of the various classes of torpedoes, mines, submarines and guns. With silhouettes he is made acquainted with every class of naval vessel in the world, and can recognize at sight any battleship belonging to any of the Great Powers.

Throughouh France, according to the author, Germany stationed spies who occupied what are called "fixed posts." These were Germans who, 10 or 15 years ago, went into France and set themselves up in business in the various towns. The German Foreign Office expected them to "live off the country;" that is, to make their business self-supporting if possible —although deficits were made up by the German Government.

They were instructed to take all pains to make themselves trusted and liked, to make themselves such a part of the life about them that in time they would come to be regarded by their French friends as one of themselves. In the meantime, every scrap of military information they could lay hands on was sent to Berlin by a "traveling inspector," for the spies were forbidden to use the French post, in which their letters might be opened.

The spies were directed to make an especial study of army and navy officers "in low circumstances;" who were so poor that they might be open to bribery. The wives of officers were also to be studied, and wherever one proved to be open to such an attack, she was to be blackmailed into supplying military information as the price of silence.

In Berlin, it is said, there is a huge card-index containing the most personal information about every officer in the French army and navy. No scrap of information is too minute to be preserved. Thus the German Generals are supplied with precise knowledge as to the character and abilities of the officers opposing them.

Women are employed as spies chiefly in such humble capacities as domestics, governesses or barmaids. Women of the underworld are a favorite tool. Two cases are cited in which women spies overcame the scruples of French officers by teaching them to use opium and cocaine.

As treachery is perhaps the most essential trait of a successful spy, he is not trusted too far by even his own government. The usual device to ensure his loyalty is to withhold a portion of his pay, which would be forfeited if he proves false. To rid itself of spies who "know too much" the German Foreign Office has various means. Undoubtedly, says the author, Dr. Karl Armgaard Graves, the famous German spy, was intentionally betrayed to the British authorities by a misdirected letter sent from Berlin, and put out of the way of doing harm through a jail sentence in Edinburgh. When it was desired to "remove" a German spy in Russia, a noted duellist was sent to the spot. He stirred up a quarrel with the spy and killed him.

The author says that in the present war the German spy system was triumphant in Belgium, and cites the fall of Maubeuge as being due to precise information concerning its forts and guns, and also to the existence of concrete foundations for the siege guns which were built by Krupp's, on the pretense of establishing a factory for making locomotives. On the other hand, he asserts, the spies made terrible blunders in convincing Berlin that Ireland would seize the opportunity of war to revolt, and that Britain's colonies were waiting only for an auspicious moment to rise against the Mistress of the Seas.

ASK YOU THIS QUESTION

BY GERALD STANLEY LEE

IF you go out of the door of your house and start down town to the theater and suddenly remember you have left the electric lights all burning full tilt, do you step back, put your latch-key in the door and go in and shut them off?

I do.

The other night in a hotel in New York, when I was halfway down from the sixteenth story in the elevator, I remembered I had left (let me see—2+2+4+1=9) nine lights burning full tilt in my room.

Did I look around at the other people in the elevator and think I would try to get them to go back with me and wait on floor 16 a minute while I put those lights out? Did I go to the office floor with them and then get myself hot back to floor 16 to put them out?

No, I didn't. I would be late to dinner.

Anyway, I worked this off on myself as well as I could. Another time, when I wouldn't have been late to dinner, might have done it as well as not.

Did I do it?

No. I thought it wouldn't cost me anything and I didn't do it. I let cost the hotel. I was a little uneasy (coming from New England) and tried to fix myself up with myself as the author of a long book on the Golden Rule—by thinking how much too much a day I paid for my room in that hotel anyway.

This worked very well for the time.

But it didn't work next time. I couldn't help remembering the thing. It nagged me. I couldn't bear having to be always hanging around myself and having to remember that I went back to turn lights out in my own house and didn't in other people's.

The fact is I might as well confide it to the reader—being an author is not all it's cracked up to be.

It is very awkward at times to have written a book of 561 pages on how it pays to do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

This is the difficulty I'm up against.

How can I keep on believing day after day in other people the way I have to, if I can't even believe in myself?

There it is. I have to face it.

I always go back now for electric lights. I make myself do it more quickly, I go back less and less far every time. My electricity-conscience is getting so connected up, I merely reach back in at the door now and snap those lights off and save—well, I don't know how many cents in the course of a week for the hotel.

Of course it doesn't mean more to the hotel.

It is a mere fleck on the bill, but it means a great deal to me.

And it counts in my next book, somehow—makes me mean it more and say it better.

I do like to have people believe me when I say a thing. It's worth walking a long way back for. And if I can get it in that simple way, by just walking back and collecting it—collecting a valuable, sincere, practical state of mind, a state of mind which does things—it's cheap.

Now I don't want anybody to think I'm preaching on this page and that I'm just putting up the Golden Rule before people as a virtue. It seems to me it's just plain common sense.

I wish people would stop harping on the virtues as if they were any special credit to anyone. It seems to me that when one looks into them they all turn out like this.

While I am about it, there are other things like this that have bothered me.

Letting myself be skipped by a conductor in a street car, for instance. Of course I wouldn't interrupt a conductor in a loud tone before everybody and tell him he didn't know his business and demand my right to give him five cents; but I would speak or rather I would prefer to speak to him a little low and slip the five cents into his hand quietly when nobody was looking.

I pay him the five cents to protect myself from myself. I can't bear to think I am the sort of fellow that can fool myself that way—handing out to people the Golden Rule with one hand and helping myself to somebody else's nickel with the other.

Somehow I do like to keep myself protected from myself, or whatever it is that keeps hanging around pestering me and trying to make out to myself that I am a mean, morally lopsided sort of fellow—always harping on the Golden Rule and how it pays other people.

I cannot stand it. I don't want to think I'm missing it all. I want it to pay me.

Now this article may sound to some people kind of nice and innocent.

I want to say right here I don't want anybody to think I'm specially or particularly straight.

I am just trying to be. That's all.

And I should think anybody could see from this article that I must have a time of it!

Probably other people do.

Take traveling expenses. I lecture for a fee and my expenses. Will I lecture better or be more convincing for charging people for a Pullman and saving the money by riding in the smoker? Or by charging them for a taxi and rumbling in a street car?

I can only say as I have said before—this isn't a virtue. If anybody thinks it's a mere virtue—let them sit down and think about it or let them try it. It's just plain, hard, morally economical longheadedness. My main object in this mortal life is to have people when I say a thing believe me.

Considering the subjects on which I try to make people believe me I need all the margin I can get.

Every little extra good start or headway I can get by believing me, myself, helps. I am not going to back down in the main purpose and the main power of my life—just for the momentary foolish little luxury of not doing as I would be done by.

It's not what it's cracked up to be, anyway. It's a vice, of course, and for the first blooming seconds before the down rubs off, I admit, it's great, a vice is, almost any vice, but I submit it to everybody who has made a few intelligent experiments, as every man should (younger the better), in not doing as one would be done by—I ask everybody, candidly: "Who is there out of all of us who really thinks it works?"

Here is another virtue, the virtue of doing one's work better than one has to.

The plain businesslike fact is that one cannot afford not to. It's the making of any man to do his work better always than he has to—the habit, I mean. It will land him anywhere.

All the men at the top in the long run live in a rut of doing everything (for their own sakes) better than they have to.

The efficient half of the business world is organized on the axiom that a man must keep on all his life, giving something for nothing, something extra. Everybody wants him. He is priceless.

What is more, he is in a priceless state of mind. He becomes catching. He makes other men around him priceless.

Let no man tell me who knows nature and who knows business that a man who is giving, who always has the habit in his work of giving himself with full measure and running over, does not in the long run and by and large in this world find everybody crowding around him to do the same for him.

All the virtues work out like this. They pay their own expenses. They get some things charged for a while because there may happen to be people around us who don't know a bargain in a man when they see him. But in the long run all the virtues are honorably self-supporting virtues and foot their own bills.

If there is anybody reading this page who doesn't believe this thing I am claiming for the virtues, all I can say is: I wish he would pick out a few and try it.

Then let him tell his story. I will publish it and we will try to decide.

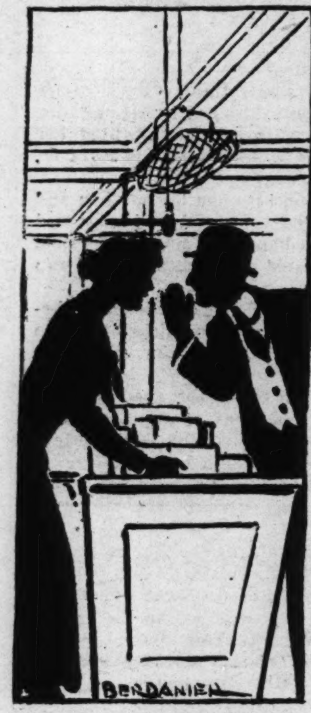
Anne Morgan Scolds American Girls

Late financier's daughter chides both rich and poor for shirking responsibilities ❧ Working girls regard jobs as makeshifts until they can catch husbands, and marriage as a paradise in which they will not have to work ❧ Author's views on society women and international marriages

MISS ANNE MORGAN.
Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

IT is a far cry from the shopgirl to the multi-millionaire's daughter who, through an international marriage, acquires a European title. Yet they are both sisters under the skin, through their common possession of the fault which is the chief characteristic of the average American girl—the fault of shirking responsibilities, of regarding it as her right to receive rather than to give, of repugnance to hard, honest work

What has an American-born peeress to do with hard work? the reader may ask. And how can the shopgirl, working many hours each day for a meager wage, be said to shirk her responsibilities? It is made plain by Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, in her little 66-page book, "The American Girl," which has just been published (Harper & Bros.)



"She does not take her work seriously, but regards it as only a makeshift to serve until she can capture a husband."

In American life today, says Miss Morgan, the wealthy girl is confronted by problems which she may face and overcome by hard, honest thinking, or which she may attempt to evade by seeking a refuge through marriage in Europe. Democracy is astir as never before, and social conscience has had a new birth. They are opposed to the selfishness which would base a separate caste upon wealth. Even the millionaire's mansion is invaded by the new spirit, and his daughter finds herself torn between an inclination to lead the idle, self-indulgent life of a Dollar Princess and the promptings of conscience which remind her of her own unusual responsibilities to society as a whole. If she is too cowardly and indolent to make a choice, she flees to Europe.

"The American girl who seeks to avoid the conflict by looking to European sanctuary," says the author, "is indeed deceived. She longs for the finish and beauty of the old order, and, in looking far afield to what past generations have accomplished, she fails to realize that it lies in her own hands to bring that same beauty into her own surroundings.

"A greater courage and a finer idealism will cause her to face the conflict at home."

And what of the shopgirl? Miss Morgan writes:

"The problem now facing the American girl is her utter inability to realize that her future can only be a logical development of her present. Her mental attitude pictures the distant years as a flowery period when the man of her destiny shall place at her feet the fruits of his toil, so that together they may wander hand in hand through the sunny paths of life.

"The girl who was led by circumstances to work for a daily wage at 14 will openly express her scorn of the girl whose marriage has meant a partnership in work as well as in play. The girl behind the counter and the girl at the desk will say with one voice: 'We work only until we marry.'"

In other words, she does not take her work seriously, but regards it as only a makeshift to serve until she can capture a man who will do the working for her. In consequence, her employer regards her as she regards herself—as a temporary stopgap. There are few efficiency classes for women employes in store or factory as there are for men; for the latter, knowing that the office boy of today may be the manager of tomorrow, consider their work in the light of a serious career. The girl employe, whose ambition does not lie in the direction of advancing the interests of the firm, but in that of the conquest of a husband, are paid the lowest possible wages and treated by the employers as necessary evils.

"Because of the fact," says the writer, "that modern condition have taken the work from the home to the factory, at present over eight million American women have entered the industrial world. These conditions can no more be changed than we can forget the discovery of the steam engine, and go back to the earlier civilization when the woman could weave and spin by her own fireside the rough materials which were to be worn by her husband as he worked at the forge and in the fields or went out to slay his enemy with his own hand.

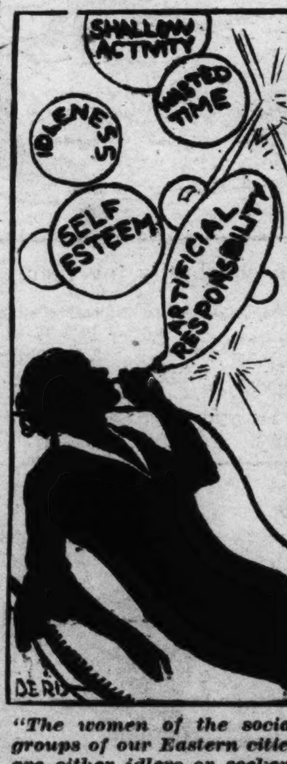
"Conditions have improved during these years, but civilization has brought to the woman a false conception of her own value in the world. She has grown to believe that a woman's duty is not to work, but simply to exist until such time as she can find someone who will work for her and support her parasitic existence. The harder her struggle the more she considers marriage as an ultimate goal, where she can rest from her labors."

Miss Morgan is convinced of the fact that every woman's real vocation is marriage; but insists that marriage shall not be regarded as a means of escape from work, but rather as an opportunity to do work of a nobler and higher form. Marriage is not a license to a woman to toil not nor spin for the rest of her life, but is a new and arduous job, to be undertaken with the joy of one who knows that work offers infinitely greater pleasures than does idleness.

Therefore, she would have the working girl regard her job not as a disagreeable interval, to be endured until the advent of a husband, but as an opportunity to prepare herself, by diligence and earnestness, for the tasks which marriage will bring. On the other hand, she would have employers recognize that the more seriously their girl workers are preparing for matrimony the better saleswomen they will make in the meantime.

One result, she asserts, will be that "the girl will be less interested in spending her hard-earned salary in vying with her companions to dress in the most extreme and the most inappropriate of the season's fashions."

Miss Morgan is severe in her discussion of international marriages, and is not certain whether this is not the American "melting pot's" method of "trying to clarify itself by throwing off its useless scum." "Is it sending off to Europe," she asks, "its pleasure-loving and self-seeking representatives that have been fed and nurtured in a group where privilege reigns supreme?"

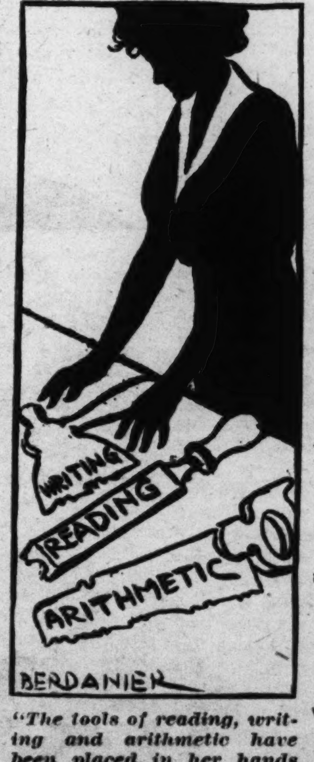


"The women of the social groups of our Eastern cities are either idlers or seekers after artificial responsibilities."

"The patriotic American woman," she adds, "who visits Europe for sufficiently long periods to enable her to establish herself in society, sees with clear eyes, sometimes with a kind of affectionate impatience, her young countrywomen who have taken root in the older civilization and who are the targets alike of admiration and of bitter criticism.

"For generations, now, current literature has been filled with descriptions of the American girl. We find her in English novels as a wild, undisciplined creature, with a desire for every luxury and a corresponding objection to any personal restraint. Germany and France present her to the world as an unsexed primitive force with an appendage of dollars which should unquestionably be used to reinstate financially some old and historic name.

"Back of the statements of fiction, however, lie certain indisputable facts.



"The tools of reading, writing and arithmetic have been placed in her hands with such blunted edges that they are of little value."

Sayings by Miss Anne Morgan

THE knowledge that a girl of 15 can acquire before leaving school is but small, whereas the mental and moral habits which she can acquire will control her entire future.

The girl whose literary horizon is bounded by the monthly or weekly periodical is indeed but half developed.

Equality of the sexes means in no sense similarity.

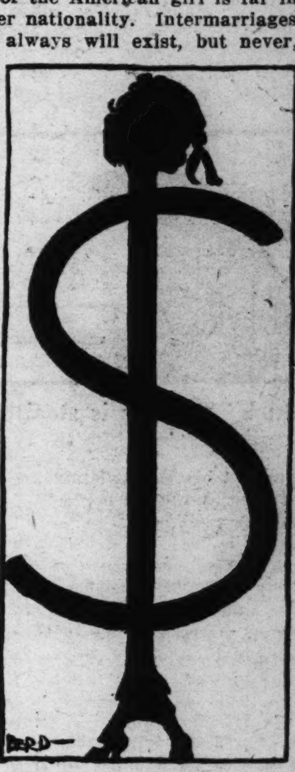
The average American girl does not really come into her own until the present ceases to be a desire for the possession of some coveted object, and the future ceases to be a vague dream of accomplishment without effort.

How incomplete is the home where no children exist? What do we care for the plant that, no matter how brilliant its foliage may be, bears no blossoms?

A woman's appeal is supposed—it is said with scorn—to be an emotional appeal. Let us accept the fact and glory in it.

* * * this Europeanized American often loses most of the superficial distinctions of her country; in true chameleon fashion she has taken on the exact color of her environment. Without study or analysis she has proceeded with a deadly facility for producing effects, and has soon assumed what is often the worst characteristic of her surroundings.

"This internationalism of the American girl is far in excess of that of any other nationality. Intermarriages have always existed and always will exist, but never, since the days of the barbarian invasions, has any one country supplied so many instances.



"Germany and France regard the American girl as an unsexed primitive force with an appendage of dollars."

"These same daughters are in many cases the children of great men, men who were filled with the splendid spirit of the pioneer—men of great vision and infinite capacity. Are their daughters so little true to type that they fail to see the higher and deeper ideal of their own age? * * * They have looked to Europe for greater freedom than they could find at home; instead they have found responsibilities enforced by generations of tradition."

"What can be found more limited, more narrow," asks the author, "than the various social groups in our large Eastern cities? How little they really know of the inner and intensive development of America! Their strong men are generally manipulators rather than creators; their conspicuous women are either idlers or seekers after artificial responsibilities which the dictates of absentee capitalism have forced upon those who feel the sense of responsibility to the community in which they live."

Miss Morgan has a poor opinion of the present-day trend toward individualism in the education of American girls. In this system, she says, the mind of the teacher as well as that of the girl is constantly turned towards the development of the pupil's own personality as the matter of vital importance. Discipline is unknown, because in modern eyes discipline is the blind acceptance of what is rather than what might be.

"There can be but one result of this hothouse development," Miss Morgan maintains. "The miserable little victim, taught only to follow her own whims, comes face to face with life as it really is, and finds herself utterly unable to cope with its problems and difficulties. * * * Discipline and order must be the foundations of any creative individualism. * * * Freedom of choice is indeed one of the greatest gifts possessed by mankind, but it must come to a well-trained and spiritually developed character, not to an ignorant and unformed child."

And in the public schools what effort is made to prepare for life that large proportion of girls who leave school in their fifteenth year to enter gainful occupations? From employer after employer in New York, says Miss Morgan, comes always the same answer:

"The average girl who comes to us for a position is totally uneducated; her years of school life have failed to teach her the rudiments of a business career; the basic qualities of accuracy and thoroughness are absent."

Still, the writer is not in the least pessimistic, but believes that the American girl will eventually work out her salvation.

"The girl of the future," she predicts, will have too fine a self-respect to fail to recognize the rights of others. She will learn to use and not to waste the love of the beautiful, the eternal desire to please."

Miss Ida Damon's First Photoplay

EVERYONE in St. Louis knows of Miss Ida Damon, winner over thousands of contestants of a $10,000 prize offered for the best solution of "The Million Dollar Mystery," a film production which ran serially for many months in movie theaters all over the United States.

Miss Damon had never written a photoplay, but her success in the contest has inspired her with an ambition to become a writer for the movies. Her first attempt at a complete camera drama, written after the prize was awarded, is presented herewith. It is a thriller of the Great West, a story of woman's courage and craft in defense of her love.

The author is 24 years old and is a stenographer, who had but four years' schooling. She lives at 3731 Minnesota avenue, St. Louis. Her winning contribution was paid for at probably the highest rate ever accorded a writer. For each of the 100 words of her solution she received $100. The film company which awarded the prize has signed an optional contract with Miss Damon to produce anything which she may write.

St. Louis girl whose solution won $10,000 in "Million-Dollar Mystery" contest, submits to Post-Dispatch readers her maiden attempt at a complete scenario—It is a Western thriller, with the story of woman's craft in defense of love.

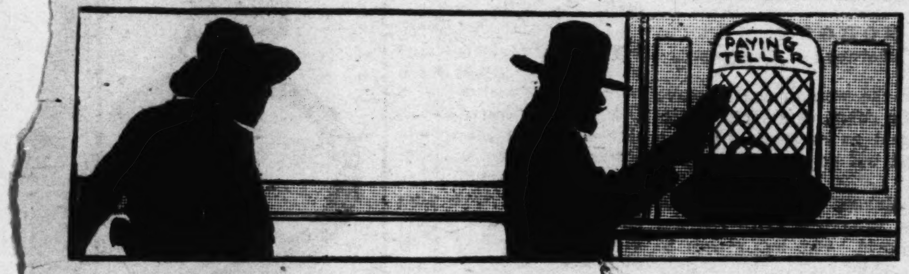
MADGE EVANS, young and pretty and a girl of the great out-of-doors, is the belle of a Western mining town, and is beloved by Jack Wilson, a youthful mining engineer, and by "Buck" Thomas, a romantically handsome and mysterious young man, who poses as a cowpuncher, but has a secret life in which he is a highwayman. She has given her heart to Jack, but their engagement is being kept secret for the time being.

Madge, as everyone knows, cherishes a bitter hatred against James Renwick, wealthy president of a mining company, whom she holds responsible for the financial ruin of her father in a mine war some years previous, and for his subsequent death of a broken heart.

Renwick has made arrangements to buy a ranch some miles out of town, and is seen in the bank drawing $20,000 with which to clinch the bargain. "Buck" is stealthily watching him, and on seeing him put the money in his belt, mounts his horse and rides away in the direction Renwick will take on his way to the ranch.



"Buck" Thomas is stealthily watching as Renwick draws $20,000 at the bank.

Some hours later Renwick, alone and driving his own automobile, is seen bowling over the prairie. He is halted by Jack, who comes riding on horseback to meet him, and who warns him that the men are on a strike at one of the mines near the ranch, and are in a violent mood. Renwick determines to go to the mine at once, and, as a precaution against possible trouble, gives his money and papers to Jack, telling him to take them back to town and put them in the bank. He then borrows Jack's revolver.

A few miles further on Renwick overtakes "Buck" Thomas and passes him. After the financier has gone on a few yards, the robber draws his revolver and fires at him, but misses. Renwick draws Jack's pistol and fires in return. There is a running battle, Renwick steering the car with one hand and shooting with the other. The horse is being distanced when "Buck" shoots out the rear tires, halting the automobile. Other shots are exchanged until Renwick falls dead. "Buck" examines his money belt and turns his pockets wrong side out, and registers disgust at finding them empty. He then gallops away.

After he has disappeared, the Sheriff and a couple of deputies, happening to be passing, find the body. Nearby is Jack's revolver, which they recognize.

Leaving his deputies to bring in the body and the automobile, the Sheriff hastens to town and arrests Jack for murder. He has not yet been to the bank, so that Renwick's money and papers are found in his pocket. His explanation of how they came into his possession and how his revolver happened to be found on the scene is not believed, and he is thrown into jail. Everyone believes him guilty except Madge.

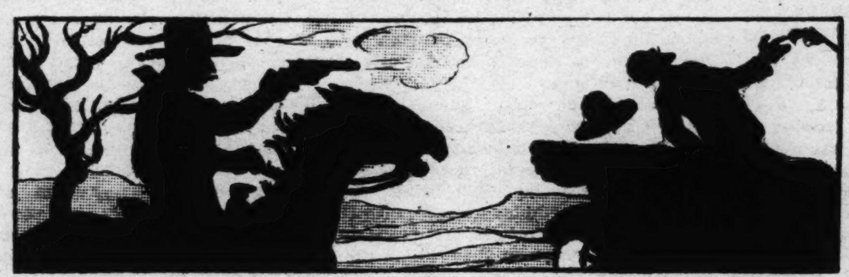
Throwing secrecy to the winds, she visits Jack in jail as his betrothed. He tells her that he believes the murder was committed by "Buck" Thomas, of whose mysterious comings and goings he has for some time been suspicious. Besides, he met Jack on the day of the murder as he was riding towards town to warn Renwick.

Madge, wrinkling her brow for a time, at last exclaims: "I've found it!" and explains that she has thought of a way to make "Buck" betray himself. She refuses to tell what her plan is, and begs Jack, whatever happens, to trust in her and be patient.

"Buck," who has followed her to the jail, sees her kiss Jack good-by through the bars, and in a burst of jealous rage reproaches her for giving her love to a murderer and robber. Acting her part well, she exclaims that Renwick ruined her father and brought him to the grave, and that she could not help loving the man who had revenged her, even if he was a murderer and robber. "Buck" believes her, because her hatred for Renwick was known to be deep, and is struck by the idea that in this case it is himself and not Jack who has earned her love. He hints that if she will meet him later he may have something of importance to tell her, and she makes an engagement to go riding with him.

On the ride she is praising Jack for killing the financier and saying that she can repay him only with her love, when "Buck" bursts out with: "Wilson never killed Renwick!" In reply to her pretended amazement, he refuses to tell how he knows that Jack is innocent, but presses her to promise that if the real murderer is found she will turn from Jack and give her heart to the true avenger. She promises.

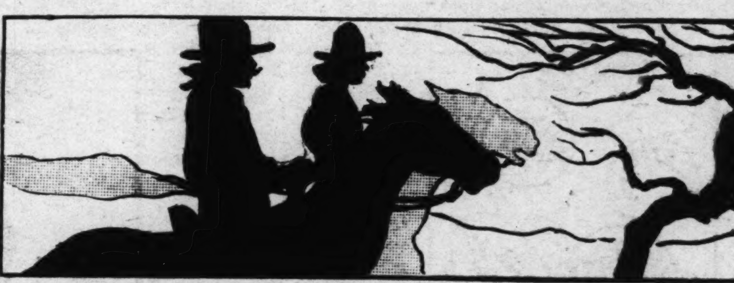
Thereafter Madge and "Buck" are seen constantly together, the girl employing all of her charms with artful coquetry to bring his infatuation to the point where he will tell her everything. She goes no more to the jail, and the prisoner, forgetting his promise to be patient, is consumed with jealousy as visitors tell him his "girl has thrown him over" for "Buck" Thomas.



Out on the lonely prairie Renwick meets his death at the hands of the desperado.

At last "Buck" is convinced by the girl's skillful acting that to win her he has only to confess that he was the man who killed Renwick. He promises that if she will meet him at a deserted cabin on the prairie he will tell her everything. She agrees to meet him there.

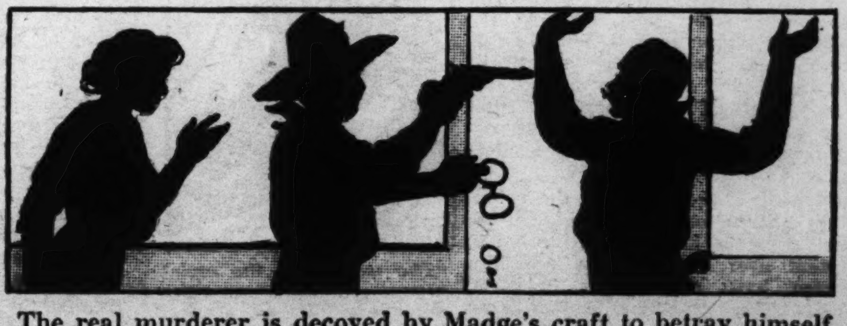
Madge then hastens to the Sheriff and takes him into her confidence. He praises her for her cleverness, and goes with his deputies to the cabin, where they hide themselves where they can overhear.



Madge and "Buck" are seen constantly together.

Madge and "Buck" arrive at the cabin, and he, striding up and down, exclaims that it was himself and not Wilson who killed Renwick. He seeks at once to claim his reward by attempting to seize her in his arms and kiss her. But she extricates herself and reminds him that he has still to prove himself the murderer.

He attempts to do so by telling of the attack on Renwick in detail, and in his effort to convince her acts the part of how he shot at Renwick, how the other fired back, how he shot out the pneumatic tires, how Renwick at last fell dead, and how he found his belt and pockets empty.



The real murderer is decoyed by Madge's craft to betray himself, and is arrested by the Sheriff.

Madge, still acting her part, pretends to be persuaded, and registers gratitude and admiration. "Buck" tries to kiss her again, but she puts him off by demanding to be shown the very gun with which he killed her father's enemy. Off his guard he hands her his revolver, and she exclaims aloud: "So this is the gun!"

At this signal the Sheriff and his deputies burst in and cover with their revolvers the confessed and disarmed murderer. As they snap the handcuffs upon his wrists he turns upon Madge with bitter reproaches for the trap she set for him.

She retorts in indignation that he insulted her by believing that she could hate anyone so wickedly as to wish him to be murdered, and reminds him that all is fair in love and war.

Madge hastens to the jail to break the good news to Wilson. But his despair at her having forsaken him, as he believes, and apparently throwing herself into the arms of the guilty man for whom he is innocently suffering in prison, has caused him to forget his promise to be patient, and at first he repulses her with anger and jealousy.

But with the aid of the Sheriff everything is at last explained, and he not only pardons "Love's Strategem," but is overcome with admiration and gratitude. "Buck" is thrust into the cell from which Wilson is released and the scene ends with the lovers in each others arms.

France Has New "Little Corporal."

FRANCE has a new "Little Corporal," the pride of the whole army, according to reports which have been brought by recent arrivals. Whether he ever becomes another Napoleon in later life, at least his record outdoes the first "Little Corporal" at the same age. Gustave Chatain now is 15 years old, but he was only 14 years and 7 months old when, Aug. 9, he saw the Ninety-Second regiment of the line marching by his father's field at Senlis. Gustave was cultivating beets, it seems, but he never got to the end of the row. He threw his hoe on the ground and fell in behind the soldiers. They liked the lad, and admired his pluck in hiding himself so well on the troop train that he reached the front undiscovered. Finding he was determined to remain with the regiment, the men had a uniform cut down to fit him.

His most famous exploit followed soon. Near Fontenoy, Sept. 13, a little girl ran up to him in the road, badly frightened and crying that the German soldiers were in her house. Gustave procured a rifle and followed the child to her home. When he did come into camp it was with seven Germans walking ahead of him

72 Years an "Orphan" in St. Louis Hom

Placed in institution when three years old, Miss Maria Eyre has never left shelter of roof ❧ Tots whom she helped to mother now have grandchildren of their own and those who have moved away still write to her affectionately

An old daguerreotype of "Miss Maria" taken before the Civil War.

SEVENTY-TWO years ago a little English girl, half-orphan, whose father had been drowned at sea, was brought to St. Louis by her mother. The mother had no friends or relatives here, and no means of support. She came to St. Louis because this city was the objective point of the little family expedition when it set out from the old home in England, and in seeking a means of livelihood she went to a clergyman of her own church for help. Work soon was found, but it necessitated a separation of mother and child, a baby of 3 years of age, and to meet the needs of the baby a little orphans' home was established.

That was the Episcopal Orphans' Home of St. Louis, the oldest orphanage in Missouri, and that little baby now is a woman of 75, and she still lives in the Home.

The Home has grown from a small house on Third and Biddle streets, with its single little orphan, to a handsome three-story modern institution on Grand and Lafayette avenues, with 100 children and a corps of trained attendants. But the original orphan never has left the shelter of its roof.

Her proudest boast is, "I am the reason for this splendid institution." And her greatest pleasure in the comparative idleness of her declining years is that she has spent her life in helping to make a home for children as unfortunate as she once was.

"And I'm not through yet," she always adds. "If you'd see the buttonholes to be made, and everybody waiting for me to do them! What does make children wear out their clothes so fast?"

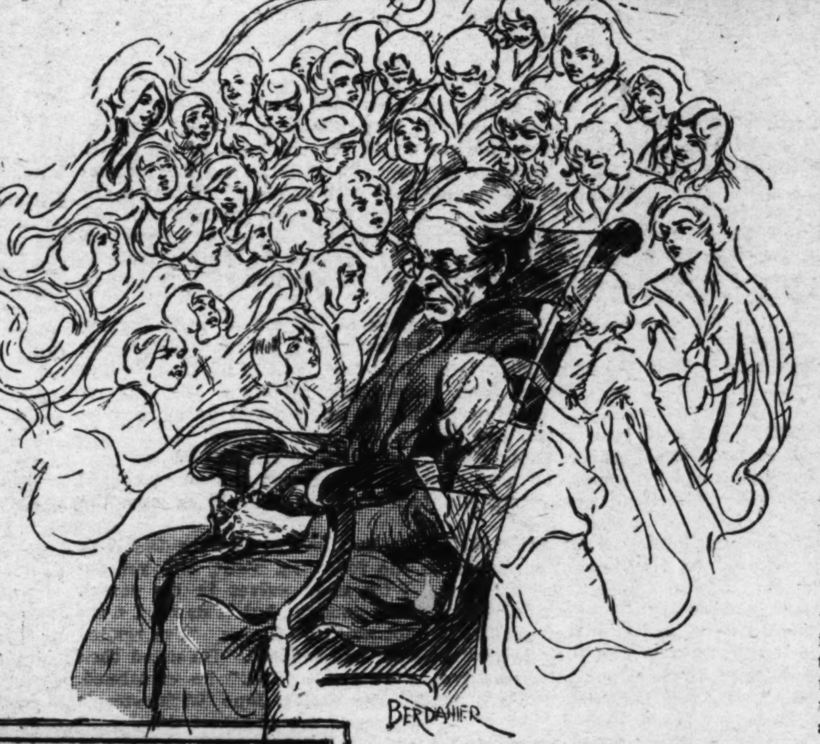
This original orphan is Miss Maria Eyre, known universally in the benevolent work of the Episcopal Church in St. Louis as "Miss Maria," and to the several hundreds of men and women, boys and girls, all of whom have been cared for at the Home, as "Mother Maria." She is a quiet, quaint little person, very frail but very cheerful, with a large fund of humor and kindliness that wins her friends everywhere.

She has lived through all the events of the building of St. Louis without being touched deeply by any of them. Her memory reaches far into the past and she talks interestingly of the time when Twelfth street was out in the country and when everybody traveled to and from St. Louis by steamboat. But she recalls great events like the cholera epidemic of 1849—which robbed her of her mother—the Civil War, the cyclone, the great street car strike and the World's Fair, only through contemporaneous happenings in the Home. The years are divided into epochs which begin and end at the arrival and departure of the successive matrons of the institution.

"Mrs. Martin was the matron during the war," she will say. "I remember they almost arrested her once because they found out she had been sending food and clothes to her husband in Price's army. I had the little children then, and I remember we were all so frightened till she came back and told us she [illegible]asn't going to be sent to prison."

The horrors of the first cholera epidemic she knew because of her mother's death, but those of the second are remembered only because just one girl in the Home died. The terror of the children during the cyclone impressed that event upon her memory.

Events of church history in St. Louis are much more firmly fastened upon her mind, for, aside from her work in the Home, her chief concern has been her church. She can tell much that others have forgotten respecting the greatly beloved Bishop Robertson and Dr. Schuyler, and no important incident in the annals of the Episcopal denomination in this city seems to have escaped her recollection.



Big events of the present, other than those concerning her church, also arouse only her mild interest. There are too many matters of moment in her own little world to demand her attention, and she has no time for the outside things.

But withal she has kept pace with the times and is quite as modern in her ideas as most women 25 years her junior. And she possesses a stock of quaint worldly wisdom and sound common sense that has stood her in good stead many a time in helping some of her boys or girls over rough places in their lives.

The question naturally arises as to why she is living in an orphan's hom instead of a home for the aged at th time of her life. The answer is tw fold. She chose to remain a helper the Home rather than leave it to ea a livelihood elsewhere, and while most of the girls raised to womanhood in the old institution with her married afterwards and now are grandmothers, she remained single to be a mother to the little motherless children whose only home was the institution of which she proudly believes herself to be the real founder.

In the early years of the institution there was a custom of choosing the helpers from among the girls and boys raised in the Home. As the children reached the age when it became necessary for them to provide for themselves they were given the choice between leaving to seek work outside or being employed in the Home, and those who chose the latter were paid like anybody else, and so became self-supporting in what they always regarded as their own home.

Miss Maria was one of [illegible]se. As soon as she was old enough to think about the matter she told the ma[illegible] she wanted to remain in the Home, and wanted to learn everything, so she could be a good helper. She was given a thorough training in all the lines of work required in maintaining the establishment, and being an apt pupil, soon became the main dependence of the matron. A natural love of children and a real talent for managing them aided her greatly, and she was only 18 when she was placed in charge of the infirmary, a post she has held ever since. Advancing years have compelled her to give up active work in this department, but the children always go to her even yet when they are ill, if not told to consult the trained nurse who now is in charge.

When there were no ailing little ones to nurse she busied herself with sewing and mending for the well ones, and in doing beautiful crochet work, which she sold at the church bazars. Failing eyesight has put an end to the crocheting, but the mending still goes on, and the sewing, especially the buttonholes, is a never-ending occupation, she declares.

Therefore, though she still is the first orphan in the Home, she also is a member of its house staff, and she mothers everybody in the institution, from Sister Leonora, the matron, to the tiniest baby in the infants' ward.

Miss Maria lives in a beautiful sunny room in the new part of the building, overlooking Lafayette Park. Her favorite pictures are on the walls and her favorite books occupy the shelves of a comfortable, old-fashioned "secretary." But she doesn't spend much time there. She goes out every day, winter and summer alike, unless it is stormy. She visits her "boys," some of whom are fathers of boys of their own, makes shopping expeditions downtown for the other members of the Home staff, or attends to her church work. Every Thursday she goes over to the boys' annex to mend and darn for the boys, and every fortnight she spends a day sewing at the women's guild of St. John's Church, of which she is a member.

Much of her time at home is occupied with letter writing, and it is a joke of the institution that hers is the heaviest mail sent or received.

"All my girls and boys think they can't get along if they don't get a letter from me just once every so often," she tells her visitors.

Then she takes out an old-fashioned photograph album and shows you pictures. Her kind brown eyes grow misty as she talks, memories of 70 years crowding each other in her active brain.

"They called me mother in those days," she says softly. "'Mother Maria.' Some of them call me that yet."

RIDERS OF THE PURPLE SAGE

By ZANE GREY

Chapter X.

LOVE.

"WHEN I rode—I rode like the wind," the girl was saying, "and never had time to stop for anything."

"I remember that day I—I met you in the Pass—how dusty you were, how tired your horse looked. Were you always riding?" asked Venters.

"Oh, no. Sometimes not for months, when I was shut up in the cabin."

Venters tried to subdue a hot tingling.

"You were shut up, then?" he asked, carelessly.

"When Oldring went away on his long trips—he was gone for months sometimes—he shut me up in the cabin."

"What for?"

"Perhaps to keep me from running away. I always threatened that. Mostly, though, because the men got drunk at the villages. But they were always good to me. I wasn't afraid."

"A prisoner! That must have been hard on you?"

"I liked that. As long as I can remember I've been locked up there at times, and those times were the only happy ones I ever had. It's a big cabin high up on a cliff, and I could look out. Then I had dogs and pets I had tamed, and books. There was a spring inside, and food stored, and the men brought me fresh meat. Once I was there one whole winter."

It now required deliberation on Venters' part to persist in his unconcern and to keep at work. He wanted to look at her, to volley questions at her.

"As long as you can remember—you've lived in Deception Pass?" he went on.

"I've a dim memory of some other place, and women and children; but I can't make anything of it. Sometimes I think till I'm weary."

"Then you can read—you have books?"

"Oh, yes, I can read, and write, too, pretty well, Oldring is educated. He taught me, and years ago an old rustler lived with us, and he had been something different once. He was always teaching me."

"So Oldring takes long trips," mused Venters. "Do you knew where he goes?"

"No. Every year he drives cattle north of Sterling—then does not return for months. I heard him accused once of living two lives—and he killed the man. That was at Stone Bridge."

Venters dropped his apparent task and looked up with an eagerness he no longer strove to hide.

"Bess," he said, using her name for the first time, "I suspected Oldring was something besides a rustler. Tell me, what's his purpose here in the Pass? I believe much that he has done was to hide his real work here."

"You're right. He's more than a rustler. In fact, as the men say, his rustling cattle is now only a bluff. There's gold in the canyons!"

"Ah!"

"Yes, there's gold, not in great quantities, but gold enough for him and his men. They wash for gold week in and week out. Then they drive a few cattle and go into the villages to drink and shoot and kill—to bluff the riders."

"Drive a few cattle! But, Bess, the Withersteen herd, the red herd—2500 head! That's not a few. And I tracked them into a valley near here."

"Oldring never stole the red herd. He made a deal with Mormons. The riders were to be called in, and Oldring was to drive the herd and keep it till a certain time—I don't know when—then drive it back to the range. What his share was I didn't hear."

"Did you hear why that deal was made?" queried Venters.

"No. But it was a trick of Mormons. They're full of tricks. I've heard Oldring's men tell about Mormons. Maybe the Withersteen woman wasn't minding her halter! I saw the man who made the deal. He was a little, queer-shaped man, all humped up. He sat his horse well. I heard one of our men say afterward there was no better rider on the sage than this fellow. What was the name? I forget."

"Jerry Card?" suggested Venters.

"That's it. I remember—it's a name easy to remember—and Jerry Card appeared to be on fair terms with Oldring's men."

"I shouldn't wonder," replied Venters, thoughtfully. Verification of his suspicions in regard to Tull's un[illegible] work—for the deal with Oldring made by Jerry Card assuredly had its inception in the Mormon Elder's brain, and had been accomplished through his orders—revived in Venters a memory of hatred that had been smothered by press of other emotions. Only a few days had elapsed since the hour of his encounter with Tull, yet they had been forgotten and now seemed far off, and the interval one that now appeared large and profound with incalculable change in his feelings. Hatred of Tull still existed in his heart; but it had lost its white heat. His affection for Jane Withersteen had not changed in the least; nevertheless he seemed to view it from another angle and see it as another thing—what, he could not exactly define. The recalling of these two feelings was to Venters like getting glimpses into a self that was gone; and the wonder of them—perhaps the change which was too illusive for him—was the fact that a strange irritation accompanied the memory and a desire to dismiss it from mind. And straightway he did dismiss it, to return to thoughts of his significant present.

"Bess, tell me one thing more," he said. "Haven't you known any women—any young people?"

"Sometimes there were women with the men; but Oldring never let me know them. And all the young people I ever saw in my life was when I rode fast through the villages."

Perhaps that was the most puzzling and thought-provoking thing she had yet said to Venters. He pondered, more curious the more he learned, but he curbed his inquisitive desires, for he saw her shrinking on the verge of that shame, the causing of which had occasioned him such self-reproach. He would ask no more. Still he had to think, and he found it difficult to think clearly. This sad-eyed girl was so utterly different from what it would have been reason to believe such a remarkable life would have made her. On this day he had found her simple and frank, as natural as any girl he had ever known. About her there was something sweet. Her voice was low and well-modulated. He could not look into her face, meet her steady, unabashed, yet wistful eyes and think of her as the woman she had confessed herself. Oldring's Masked Rider sat before him, a girl dressed as a man. She had been made to ride at the head of infamous forays and drives. She had been imprisoned for many months of her life in an obscure cabin. At times the most vicious of men had been her companions; and the vilest of women, if they had not been permitted to approach her, had, at least, cast their shadows over her. But—but in spite of all this—there thundered at Venters some truth that lifted his voice higher than the clamoring facts of dishonor, some truth that was the very life of her beautiful eyes; and it was innocence.

Day by day Venters watched the white of her face slowly change to brown, and the wasted cheeks fill out by imperceptible degrees. There came a time when he could just trace the line of demarcation between the part of her face once hidden by a mask and that left exposed to wind and sun. When that line disappeared in clear bronze tan it was as if she had been washed clean of the stigma of Oldring's Masked Rider.

It occurred again to Venters that he could go to the canyon where Oldring kept his cattle, and at little risk he could pack out some beef. He wished to do this, however, without letting Bess know of it till after he had made the trip. Presently he hit upon the plan of going while she was asleep.

Venters exercised his usual care in the matter of hiding tracks from the outlet, yet it took him scarcely an hour to reach Oldring's cattle. Here sight of many calves changed his original intention, and instead of packing out meat he decided to take a calf out alive. He roped one, securely tied its feet, and swung it up over his shoulder. Here was an exceedingly heavy burden, but Venters was powerful—he could take up a sack of grain and with ease pitch it over a pack saddle—and he made long distances without resting. The hardest work came in the climb up to the outlet and on through to the valley. When he had accomplished it, he became fired with another idea that again changed his intention. He would not kill the calf, but keep it alive. He would go back to Oldring's herd and pack out more calves. Thereupon he secured the calf in the best available spot for the moment and turned to make a second trip.

When Venters got back to the valley with another calf, it was close upon daybreak. He crawled into his cave and slept late. Bess had no inkling that he had been absent from camp nearly all night, and only remarked solicitously that he appeared to be more tired than usual, and more in the need of sleep. In the afternoon Venters built a gate across a small ravine near camp, and here corralled the calves; and he succeeded in completing his task without Bess being any the wiser.

That night he made two more trips to Oldring's range, and again on the following night, and yet another on the next. With eight calves in his corral, he concluded that he had enough; but it dawned upon him then that he did not want to kill one. "I've rustled Oldring's cattle," he said, and laughed. He noted then that all the calves were red. "Red!" he exclaimed. "From the red herd. I've stolen Jane Withersteen's cattle! * * * That's about the strangest thing yet."

One more trip he undertook to Oldring's valley, and this time he roped a yearling steer and killed it and cut out a small quarter of beef. The howling of coyotes told him he need have no apprehension that the work of his knife would be discovered. He packed the beef back to camp and hung it upon a spruce tree. Then he sought his bed.

On the morrow he was up bright and early, glad that he had a surprise for Bess. He could hardly wait for her to come out. Presently she appeared and walked under the spruce. Then she approached the camp fire. There was a tinge of healthy red in the bronze of her cheeks, and her slender form had begun to round out in graceful lines.

"Well, how does that strike you?" Venters pointed to the quarter hanging from the spruce tree. "We'll have fresh beef for a few days, then we'll cut the rest into strips and dry it."

"Where did you get that?" asked Bess, slowly.

"I stole that from Oldring."

"You went back to the canyon—you risked"——While she hesitated, the tinge of bloom faded out of her cheeks.

"I've done more than pack in that beef," he said. "For five nights I've been working while you slept. I've got eight calves corralled near the ravine. Eight calves, all alive and doing fine!"

"You went five nights!"

All that Venters could make of the dilation of her eyes, her slow pallor, and her exclamation, was fear—fear for herself or for him.

"Oldring has men watch the herds—they would kill you—you must never go again!"

When she had spoken, the strength and the blaze of her died, and she swayed toward Venters.

She leaned against him, and her body was limp, and vibrated to a long, wavering tremble. Her face was upturned to his. Woman's face, woman's eyes, woman's lips—all acutely and blindly and sweetly and terribly truthful in their betrayal! But as her fear was instinctive, so was her clinging to this one and only friend.

"Bess, are you thinking?" he asked.

"Yes—oh yes!"

"Do you realize we are here alone—man and woman?"

"Yes."

"Have you thought that we may make our way out to civilization, or we may have to stay here—alone—hidden from the world all our lives?"

"I never thought—till now."

"Well, what's your choice—to go—or to stay here—alone with me?"

"Stay!" New-born thought of self, ringing vibrantly in her voice, gave her answer singular power.

Venters trembled, and then swiftly turned his gaze from her face—from her eyes. He knew what she had only half divined—that she loved him.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

JANE WITHERSTEEN, Mormon heiress, is persecuted by the Utah hierarchy for her protection of two Gentiles, Venters and Lassiter, the latter of whom, in revenging the abduction and death of his sister, has become known as a Mormon-killer. Elder Tull, coveting Withersteen House, its thousands of cattle and the swiftest horses on the range, seeks to marry Jane. The Mormon leaders are in secret alliance with Oldring, a rustler, who runs off one of the Withersteen herds. While hunting for the missing cattle, Venters finds Oldring's stronghold in Deception Pass and wounds the cattle thief's notorious Masked Rider, who, to his horror, proves to be a girl. Lassiter, by an exhibition of consummate horsemanship, saves another herd which the rustlers stampeded. Jane adopts little Fay Larkin, promising her dying mother the child will not be reared as a Mormon, thus giving another deep offense to the churchmen. Venters carries the wounded girl into Surprise Valley and devotes himself to nursing her back to health.

Chapter XI.

FAITH AND UNFAITH.

AT Jane Withersteen's home the promise made to Mrs. Larkin to care for little Fay had begun to be fulfilled. Like a gleam of sunlight through the cottonwoods was the coming of the child to the gloomy house of Withersteen. The big, silent halls echoed with childish laughter. In the shady court, where Jane spent many of the hot July days, Fay's tiny feet pattered over the stone flags and splashed in the amber stream. She prattled incessantly. What a difference, Jane thought, a child made in her home! It had never been a real home, she discovered. Even the tidiness and neatness she had so observed, and upon which she had insisted to her women, became, in the light of Fay's smile, habits that now lost their importance. Fay littered the court with Jane's books and papers, and other toys her fancy improvised, and many a strange craft went floating down the little brook.

And it was owing to Fay's presence that Jane Withersteen came to see more of Lassiter. The rider had for the most part kept to the sage. He rode for her, but he did not seek her except on business; and Jane had to acknowledge in pique that her overtures had been made in vain. Fay, however, captured Lassiter the moment he first laid eyes on her.

Jane was present at the meeting, and there was something about it which dimmed her sight and softened her toward this foe of her people. The rider had clanked into the court, a tired yet wary man, always looking for the attack upon him that was inevitable and might come from any quarter; and he had walked right upon little Fay. The child had been beautiful even in her rags and amid the surroundings of the hovel in the sage; but now, in a pretty white dress, with her shining curls brushed and her face clean and rosy, she was lovely. She left her play and looked up at Lassiter.

If there was not an instinct for all three of them in that meeting, an unreasoning tendency toward a closer intimacy, then Jane Withersteen believed she had been subject to a queer fancy. She imagined any child would have feared Lassiter. And Fay Larkin had been a lonely, a solitary elf of the sage, not at all an ordinary child, and exquisitely shy with strangers. She watched Lassiter with great, round, grave eyes, but showed no fear. The rider gave Jane a favorable report of cattle and horses; and as he took the seat to which she invited him, little Fay edged as much as half an inch nearer. Jane replied to his look of inquiry and told Fay's story. The rider's gray, earnest gaze troubled her. Then he turned to Fay and smiled in a way that made Jane doubt her sense of the true relation of things. How could Lassiter smile so at a child when he had made so many children fatherless? But he did smile, and to the gentleness she had seen a few times, he added something that was infinitely sad and sweet. Jane's intuition told her that Lassiter had never been a father; but if life ever so blessed him he would be a good one. Fay, also, must have found that smile singularly winning. For she edged closer and closer, and then by way of feminine capitulation, went to Jane, from whose side she bent a beautiful glance upon the rider.

Lassiter only smiled at her.

Jane watched them, and realized that now was the moment she should seize, if she was ever to win this man from his hatred. But the step was not easy to take. The more she saw of Lassiter the more she respected him, and the greater her respect the harder it became to lend herself to mere coquetry. Yet as she thought of her great motive, of Tull, and of that other whose name she had schooled herself never to think of in connection with Milly Erne's avenger, she suddenly found she had no choice. And her creed gave her boldness far beyond the limit to which vanity would have led her.

"Lassiter, I see so little of you now," she said, and was conscious of heat in her cheeks.

"I've been ridin' hard," he replied.

"But you can't live in the saddle. You come in sometimes. Won't you come here to see me—oftener?"

"Is that an order?"

"Nonsense! I simply ask you to come to see me when you find time."

"Why?"

The query once heard was not so embarrassing to Jane as she might have imagined. Moreover, it established in her mind a fact that there existed actually other than selfish reasons for her wanting to see him. And as she had been bold, so she determined to be both honest and brave.

"I've reasons—only one of which I need mention,"

she answered. "If it's possible I want to change you toward my people. And on the moment I can conceive of little I wouldn't do to gain that end."

"I reckon," said Lassiter, and he laughed.

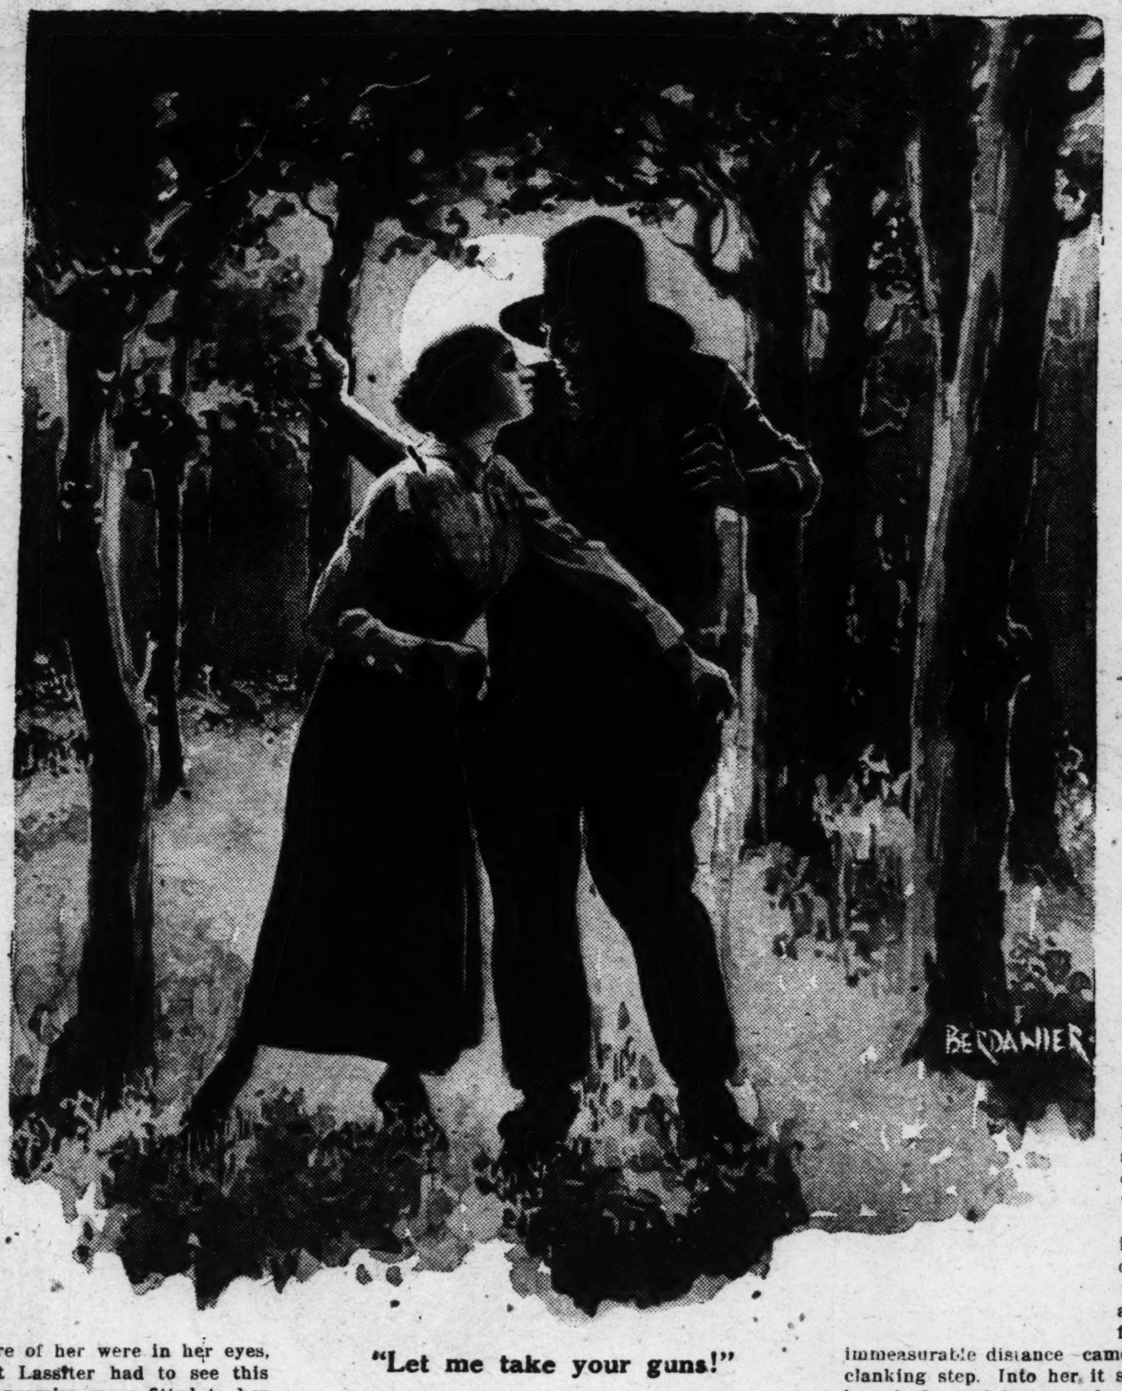
It was the best in her, if the most irritating, that Lassiter always aroused.

"Will you come?" She looked into his eyes, and for the life of her could not quite subdue an imperiousness that rose with her spirit. "I never asked so much of any man—except Bern Venters."

"'Pears to me that you'd run no risk, or Venters either. But mebbe that doesn't hold good for me."

He returned, however, the next day, and the next; and upon the following he came both at morning and at night. Upon the evening of this fourth day Jane seemed to feel the breaking of a brooding struggle in Lassiter. During all these visits he had scarcely a word to say, though he watched her and played absent-mindedly with Fay. Jane had contented herself with silence. Soon little Fay substituted for the expression of regard "I like oo," a warmer and more generous one, "I love oo."

Then, if there were anything that a good woman could do to win a man and still preserve her self-respect, it was something which escaped the natural subtlety of a woman determined to allure. Jane's vanity, that after all was not great, was soon satisfied with Lassiter's silent admiration. And her honest desire to lead him from his dark, blood-stained path would never have blinded her to what she owed herself. But the driving passion of her religion, and its call to save Mormons' life, one life in particular, bore Jane Withersteen close to an infringement of her womanhood. In the beginning she had reasoned that her appeal to Lassiter must be through the senses. With whatever means she possessed in the way of adornment she enhanced her beauty. And she stooped to artifices that she knew were unworthy of her, but which she deliberately chose to employ. She made herself a girl in every variable mood wherein a girl might be desirable. In those moods she was not above the methods of an inexperienced though natural flirt. She kept close to him whenever opportunity afforded; and she was forever playfully, yet passionately underneath the surface, fighting him for possession of the great black guns. These he would never yield to her. And so in that manner their hands were often and long in contact. The more of simplicity that she sensed in him the greater the advantage she took.



"Let me take your guns!"

She had a trick of changing—and it was not altogether voluntary—from this gay, thoughtless, girlish coquetishness to the silence and the brooding, burning mystery of a woman's mood. The strength and passion and fire of her were in her eyes, and she so used them that Lassiter had to see this depth in her, this haunting promise more fitted to her years than to the flaunting guise of a wilful girl.

In the end, when her awakening came, she learned that she had builded better than she knew. Lassiter, though kinder and gentler than ever, had parted with his quaint humor and his coldness and his tranquillity to become a restless and unhappy man. Whatever the power of his deadly intent toward Mormons, that passion now had a rival, and one equally burning and consuming. Jane Withersteen had one moment of exultation before the dawn of a strange uneasiness. What if she had made of herself a lure, at tremendous cost to him and to her, and all in vain!

That night in the moonlit grove she summoned all her courage, and, turning suddenly in the path, she faced Lassiter and leaned close to him, so that she touched him and her eyes looked up to his.

"Lassiter! * * * Will you do anything for me?"

In the moonlight she saw his dark, worn face change, and by that change she seemed to feel him immovable as a wall of stone.

Jane slipped her hands down to the swinging gun sheaths, and, when she had locked her fingers around the huge, cold handles of the guns, she trembled as with a chilling ripple over all her body.

"May I take your guns?"

"Why?" he asked, and for the first time to her his voice carried a harsh note. Jane felt his hard, strong hands close round her wrists. It was not wholly with intent that she leaned toward him, for the look of his eyes and the feel of his hands made her weak.

"It's no trifle—no woman's whim—it's deep—as my heart. Let me take them?"

"Why?"

"I want to keep you from killing more men—Mormons. You must let me save you from more wickedness—more wanton bloodshed"—— Then the truth forced itself falteringly from her lips. "You must—let—me—help me to keep my vow to Milly Erne. I swore to her—as she lay dying—that if ever anyone came here to avenge her—I swore I would stay his hand. Perhaps I—I alone can save the—the man who—who—oh, Lassiter! * * * I feel that if I can't change you—then soon you'll go out to kill—and you'll kill by instinct—and among the Mormons you kill will be the one—who * * * Lassiter, if you care a little for me—let me—for my sake—let me take your guns!"

As if her hands had been those of a child, he unclasped their clinging grip from the handles of his guns, and, pushing her away, he turned his gray face to her in one look of terrible realization, and then strode off into the shadows of the cottonwoods.

In the morning she expected Lassiter at the usual hour, but she was not able to go at once to the court, so she sent little Fay. Mrs. Larkin was ill and required attention. It appeared that the mother, from the time of her arrival at Withersteen House, had relaxed and was slowly losing her hold on life. Jane had believed that absence of worry and responsibility coupled with good nursing and comfort would mend Mrs. Larkin's broken health. Such, however, was not the case.

When Jane did get out to the court, Fay was there alone, and at the moment embarking on a dubious voyage down the stone-lined amber stream upon a craft of two brooms and a pillow. Fay was as delightfully wet as she could possibly wish to get.

Clatter of hoofs distracted Fay and interrupted the scolding she was gleefully receiving from Jane. The sound was not the light-spirited trot that Bells made when Lassiter rode him into the outer court. This was slower and heavier, and Jane did not recognize in it any of her other horses. The appearance of Bishop Dyer startled Jane. He dismounted with his rapid, perky motion, flung the bridle, and, as he turned toward the inner court and stalked up on the stone flags, his boots rang. In his authoritative front, and in the red anger unmistakably flaming in his face, he reminded Jane of her father.

"Is that the Larkin pauper?" he asked, bruskly, without any greeting to Jane.

"It's Mrs. Larkin's little girl," replied Jane, slowly.

"I hear you intend to raise the child?"

"Yes."

"Of course you mean to give her Mormon bringing-up?"

"No!"

His questions had been swift. She was amazed at a feeling that someone else was replying for her.

"I've come to say a few things to you." He stopped to measure her with stern, speculative eye.

"Brother Tull has talked to me," he began. "It was your father's wish that you marry Tull, and my order. You refuse him?"

"Yes."

"You would not give up your friendship with that tramp Venters?"

"No."

"But you'll do as I order!" he thundered. "Why, Jane Withersteen, you are in danger of becoming a heretic! You can thank your Gentile friends for that. You face the damning of your soul to perdition."

In the flux and reflux of the whirling torture of Jane's mind, that new, daring spirit of hers vanished in the old habitual order of her life. She was a Mormon, and the Bishop regained ascendance.

"It's well I got you in time, Jane Withersteen. What would your father have said to these goings-on of yours? He would have put you in a stone cage on bread and water. He would have taught you something about Mormonism. Remember, you're a born Mormon. There have been Mormons who turned heretic—damn their souls!—but no born Mormon ever left us yet. Ah, I see your shame. Your faith is not shaken. You are only a wild girl." The Bishop's tone softened. "Well, it's enough that I got you in time. * * * Now tell me about this Lassiter. I hear strange things."

"What do you wish to know?" queried Jane.

"About this man. You hired him?"

"Yes, he's riding for me. When my riders left me I had to have anyone I could get."

"Is it true what I hear—that he's a gunman, a Mormon-hater, steeped in blood?"

"True—terribly true, I fear."

"But what's he doing here in Cottonwoods? This place isn't notorious enough for such a man. Sterling and the villages north, where there's universal gun-packing and fights every day—where there are more men like him, it seems to me they would attract him most. We're only a wild, lonely border settlement. It's only recently that the rustlers have made killings here. Nor have there been saloons till lately, nor the drifting in of outcasts. Has not this gunman some special mission here?"

Jane maintained silence.

"Tell me," ordered Bishop Dyer, sharply.

"Yes," she replied.

"Do you know what it is?"

"Yes."

"Tell me that."

"Bishop Dyer, I don't want to tell."

He waved his hand in an imperative gesture of command. The red once more leaped to his face, and in his steel-blue eyes glinted a pin-point of curiosity.

"That first day," whispered Jane, "Lassiter said he came here to find—Milly Erne's grave!"

With downcast eyes Jane watched the swift flow of the amber water. She saw it and tried to think of it, of the stones, of the ferns; but, like her body, her mind was in a leaden vise. Only the Bishop's voice could release her. Seemingly there was silence of longer duration than all her former life.

"For what—else?" When Bishop Dyer's voice did cleave the silence it was high, curiously shrill, and on the point of breaking. It released Jane's tongue, but she could not lift her eyes.

"To kill the man who persuaded Milly Erne to abandon her home and her husband—and her God!"

With wonderful distinctness Jane Withersteen heard her own clear voice. She heard the water murmur at her feet and flow on to the sea; she heard the rushing of all the waters in the world. They filled her ears with low, unreal murmurings—these sounds that deadened her brain and yet could not break the long and terrible silence. Then, from somewhere—from an immeasurable distance—came a slow, guarded, clinking, clanking step. Into her it shot electrifying life. It released the weight upon her numbed eyelids. Lifting her eyes she saw—ashen, shaken, stricken—not the Bishop but the man! And beyond him from round the corner came that soft, silvery step. A long black boot with a gleaming spur swept into sight—and then Lassiter! Bishop Dyer did not see, did not hear: he stared at Jane in the throes of sudden revelation.

"Ah, I understand!" he cried, in hoarse accents. "That's why you made love to this Lassiter—to bind his hands!"

It was Jane's gaze riveted upon the rider that made Bishop Dyer turn. Then clear sight failed her. Dizzily, in a blur, she saw the Bishop's hand jerk to his hip. She saw gleam of blue and spout of red. In her ears burst a thundering report. The court floated in darkening circles around her, and she fell into utter blackness.

The darkness lightened, turned to slow-drifting haze, and lifted. Through a thin film of blue smoke she saw the rough-hewn timbers of the court roof. A cool, damp touch moved across her brow. She smelled powder, and it was that which galvanized her suspended thought. She moved, to see that she lay prone upon the stone flags with her head on Lassiter's knee, and he was bathing her brow with water from the stream. The same swift glance, shifting low, brought into range of her sight a smoking gun and splashes of blood.

"Ah-h!" she moaned, and was drifting, sinking again into darkness, when Lassiter's voice arrested her.

"It's all right, Jane. It's all right."

"Did—you—kill—him?" she whispered.

"Who? That fat party who was here? No. I didn't kill him."

"Oh! * * * Lassiter!"

"Say! It was queer for you to faint. I thought you were such a strong woman, not faintish like that. You're all right now—only some pale. I thought you'd never come to. But I'm awkward round women folks. I couldn't think of anythin'."

"Lassiter! * * * the gun there! * * * the blood!"

"Advice to the Mentally Feeble: 'Keep the Mouth Closed!'"

... By Charles Dana Gibson ...

NUMBER SEVEN

EMERSON was not so ungallant as to impeach the mentality of the fair sex when he advised women not to talk too much, explaining that when they are silent nature is working in their behalf, but that when they speak they are working for themselves.

Mere Man, however, to whom nature is not so kind an ally, is advised by Mr. Gibson to keep quiet in self-defense, unless his intellectual equipment is above suspicion. If he is touched with dwarfism of the brain, a loosely wagging tongue will fatally betray him.

ST. LOUISAN IS DOGS' GOOD ANGEL

A. N. Nahigian maintains asylum for friendless animals and finds them good homes, besides circulating thousands of pamphlets urging humanity in their treatment—Says 90 per cent of city's 50,000 dogs live so cruelly they had better be dead

A. N. Nahigian and one of his canine friends.

DOWNTRODDEN dogs of St. Louis may take heart. They have a friend.

He is A. N. Nahigian, who keeps a book store at 1532 Franklin avenue, lives upstairs, and has a dog refuge in the cellar. He is the friend of all friendless dogs, the defender of all defenseless dogs, the home-finder for lost and homeless dogs. He provides food for hungry dogs, and water for thirsty dogs. He stops dog fights and shames the man who sicks one dog upon another.

He is seeking legislation that will tend to decrease the dog birth rate, and plans to establish a home where there will be ample accommodation for sheltering and caring for all dogs of the city that have no kind masters to care for them.

Befriending dogs and promoting the general weal of the canine family is Nahigian's life work. At very considerable expense to himself he circulates thousands of folders that are meant to educate the public into a more humane attitude toward the dog. His show windows are covered with clippings and hand-printed admonitions to consider the dog and be mindful of its needs.

He is passionately opposed to vivisection, and what he thinks about vivisectionists is extremely emphatic. He does not believe that there is any such thing as hydrophobia.

Curiously, Nahagian is not a fancier of dogs, and is not a dog collector. He has never interested himself in breeds. All dogs look alike to him. The measure of his interest in them is the measure of their need. The cur is as welcome at his door as the pedigreed animal.

He does not gather about him a miscellaneous assortment of dogs. Any dog that needs shelter and care and a friend has a claim on his hospitality, but he devotes himself to finding its master or one who is willing to adopt it. Failing to find either, he has no compunction about sending Fido to the dog heaven, in the most painless and scientific manner, of course. He advocates the merciful killing of puppies before they have opened their eyes on a world that is often unkind to little dogs.

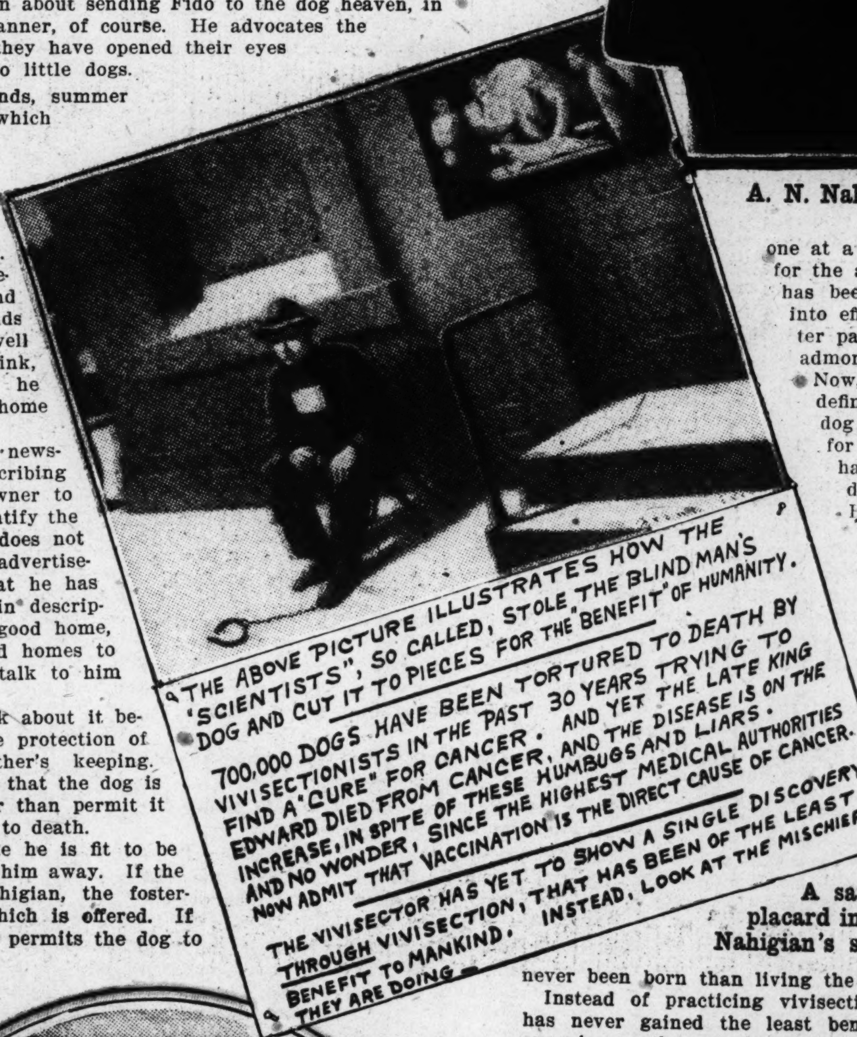
In front of Nahigian's store stands, summer and winter, a bucket of water, at which the dogs that happen along Franklin avenue may lave their thirst. Nahigian keeps an eye on the bucket and the dogs that come to drink. Experience has made him an expert in recognizing a lost dog. When he sees a lost dog on his sidewalk he calls it into his store and puts it in the cellar, which extends the width of two stores, and is well ventilated, and gives it food and drink, and bids it be comfortable while he makes an effort to return it to its home or find another home for it.

The next day he advertises in the newspapers that he has found a dog, describing it thus and so, and inviting the owner to come up to Franklin avenue and identify the animal and take it home. If that does not bring the owner, he puts another advertisement in the papers, announcing that he has a dog of a certain sort, or a certain description or breed that is in need of a good home, and inviting persons who have good homes to offer to dogs to come around and talk to him about it.

There has to be quite a little talk about it before a dog that has come under the protection of Nahigian is surrendered to another's keeping. Nahigian wants to be fully satisfied that the dog is going to have a good home. Rather than permit it to go to a bad home he would put it to death.

If the applicant does not look like he is fit to be the owner of a dog, Nahigian sends him away. If the applicant commends himself to Nahigian, the foster-master goes out to see the home which is offered. If everything seems to be all right, he permits the dog to be taken away, but makes a record of the name and address of the new owner, and has an understanding that if the dog is badly treated in its new home he will have a right to reclaim it. After a while he goes around to see how the animal is being treated and not until then does he check that particular dog off of his books.

For 10 years Nahigian has been doing this, and in all seasons preaching the gospel of kindness to dogs. He has borne the expense, and his zeal has once or twice brought him into friction with the police. He has had the encouragement of a few like-minded men who drop in at his store one at a time to talk dogs, and plan ambitiously for the amelioration of their condition, but there has been no organization to carry these plans into effect. Nahigian has been content to scatter pamphlets and fill his show windows with admonitions to kindness.



THE ABOVE PICTURE ILLUSTRATES HOW THE "SCIENTISTS", SO CALLED, STOLE THE BLIND MAN'S DOG AND CUT IT TO PIECES FOR THE "BENEFIT" OF HUMANITY.

700,000 DOGS HAVE BEEN TORTURED TO DEATH BY VIVISECTIONISTS IN THE PAST 30 YEARS TRYING TO FIND A "CURE" FOR CANCER. AND YET THE LATE KING EDWARD DIED FROM CANCER, AND THE DISEASE IS ON THE INCREASE, IN SPITE OF THESE HUMBUGS AND LIARS. AND NO WONDER, SINCE THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES NOW ADMIT THAT VACCINATION IS THE DIRECT CAUSE OF CANCER.

THE VIVISECTOR HAS YET TO SHOW A SINGLE DISCOVERY THROUGH VIVISECTION, THAT HAS BEEN OF THE LEAST BENEFIT TO MANKIND. INSTEAD, LOOK AT THE MISCHIEF THEY ARE DOING —

A sample placard in Mr. Nahigian's store.

Now, however, his plans are taking more definite form. He has begun agitating for dog legislation. And he is looking about for a building which will be suitable as a haven for lost, despised and undesired dogs.

He is circulating thousands of pamphlets containing eulogies of the dog, and setting forth what he thinks should be done to settle the dog question, as follows:

Twenty thousand dogs come to violent ends every year in St. Louis.

Don't keep a dog at all unless you can give it a good and safe home, where it can hurt no one and no one hurt it.

It is much more humane to drown the pups as soon as they are born, than to allow them to live a few weeks or months and then give them away or turn them loose.

It is not far off the mark to say that of the 50,000 dogs of St. Louis, 45,000 would have been better off had they never been born than living the wretched life they live.

Instead of practicing vivisection on the dog, and since mankind has never gained the least benefit from the practice, why not try eugenics on them, and thereby decimate the number of dogs?

Councilman Fletcher of St. Louis has introduced a bill raising the license of female dogs from $1 to $5. This is good, but not good enough. I think it should, instead, be raised to $20—the rate in force in Washington, D. C.

Another humane law is that in force in Los Angeles, where they arrest and fine the owner of any dog found outside the owner's premises.

There's a reason for giving the dog question serious consideration, Nahigian thinks. That the city is not growing by leaps and bounds, he thinks, is because it has no adequate laws for the protection of dumb animals, and the few that it has are not enforced. New York, Washington, Los Angeles, Detroit, Boston and Cleveland, which have humane laws, and enforce them, are growing two to four times as fast as St. Louis, he says, and that is the reason.

"This is how it works," he says. "Suppose a stranger in the city—and we are so situated that strangers are passing through the city all the time—were to see one of our dog catchers jerking up a dog with his wire noose and throwing it into his wagon as if it was a piece of wood. He'd be apt to say to himself: 'I'm glad I don't have to live in a city that tolerates such wanton cruelty.' And when this man gets back to his home, he'll be telling his experiences, and bad news travels fast, and people will shun St. Louis."

Nahigian thinks, with Cuvier, the great French naturalist, that the domestication of the dog was man's greatest achievement, lacking which there would have come none of the marvelous inventions of modern civilization. The domestication of the dog, he says, taught man that other animals could be domesticated, and civilization resulted.

He thinks the best thing that could happen for the dogs of St. Louis would be for about 45,000 of them to be mercifully put to death. That would leave about 5000. There would not

The Sixth Fu-Manchu Story

KARAMANEH

by Sax Rohmer

Copyright by the Pulitzer Publishing Co., Publishers of the Post-Dispatch.

"THE net is closing in," said Nayland Smith.

"Let us hope for a big catch," I replied with a laugh.

This was one of the few tangible clews upon which thus far we had chanced; but at last it seemed, indeed, that we were narrowing the resources of that enemy of the white race who was writing his name over England in characters of blood. To capture Dr. Fu-Manchu we did not hope; but at least there was every promise of destroying one of the enemy's strongholds.

We had circled upon the map a tract of country cut by the Thames, with Windsor for its center. Within that circle was a house used by the most highly organized group in the history of criminology. So much we knew. Even if we found the house, and this was likely enough, to find it vacated by Fu-Manchu and his mysterious servants we were prepared. But it would be a base destroyed.

We were working upon a methodical plan, and, although our co-operators were invisible, these numbered no fewer than 12—all of them experienced men. Thus far we had drawn blank, but the place for which Smith and I were making now came clearly into view—an old mansion situated in extensive walled grounds. Leaving the river behind us, we turned sharply to the right along a lane flanked by a high wall. On an open patch of ground as we passed I noted a gipsy caravan. An old woman was seated on the steps, her wrinkled face bent, her chin resting in the palm of her hand.

I scarcely glanced at her, but pressed on, nor did I notice that my friend no longer was beside me. I was all anxiety to come to some point whence I might obtain a view of the house; all anxiety to know if this was the abode of our mysterious enemy—the place where he worked, amid his weird company, where he bred his deadly scorpions and his bacilli, reared his poisonous fungi, whence he dispatched his murder ministers. Above all, perhaps, I wondered if this would prove to be the hiding place of the beautiful slave girl who was such a potent factor in the doctor's plans, but a two-edged sword, which, yet, we hoped to turn upon Fu-Manchu. Even in the hands of a master a woman's beauty is a dangerous weapon.

A cry rang out behind me. I turned quickly. And a singular sight met my gaze.

Nayland Smith was engaged in a furious struggle with the old gipsy woman! His long arms clasped about her, he was roughly dragging her out into the roadway, she fighting like a wild thing—silently, fiercely.

Smith often surprised me, but at that sight frankly I thought that he was become bereft of reason. I ran back and I had almost reached the scene of this incredible contest, and Smith now was evidently hard put to it to hold his own, when a man, swarthy, with big rings in his ears, leaped from the caravan.

One quick glance he threw in our direction, and made off toward the river.

Smith twisted round upon me, never releasing his hold of the woman.

"After him, Petrie!" he cried. "After him! Don't let him escape! He's a dacoit!"

My brain in a confused whirl, my mind yet disposed to a belief that my friend had lost his senses, the word "dacoit" was sufficient.

I started down the road after the fleetly running man. Never once did he glance behind him, so that he evidently had occasion to fear pursuit. The dusty road rang beneath my flying footsteps. That sense of fantasy which claimed me often enough in those days of our struggle with the titanic genius, whose victory meant the victory of the yellow race over the white, now had me fast in its grip again. I was actor in one of those dream scenes of the grim Fu-Manchu drama.

Out over the grass and down to the river's brink ran the gipsy, who was no gipsy, but one of that far more sinister brotherhood, the dacoits. I was close upon his heels. But I was not prepared for him to leap in among the rushes at the margin of the stream; and seeing him do this, I pulled up quickly. Straight into the water he plunged, and I saw that he held some object in his hand. He waded out; he dived, and as I gained the bank and looked to right and left he had vanished completely. Only ever-widening rings showed where he had been.

I had him!

For directly he rose to the surface he would be visible from either bank, and, with the police whistle which I carried, I could, if necessary, summon one of the men in hiding across the stream. I waited. A wild fowl floated serenely past, untroubled by this strange invasion of his precincts. A full minute I waited. From the lane behind me came Smith's voice:

"Don't let him escape, Petrie!"

Never lifting my eyes from the water, I waved my hand reassuringly. But still the dacoit did not rise. I searched the surface in all directions as far as my eyes could reach; but no swimmer showed above it. Then it was that I concluded he had dived too deeply, become entangled in the weeds and was drowned. With a final glance to right and left and some feeling of awe at this sudden tragedy—this grim going out of life at glorious noonday—I turned away. Smith had the woman securely; but I had not taken five steps toward him when a faint splash behind warned me. Instinctively, I ducked. Whence that saving instinct arose I cannot surmise; but to it I owed my life. For, as I rapidly lowered my head, something hummed past me—something that glittered in the sunlight, that flew out over the grass bank, and fell with a metallic jingle upon the dusty roadside. A knife!

I turned and bounded back to the river's brink. I heard a faint cry behind me, which could only have come from the gipsy woman. Nothing disturbed the calm surface of the water. The reach was lonely of rowers. Out by the farther bank a girl was polling a punt along, and her white-clad figure was the only living thing that moved upon the river within the range of the most expert knife thrower.

To say that I was nonplussed, is to say less than the truth; I was amazed. That it was the dacoit who had shown me this murderous attention I could not doubt. But where in heaven's name was he? He could not humanly have remained below water for so long; yet he certainly was not above, was not upon the surface, concealed among the reeds, nor hidden upon the bank!

There in the bright sunshine a consciousness of the eerie possessed me. It was with an uncomfortable feeling that my phantom foe might be aiming a second knife at my back that I turned away and hastened toward Smith. My fearful expectations were not realized, and I picked up the little weapon which had so narrowly missed me and with it in my hand rejoined my friend.

He was standing with one arm closely clasped about the apparently exhausted woman, and her dark eyes were fixed upon him with an extraordinary expression.

"What does it mean, Smith?" I began.

But he interrupted me.

"Where is the dacoit?" he demanded rapidly.

"Since he seemingly possesses the attributes of a fish," I replied, "I cannot pretend to say."

The gipsy woman lifted her eyes to mine and laughed. Her laughter was musical, not that of such an old hag as Smith held captive; it was familiar, too.

I started and looked closely into the wizened face.

"He's tricked you," said Smith, an angry note in his voice. "What is that you have in your hand?"

I showed him the knife, and told him how it had come into my possession.

"I know," he rapped. "I saw it. He was in the water not three yards from where you stood. You must have seen him. Was there nothing visible?"

"Nothing."

The woman laughed again—and again I wondered.

"A wild fowl," I added. "Nothing else."

"A wild fowl!" snapped Smith. "If you will consult your recollections of the habits of wild fowl you will see that this particular specimen was a rara avis! It's an old trick, Petrie, but a good one; for it is used in decoying. A dacoit's head was concealed in that fowl! It's useless. He has certainly made good his escape by now."

"Smith," I said, somewhat crestfallen, "why are you detaining this gipsy woman?"

"Gipsy woman?" he laughed, hugging her tightly as she made an impatient movement. "Use your eyes, old man."

He jerked the frowsy wig from her head—and beneath was a cloud of disordered hair that shimmered in the sunlight.

"A wet sponge will do the rest!" he said.

Into my eyes, widely opened in wonder, looked the dark eyes of the captive; and beneath all the disfiguring disguise I picked out the charming features of the slave girl. There were tears on the artificially whitened lashes, and she was submissive now.

"This time," said my friend hardly, "we have fairly captured her, and we will hold her!"

From somewhere upstream came a faint call.

"The dacoit!"

Nayland Smith's lean body straightened—he stood alert, strung up.

Another call answered, and a third responded. Then followed the flatly shrill note of a police whistle, and I noted a column of black vapor rising beyond the wall, mounting straight to heaven as the smoke of a welcome offering.

The surrounded mansion was in flames!

"Curse it!" rapped Smith. "So this time we were right! But, of course, he has had ample opportunity to remove his effects. I knew that. The man's daring is incredible. He has given himself till the very last moment, and we blundered upon two of the outposts!"

"I lost one!"

"No matter. We have the other. I expect no further arrests, and the house will have been so well fired by the doctor's servants that nothing can save it. I fear its ashes will afford us no clew, Petrie; but we have secured a lever which should serve to disturb Fu-Manchu's world!"

He glanced at the queer figure that hung submissively in his arms. She looked up proudly.

"You need not hold me so tight," she said in her soft voice. "I will come with you."

Of the many curious scenes in that race drama wherein Nayland Smith and Dr. Fu-Manchu played the leading parts, I remember none more bizarre than the one at my rooms that afternoon.

Without delay, and without taking the Scotland Yard men into our confidence, we had hurried our prisoner back to London; for my friend's authority was supreme. A strange trio we were, and one which excited no little comment; but the journey came to an end at last. Now we were in my unpretentious sitting room—the room wherein Smith first had unfolded to me the story of Dr. Fu-Manchu and of the great secret society which sought to upset the balance of the world to place Europe and America beneath the scepter of Cathay.

I sat with my elbows upon the writing table, my chin in my hands. Smith, restlessly, paced the floor, relighting his blackened briar a dozen times in as many minutes. In the big armchair the pseudo gipsy was curled up. A brief toilet had converted the wizened old woman's face into that of a fascinatingly pretty girl. Wildly picturesque she looked in her ragged Romany garb. She held a cigarette in her fingers and watched us through lowered lashes.

Seemingly, with true Oriental fatalism, she was quite reconciled to her fate; and ever and anon she would bestow upon me a glance from her beautiful eyes which few men, I say with confidence, could have sustained unmoved. Though I could not be blind to the emotions of that passionate Eastern soul, yet I strove not to think of them. Accomplice of an arch-murderer she might be; but she was dangerously lovely.

"That man who was with you," said Smith, suddenly turning upon her, "was in Burma up till quite recently. He murdered a fisherman 30 miles above Prome only a month before I left. The D. S. P. had placed a thousand rupees on his head. Am I right?"

The girl shrugged her shoulders.

"Suppose—what then?" she asked.

"Suppose I handed you over to the police?" suggested Smith. But he spoke without conviction, for in the recent past we both had owed our lives to this girl.

"As you please," she replied. "The police would learn nothing from me."

"You do not belong to the Far East," my friend said abruptly. "You may have Eastern blood in your veins, but you are no kin of Fu-Manchu."

"That is true," she admitted, and knocked the ash from her cigarette.

"Will you tell me where to find Fu-Manchu?"

She shrugged her shoulders again, glancing eloquently in my direction.

Smith walked to the door.

"I must make out my report, Petrie," he said. "Look after the prisoner."

And as the door closed softly behind him, I knew what was expected of me; but, honestly, I shirked my responsibility. What attitude should I adopt? How should I go about my delicate task? In a quandary, I stood watching the girl whom singular circumstances saw captive in my rooms.

"You do not think we would harm you?" I began awkwardly. "No harm shall come to you. Why will you not trust us?"

She raised her brilliant eyes.

"Of what avail has your protection been to some of those others," she said—"those others whom he has sought for?"

Alas! it had been of none, and I knew it well. I thought I grasped the drift of her words.

"You mean that if you speak, Fu-Manchu will find a way of killing you?"

"Of killing me!" she flashed, scornfuly. "Do I seem one to fear for myself?"

"Then what do you fear?" I asked, in surprise.

She looked at me oddly.

"When I was seized and sold for a slave," she answered slowly, "my sister was taken, too, and my brother—a child." She spoke the word with a tender intonation, and her slight accent rendered it the more soft. "My sister died in the desert. My brother lived. Better—far better—that he had died, too."

Her words impressed me intensely.

"Of what are you speaking?" I questioned. "You speak of slave raids, of the desert. Where did these things take place? Of what country are you?"

"Does it matter?" she questioned in return. "Of what country am I? A slave has no country, no name."

"No name!" I cried.

"You may call me Karamaneh," she said. "As Karamaneh I was sold to Dr. Fu-Manchu, and my brother also he purchased. We were cheap at the price he paid!" she laughed shortly, wildly. "But he has spent a lot of money to educate me! My brother is all that is left to me in the world to love, and he is in the power of Dr. Fu-Manchu. You understand? It is upon him the blow will fall! You ask me to fight against Fu-Manchu! You talk of protection. Did your protection save Sir Crichton Davey?"

I shook my head sadly.

"You understand, now, why I cannot disobey my master's orders. Why, if I would, I dare not betray him."

I walked to the window and looked out. How could I answer her arguments? What could I say. I heard the rustle of her ragged skirts, and she, who called herself Karamaneh, stood beside me. She laid her hand upon my arm.

"Let me go," she pleaded. "He will kill him! He will kill him!"

Her voice shook with emotion.

"He cannot revenge himself upon your brother, when you are in no way to blame," I said angrily. "We arrested you; you are not here of your own free will."

She drew her breath sharply, clutching at my arm, and in her eyes I could read that she was forcing her mind to some arduous decision.

"Listen!" She was speaking rapidly, nervously. "If I help you to take Dr. Fu-Manchu—tell you where he is to be found, alone—will you promise me, solemnly promise me, that you will immediately go to the place where I shall guide you and release my brother; that you will let us both go free?"

"I will," I said without hesitation. "You may rest assured of it."

"But there is a condition," she added.

"What is it?"

"When I have told you where to capture him you must release me."

I hesitated. Smith often had accused me of weakness where this girl was concerned. What now was my plain duty? That she would utterly decline to speak under any circumstances unless it suited her to do so, I felt assured. If she spoke the truth, in her proposed bargain there was no personal element; her conduct I now viewed in a new light. Humanity, I thought, dictated that I accept her proposal—policy also.

"I agree," I said, and looked into her eyes, which were aflame now with emotion—an excitement perhaps of anticipation, perhaps of fear.

She laid her hands upon my shoulders.

"You will be careful?" she said, pleadingly.

"For your sake," I replied, "I shall."

"Not for my sake,"

"Then for your brother's."

"No." Her voice had sunk to a whisper. "For your own."

A COOL breeze met us, blowing from the lower reaches of the Thames. Far behind us twinkled the dim lights of Low's cottages, the last regular habitations abutting upon the marshes. Between us and the cottages stretched half a mile of lush land, through which, at this season, there were, however, numerous dry paths. Before us the flats again, a dull, monotonous expanse beneath the moon, with the promise of the cool breeze from the river flowing around the bend ahead. It was very quiet. Only the sound of our footsteps, as Nayland Smith and I tramped steadily toward our goal, broke the stillness of the lonely place.

Not once, but many times within the last 20 minutes, I had thought that we were ill advised to adventure alone upon the capture of the formidable Chinese doctor; but we were following out our compact with Karamaneh; and one of her stipulations had been that the police must not be acquainted with her share in the matter.

A light came into view far ahead of us.

"That's the light, Petrie," said Smith. "If we keep that straight before us, according to our information, we shall strike the hulk."

I grasped the revolver in my pocket, and the presence of the little weapon was curiously reassuring. I have endeavored, perhaps in extenuation of my own fears, to explain how about Dr. Fu-Manchu there rested an atmosphere of horror, peculiar, unique. He was not as other men. The dread that he inspired in all with whom he came in contact, the terrors which he controlled and hurled at whoever cumbered his path, rendered him an object supremely sinister. I despair of conveying to those who may read this account any but the coldest conception of the man's evil power.

Smith stopped suddenly and grasped my arm. We stood listening.

"What?" I asked.

"You heard nothing?"

I shook my head.

Smith was peering back over the marshes in his oddly alert way. He turned to me, and his tanned face wore a peculiar expression.

"You don't think it's a trap?" he jerked. "We are trusting her blindly."

Strange it may seem, but something within me rose in arms against the innuendo.

"I don't," I said shortly.

He nodded. We pressed on.

Ten minutes' steady tramping brought us within sight of the Thames. Smith and I both had noticed how Fu-Manchu's activities centered always about the London river. Undoubtedly it was his highway, his line of communication along which he moved his mysterious forces. The opium den off Shadwell highway, the mansion upstream, at that hour a smoldering shell; now the hulk lying off the marshes. Always he made his headquarters upon the river. It was significant, and even if tonight's expedition should fail, this was a clew for our future guidance.

"Bear to the right," directed Smith. "We must reconnoiter before making our attack."

We took a path that led directly to the river bank. Before us lay the gray expanse of water, and out upon it moved the busy shipping of the great mercantile city. But this life of the river seemed widely removed from us. The lonely spot where we stood had no kinship with human activity. In its dreariness, illuminated by the brilliant moon, it looked, indeed, a fit setting for an act in such a drama as that wherein we played our parts. When I had lain in the east end opium den, when upon such another night as this I had looked out upon a peaceful Norfolk countryside, the same knowledge of aloofness, of utter detachment from the world of living men, had come to me.

Silently Smith stared out at the distant moving lights.

"Karamaneh merely means a slave," he said, irrelevantly.

I made no comment.

"There's the hulk," he added.

The bank upon which we stood dipped in mud slopes to the level of the running tide. Seaward it rose higher, and by a narrow inlet—for we perceived that we were upon a kind of promontory—a rough pier showed. Beneath it was a shadowy shape in the patch of gloom which the moon threw far out upon the softly eddying water. Only one dim light was visible amid this darkness.

"That will be the cabin," said Smith.

Acting upon the prearranged plan, we turned and walked up on to the staging above the hulk. A wooden ladder let out and down to the deck below, and was loosely lashed to a ring on the pier. With every motion of the tidal waters the ladder rose and fell, its rings creaking harshly against the crazy railing.

"How are we going to get down without being detected?" whispered Smith.

"We've got to risk it," I said grimly.

Without further words my friend climbed around to the ladder and commenced to descend. I waited until his head disappeared below the level, and clumsily enough, prepared to follow him.

The hulk at that moment giving an unusually heavy heave, I stumbled, and for one breathless moment looked down upon the glittering surface streaking the darkness beneath me. My foot had slipped, and but that I had a firm grip upon the top rung, that instant, most probably, had marked the end of my share in the fight with Fu-Manchu. As it was, I had a narrow escape. I felt something slip from my hip pocket, but the weird creaking of the ladder, the groans of the laboring hulk, and the lapping of the waves about the staging, drowned the sound of the splash as my revolver dropped into the river.

Rather white-faced, I think, I joined Smith on the deck. He had witnessed my accident, but—

"We must risk it," he whispered in my ear. "We dare not turn back now."

He plunged into the semidarkness, making for the cabin, I, perforce, following.

At the bottom of the ladder we came fully into the light streaming out from the singular apartment at the entrance to which we found ourselves. It was fitted up as a laboratory. A glimpse I had of shelves loaded with jars and bottles, of a table strewn with scientific paraphernalia, with retorts, with tubes of extraordinary shapes, holding living organisms, and with instruments—some of them of a form unknown to my experience. I saw, too, that books, papers and rolls of parchment littered the bare wooden floor. Then Smith's voice rose above the confused sounds about me, incisive, commanding:

"I have you covered, Dr. Fu-Manchu!"

For Fu-Manchu sat at the table!

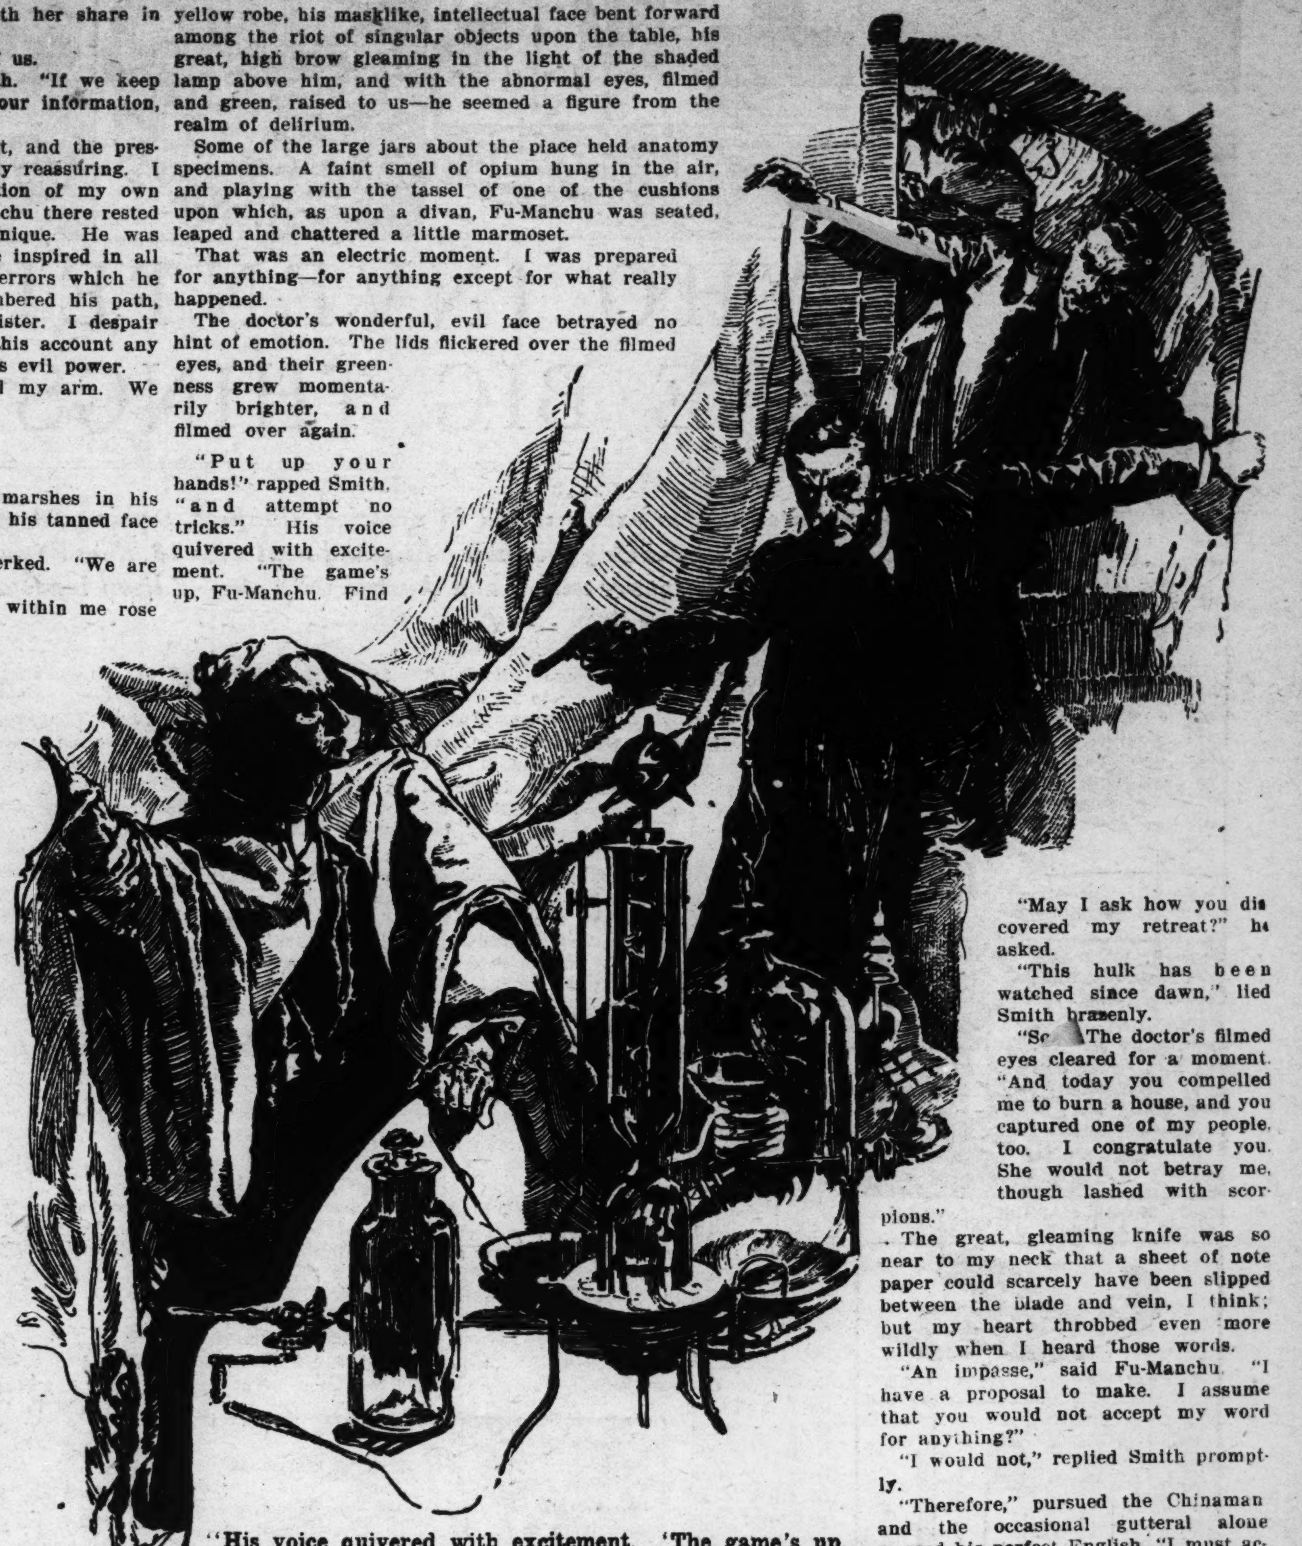
The picture that he presented at that moment is one which persistently clings in my memory. In his long, yellow robe, his masklike, intellectual face bent forward among the riot of singular objects upon the table, his great, high brow gleaming in the light of the shaded lamp above him, and with the abnormal eyes, filmed and green, raised to us—he seemed a figure from the realm of delirium.

Some of the large jars about the place held anatomy specimens. A faint smell of opium hung in the air, and playing with the tassel of one of the cushions upon which, as upon a divan, Fu-Manchu was seated, leaped and chattered a little marmoset.

That was an electric moment. I was prepared for anything—for anything except for what really happened.

The doctor's wonderful, evil face betrayed no hint of emotion. The lids flickered over the filmed eyes, and their greenness grew momentarily brighter, and filmed over again.

"Put up your hands!" rapped Smith, "and attempt no tricks." His voice quivered with excitement. "The game's up, Fu-Manchu. Find something to tie him up with, Petrie."



"His voice quivered with excitement. 'The game's up, Fu-Manchu. Find something to tie him up with, Petrie.' "

I moved forward to Smith's side, and was about to pass him in the narrow doorway. The hulk moved beneath our feet like a living thing—groaning, creaking; and the water lapped about the rotten woodwork with a sound infinitely dreary.

"Put up your hands!" ordered Smith, imperatively.

Fu-Manchu slowly raised his hands, and a smile dawned upon the impassive features—a smile that had no mirth in it, only menace, revealing, as it did, his even discolored teeth, but leaving the filmed eyes inanimate—dull, inhuman.

He spoke softly, silently.

"I would advise Dr. Petrie to glance behind him before he moves."

Smith's keen eyes never for a moment quitted the speaker. The gleaming barrel moved not a hair's breadth. But I glanced quickly over my shoulder—and stifled a cry of horror.

A wicked, pock-marked face, with wolfish fangs bared, and jaundiced eyes squinting obliquely into mine, was within two inches of me. A lean brown hand and arm, the great thews standing up like cords, held a crescent-shaped knife a fraction of an inch above my jugular vein. A slight movement must have dispatched me; a sweep of the fearful weapon, I doubt not, would have severed my head from my body.

"Smith," I whispered hoarsely, "don't look around. For God's sake keep him covered! A dacoit has his knife at my throat!"

Then, for the first time, Smith's hand trembled. But his glance never wavered from the malignant, emotionless countenance of Dr. Fu-Manchu. He clenched his teeth hard, so that the muscles stood out prominently upon his jaw.

I suppose that silence which followed my awful discovery prevailed but a few seconds. To me those seconds were each a lingering death. There below in that groaning bulk I knew more of icy terror than any of our meetings with the murder group had brought to me before; and through my brain throbbed a thought—the girl had betrayed us!

"You supposed I was alone?" suggested Fu-Manchu. "So I was"——

Yet no trace of fear had broken through the impassioned mask when we had entered.

"But my faithful servant followed you," he added. "I thank you. The honors, Mr. Smith, are mine, I think."

Smith made no reply. I divined that he was thinking furiously. Fu-Manchu moved his hand to caress the marmoset, which had leaped playfully upon his shoulder, and crouched there gibing at us in a whistling voice.

"Don't stir!" said Smith savagely. "I warn you!" Fu-Manchu had kept his hand raised.

"May I ask how you discovered my retreat?" he asked.

"This hulk has been watched since dawn," lied Smith brazenly.

"So[illegible] The doctor's filmed eyes cleared for a moment. "And today you compelled me to burn a house, and you captured one of my people, too. I congratulate you. She would not betray me, though lashed with scorpions."

The great, gleaming knife was so near to my neck that a sheet of note paper could scarcely have been slipped between the blade and vein, I think; but my heart throbbed even more wildly when I heard those words.

"An impasse," said Fu-Manchu. "I have a proposal to make. I assume that you would not accept my word for anything?"

"I would not," replied Smith promptly.

"Therefore," pursued the Chinaman and the occasional gutteral alone marred his perfect English, "I must accept yours. Of your resources, outside this cabin, I know nothing. You, I take it, know as little of mine. My Burmese friend and Dr. Petrie will lead the way, then; you and I will follow. We will strike out across the marsh, for, say, 300 yards. You will then place your pistol on the ground, pledging me your word to leave it there. I shall further require your assurance that you will make no attempt upon me until I have retraced my steps. I and my good servant will withdraw, leaving you, at the expiration of the specified period, to act as you see fit. Is it agreed?"

Smith hesitated. Then—

"The dacoit must leave his knife also," he stipulated.

Fu-Manchu smiled his evil smile again.

"Agreed. Shall I lead the way?"

"No!" rapped Smith. "Petrie and the dacoit first; then you; I last."

A gutteral word of command from Fu-Manchu, and we left the cabin, with its evil odors, its mortuary specimens and its strange instruments, and in the order arranged mounted to the deck.

"It will be awkward on the ladder," said Fu-Manchu, "Dr. Petrie, I will accept your word to adhere to the terms."

"I promise," I said, the words almost choking me.

We mounted the rising and dipping ladder, all reached the pier, and strode out across the flats, the Chinaman always under close cover of Smith's revolver. Round about our feet, now leaping ahead, now gamboling back, came and went the marmoset. The dacoit, dressed solely in a dark loin cloth, walked beside me with his blood-lustful eyes, carrying his huge knife. Never before, I venture to say, had an autumn moon lighted such a scene in that place.

"Here we part," said Fu-Manchu, and spoke another word to his follower.

The man threw his knife upon the ground.

"Search him, Petrie," directed Smith. "He may have a second concealed!"

The doctor consented, and I passed my hands over the man's scanty garments.

"Now search Fu-Manchu."

This, also, I did. And never have I experienced a similar sense of revulsion from any human being. I shuddered as though I had touched a venomous reptile.

Smith threw down his revolver.

"I curse myself for an honorable fool!" he said. "No one could dispute my right to shoot you dead where you stand!"

Knowing him as I did, I could tell from the suppressed passion in Smith's voice that only by his unhesitating acceptance of my friend's word and implicit faith in his keeping it had Dr. Fu-Manchu escaped just retribution at that moment. Fiend though he was, I admired his courage; for all this he, too, must have known.

The doctor turned, and with the dacoit walked back.

WHO INVENTED THE BIG THINGS?

United States excels world in practical thinkers, owning 29 out of 66 epoch-making products—England next with 18, then France with 10, Germany with 5 and Austria with one—Edison leads all other inventors

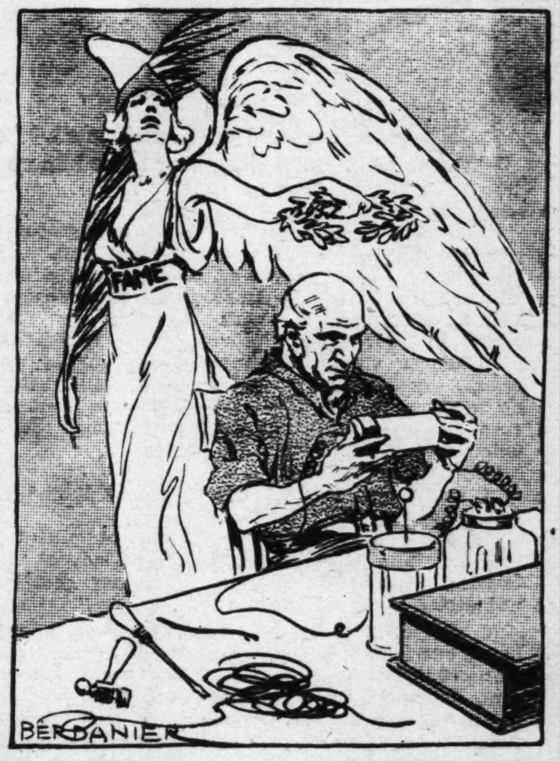
-:- -:- -:- -:- -:- -:-

SOME belligerent person who didn't have anything else to do, started a newspaper row, recently, as to which of the great civilized countries had produced the greatest inventions. It began with a gentle spear-tilting between advocates of German progress and persons who wished to demonstrate that the Germans did not have any monopoly on inventive genius.

It all might have been avoided if the combatants had only taken the trouble to consult the encylopedias in the reference room of any library. Here, for the mere trouble of looking, any person could have discovered in a few minutes that the United States far outranks all other nations. For out of 66 epoch-making inventions, 29 of them were made in this country. England comes next with 17, France third with 10, Germany fourth with five, Italy fifth with two and Brazil, Sweden and Austria trailing with one each.

In this catalog a sharp distinction is drawn between the discovery of a scientific principle and the application of that principle in a successful mechanical device. In other words, the things counted are only the first practical developments of great scientific principles.

If scientific discoveries were classed as inventions, German genius would make a far better showing than it has in this list. German chemists have perfected processes now used throughout the industrial world and have improved almost every process they have taken in hand. But a discovery, such as radium, is not the same thing as an invention, such as the phonograph. The Germans, who have been pioneers in many frontiers of science, have neglected, relatively, that of mechanical invention.



FAME
BERDANIER

The oldest invention catalogued in this list was the product of E. Torricelli, an Italian. Before his time, mariners had very unsatisfactory means of forecasting great weather disturbances. By the application of a few well-understood scientific principles and the evolution of new ones, Torricelli produced the barometer. That was in 1643.

The thermometer is an article of household necessity nowadays, yet, curiously enough, the first thermometer was not constructed until in 1709, 66 years after Torricelli's barometer appeared. Its inventor was a Prussian named Fahrenheit, whose name today distinguishes the scale of measurements of the thermometers in common use in the United States.

Every schoolboy knows about Benjamin Franklin and his kite and every schoolboy knows that Franklin was the first inventor of a lightning conductor. To the printer-philosopher goes the credit of founding the American school of invention, which has made so many brilliant achievements within the last half century.

The spinning jenny, which revolutionized methods of cloth weaving was the invention of an Englishman, J. Hargreave. Thirty-one years later, in 1794, E. Whitney, an American, invented the cotton gin. A great part of the early manufacturing prosperity of our own country had its origin in these creations.

Equally as well known as Franklin's kite is Jamie Watt's teakettle. If the former was the beginning of modern electrical mechanics, the latter was the beginning of modern power development and Watts is immortal as the inventor of the steam engine. Watts, it will be remembered, was a Scotchman.

Raised letters for the skilled fingers of the blind is often considered a modern invention. The fact is that it was perfected in 1784, the inventor being V. Hany of France. About that same time J. Cartright, an Englishman, was working on a device he completed the following year. It was the first power loom. J. Jacquard, a Frenchman, invented the first pattern loom in 1801.

To another Frenchman, Montgolfier, must be ascribed the invention of the gas balloon. That was in 1783. It was more than a hundred years afterward that two Americans, Orville and Wilbur, Wright, invented a heavier-than-air machine that would fly under its own power.

W. Murdoch, an Englishman, in 1792, was the first to provide a practical means for using gas for ilumination. Just 95 years later, Welsbach, an Austrian, invented the incandescent burners for illuminating gas so commonly in use today over the whole civilized world.

Steam locomotion got its first start in Dynamite.

Railroad President at 28

When Joseph L. Hall first learned his trade the boss sent him out with a pick and spade—He dug out boulders with dynamite and swung a sledge with all his might—He hammered down spikes so tight and fine and now he's the ruler of the Oil Belt Line—Son-in-law of Oklahoma's first Governor began career after his marriage to impulsive Jane Haskell.

Mrs. Jane Haskell Hall.

JOSEPH L. HALL, son of a wealthy Cincinnati manufacturer, who, at 28 years of age, has been elected president of the Oil Belt Terminal Railroad Co., owes his distinction of being the youngest railroad president in the United States to Cupid and a chance meeting with Miss Jane Haskell, daughter of Oklahoma's first Governor.

When Miss Haskell, a pretty blonde, was 17 years old she determined upon a stage career and went to Cincinnati to attend a dramatic school. She became very proficient and was highly praised for her appearances in several private recitals, and it is reported that offers had come from several managers.

Young Hall was at that time working in his father's factories, studying time locks and combinations, with the understanding that some day he would be at the head of the great business. But by accident he met Miss Haskell and they cultivated a friendship which was not slow in ripening into love. From that day the stage lost its lure for Miss Haskell and young Hall was not at all certain that he would be a Cincinnati manufacturer.

About the time of their acquaintance, Miss Haskell was a center of news interest because of her part in a woman suffrage controversy. She had found time in the midst of her studies to write some sarcastic things about suffragists. These, printed in the Oklahoma newspapers, brought down upon her head the wrath of the Oklahoma suffragist leaders, in particular Dr. Ruth A. Gay.

Dr. Gay wrote a very bitter retort, which was published in an Oklahoma City newspaper. She wondered if Miss Haskell's youth and inexperience oughtn't to plead for her. The article ran for about six columns and was followed by a poem, criticising Miss Haskell's views in words that sizzled.

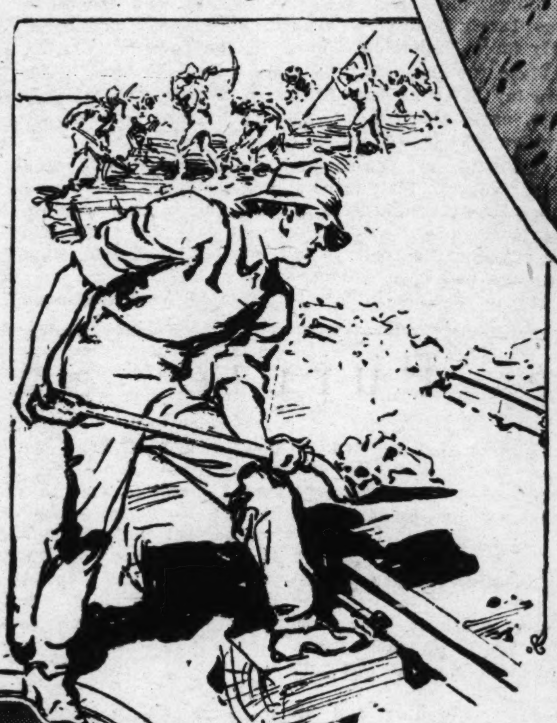
And then a flippant man writer editorialy suggested that it would be a good plan for Miss Haskell and Dr. Gay to fight it out with boxing gloves. Entering into the spirit of the suggestion, Miss Haskell, in a Cincinnati interview, said she was willing to don the gloves and enter the ring with Dr. Gay, adding the promise that she would not hit in the clinches and saying it was up to Dr. Gay to accept the challenge.

Vivacious, full of good health, Miss Haskell was inclined to athletics. She was an excellent horsewoman. In one of her interviews, along about the time young Hall was paying her his court, she declared:

"I would a whole lot rather be a good wife than be President of the United States."

When the young couple were married they went to Oklahoma, where former Gov. Haskell was extensively engaged in the oil business and railroad building. Before Haskell became Governor he had promoted many railroads, including the Frisco extension from Fayetteville, Ark., to Muskogee, Ok., and had done much to make the latter city a railroad center. Then, while he was Governor, he began to invest in oil lands, his largest holdings being in the Cushing district, which was without railroad facilities.

Haskell determined to build a railroad from the Frisco and "Katy" lines at Jennings to Oilton. He gave his new son-in-law a job, and the latter worked first with the surveying gang, then in the tie camps, next with the graders and later with the steel gang. He learned how to build a railroad.



Joseph L. Hall.

It was hard work, and the environment was altogether different from what young Hall had been accustomed to. A railroad camp in Oklahoma had nothing in common with a Cincinnati drawing room and the people to be found there were equally unlike the accustomed associates of a young college graduate and son of a wealthy family. Bunkhouse life and back-breaking work of driving spikes and shoveling dirt probably was as unattractive to Hall as it would have been to any other young man accustomed to the social position he had held.

But the love that lured the young bridegroom to the Western country gave him the inspiration to tackle the hardships of the camp. The daughter of a Governor, who had sacrificed what promised to be a brilliant career as a star of the stage, to wed him, said she would go along. And she did. Through the long months when blistered hands and aching body became known to her husband as the accompaniments of manual labor she was always near to encourage him and cheer him up with the hope of a future.

So Hall saw it was up to him to "make good." He pitched in as a helper of the surveying outfit and dragged chains and carried instruments back and forth over the wide stretch of country until he overcame fatigue and began to like the life in the open. He learned to mark a trail by blazing trees, to set up instruments and take observation.

Then came the grading, and Hall, whose muscles by this time were hardened, made a "hand" with a shovel, and a good one, according to all reports which reached the ears of his father-in-law promoter. This was the hardest work Hall had ever done and the strain of the hours as he exerted every energy to keep up with the hardened gang of shovelers who made the dirt fly, not only wore blisters and callouses on his hands, but supplied the supreme test of his staying qualities. And he stayed.

In the tie camp Hall learned to judge a piece of timber and became a proficient inspector of ties as well as learning how to lay the timbers and tamp the ballast that made the roadbed.

Another period of hard labor and test of strength came with the laying of the steel. With a gang of laborers Hall "laid hands" to the heavy rails and more than held up his part. He became adept with a spike driver, and not many swings from his broad shoulders were needed to drive home the little iron wedges.

One feat of engineering in which Hall took a part was the building of a bridge over a small river. At his suggestion it was found advisable to build a pontoon bridge as a preliminary so that the workmen could get at the main structure. The pontoon bridge also proved of unexpected value in providing a means to haul supplies across the river while the work was being done.

Now that the work is done and Hall has been made president of the new railroad he has announced his intention of making his permanent home in the West. He was asked recently when he intended to return to Ohio.

"Never!" he said. "That is, to live. Of course, I will go back to visit frequently, but I will be like the German boy I knew in school who returned to the Fatherland to live. In a short time he was back, with the explanation that the call of America was too strong. The West has called me and I expect to continue to live here."

Hall looks back upon the hardships of his early Oklahoma days with pleasure. They brought him fine health and a strong body. The open-air life was worth all the watering place "cures" and summer outings in the world to him. Moreover, he feels all the more competent to direct the work of other men, whether they are laborers or executives, since he has first learned how to do their work himself. The men themselves would rather work under a "boss" who has been one of them than under a man who has not tasted their hardships and enjoyed their pleasures.

All the River Sports in Your Own Bathtub

PERSONS of sedentary habits who like to enjoy rowing and swimming for the exercise, can do so in their own homes at very little expense and trouble. Every healthy man can stay from fifteen to thirty minutes in fairly cold water, but to spend that time idly splashing around in a bathtub gives little pleasure and no exercise worth mentioning.

Dr. Gustav Gaertner, a noted physician of Vienna, Austria, in his recent book, "Reducing Weight Comfortably" (Lippincott), tells how he found a way out of this dilemma. Swimming and rowing he found were excellent for weight-reducing, but the trouble was that many of his patients had neither time nor opportunity for either, even when the weather was suitable.

He accomplished this by stretching an elastic tube, about two yards long, which formed a loop and was fastened to the foot of the bathtub. The bather grasps the middle of the tube with both hands and stretches it by bending back the upper body and drawing up his hands to his chest. Then he bends forward again from his hips and stretches his arms out horizontally, shortening the tube to its natural size.

Another apparatus was formed from a board about nine inches long, four inches wide and a quarter of an inch thick. On the middle of both narrow sides he fastened two cylindrical handles. If desired a small thermometer could be attached to the board, so as to observe the temperature of the water at all times.

Rowing movements are carried out with the board. The bather grasps the handles, bends forward and draws the board, through the water up to his breast. Body, hip and arm muscles must take part in the work to be done. Not more than twenty to twenty-five of these rowing movements should be carried out to the minute. Every single movement should begin slowly and end more quickly. At the beginning the anterior surface of the board stands perpendicular, but it is then turned up a little to bring a small breaker against breast, neck and head. The oar should be returned through the air, so as to give a "recovery phase."

Dr. Gaertner made many experiments with this method of exercise and found it both beneficial and enjoyable. It stimulates the appetite, helps drive away insomnia and tones the body up generally. It must not be overdone, of course. The temperature should be regulated to the individual. The water may be warmer at first and gradually cooled by the admission of more cold water.

Swimming, according to the author, is the most valuable of all sports in building up strong vitality. It serves the double purpose of giving wholesome gymnastic exercise with a withdrawal of heat from the body. It must be remembered that one of the first natural purposes of fat is to provide an envelope for the body when it is to be subjected to the rigors of extreme weather. The consequence is that an abnormally fat person in warm weather suffers acutely from a covering which Nature intended only as his protection against cold. The exercises described in this article are said to be excellent dissipators of superfluous fat.

Nayland Smith's next move filled me with surprise. For just as, silently, I was thanking God for my escape, my friend began shedding his coat, collar and waistcoat.

"Pocket your valuables and do the same!" he muttered hoarsely. "We have a poor chance, but we are both fairly fit. Tonight, Petrie, we literally have to run for our lives."

We live in a peaceful age, wherein it falls to the lot of few men to owe their survival to their fleetness of foot. At Smith's words I realized in a flash that such was to be our fate tonight.

I have said that the hulk lay off a sort of promontory. East and west, then, we had nothing to hope for. To the south was Fu-Manchu, and even as, stripped of our heavier garments, we started to run northward, the weird signal of a dacoit rose on the night, and was answered. Was answered again.

"Three at least!" hissed Smith; "three armed dacoits. Hopeless!"

"Take the revolver!" I cried. "Smith, it's"——

"No!" he rapped through clenched teeth. "A servant of the crown in the East makes his motto: 'Keep your word, though it break your neck. I don't think we need fear its being used against us. Fu-Manchu avoids noisy methods."

So back we ran, over the course by which earlier we had come. It was, roughly, a mile to the first building—a deserted cottage; and another quarter to any that was occupied. Our chance of meeting a living soul, other than Fu-Manchu's dacoits, was practically nil.

At first we ran easily, for it was the second half mile that would decide our fate. The professional murderers who pursued us ran like panthers, I knew; and I dared not allow my mind to dwell upon those yellow figures with the curved, gleaming knives. For a long time neither of us looked back.

On we ran—and on—silently—doggedly.

Then a hissing breath from Smith warned me what to expect.

Should I, too, look back? Yes! It was impossible to resist the horrible fascination.

I threw a quick glance over my shoulder.

And never while I live shall I forget what I saw. Two of the pursuing dacoits had outdistanced their fellow (or fellows), and were actually within 300 yards of us!

More like dreadful animals they looked than human beings, running bent forward, with their faces curiously uptilted. The brilliant moonlight gleamed upon bared teeth, as I could see, even at that distance, even in that quick agonized glance; and it gleamed upon the crescent-shaped knives.

"As hard as you can go now!" panted Smith. "We must—make an attempt—to break into the empty cottage. Only chance!"

I had never, in my younger days, been a notable runner; for Smith I cannot speak. But I am confident that the next half mile was done in time that would not have disgraced a crack man. Not once again did either of us look back. Yard upon yard we raced forward together. My heart seemed to be bursting. My leg muscles throbbed with pain. At last, with the empty cottage in sight, it came to that pass with me when another three yards looked as unattainable as three miles. Once I stumbled.

"My God!" came from Smith weakly.

But I recovered myself. Bare feet pattered close upon our heels, and panting breaths told how even Fu-Manchu's bloodhounds were hard put to it by the killing pace we had made.

"Smith!" I whispered. "Look in front. Someone!"

As through a red mist I had seen a dark shape detach itself from the shadows of the cottage, and merge into them again. It could only be another dacoit; but Smith, not heeding, or not hearing, my faintly whispered words, crashed open the gate and hurled himself blindly at the door.

It burst open before him with a resounding boom, and he pitched forward into the interior darkness. Flat upon the floor he lay, for as, with a last effort, I gained the threshhold and dragged myself within, I almost fell over his recumbent body.

Madly I snatched at the door. His foot held it open. I kicked the foot away and banged the door to. As I turned the leading dacoit, his eyes starting from their sockets, his face, the face of a demon, leaped through the gateway.

That Smith had burst the latch I felt assured, but by some divine accident my weak hands found the bolt. With the last ounce of strength spared to me I thrust it home in the rusty socket—as a full six inches of shining steel split the middle panel and protruded above my head.

I dropped sprawling beside my friend.

A terrific blow shattered every pane of glass in the solitary window, and one of the grinning animal faces looked in.

"Sorry, old man," whispered Smith, and his voice was barely audible. Weakly, he grasped my hand. "My fault—I shouldn't—have let you come."

From the corner of the room where the black shadows lay flicked a long tongue of flame. Muffled, staccato, came the report. And the yellow face at the window was blotted out.

One wild cry, ending in a rattling gasp, told of a dacoit gone to his account. A gray figure glided past me and was silhouetted against the broken window. Again the pistol sent its message into the night, and again came the reply to tell how well and truly that message had been delivered.

In the stillness, intense by sharp contrast, the sound of bare soles pattering upon the path outside stole to me. Two runners I thought there were; so that four dacoits must have been upon our trail. The room was full of pungent smoke. I staggered to my feet as the gray figure, with the revolver, turned toward me. Something familiar there was in that long gray garment, and now I perceived why I had thought so.

It was my gray raincoat!

"Karamaneh!" I whispered.

And Smith, supporting himself upright with difficulty, and holding fast to the ledge beside the door, muttered something hoarsely, which sounded like "God bless her!"

The girl, trembling now, placed her hands upon my shoulders with that quaint pathetic gesture peculiarly her own.

"I followed you," she said. "Did you not know I should follow you? But I had to hide because of another who was following also. I had but just reached this place when I saw you running toward me."

She broke off and turned to Smith.

"This is your pistol," she said naively. "I found it in your bag. Will you please take it?"

He took it without a word. Perhaps he could not trust himself to speak.

"Now go! Hurry!" she said. "You are not safe yet."

"But you?" I asked.

"You have failed," she replied. "I must go back to him. There is no other way."

Strangely sick at heart for a man who has just had a miraculous escape from death, I opened the door. Coatless, disheveled figures, my friend and I stepped out into the moonlight.

Hideous under the pale rays lay the two dead men, their glazed eyes upcast to the peace of the blue heavens. Karamaneh had shot to kill, for both had bullets in their brains. If God ever planned a more complex nature than hers, a nature more tumultuous with conflicting passions, I cannot conceive of it. Yet her beauty was of the sweetest, and in some respects she had the heart of a child—this girl who could shoot so straight.

"We must send the police tonight," said Smith. "Or the papers"——

"Hurry!" came the girl's voice commandingly from the darkness of the cottage.

It was a singular situation. My very soul rebelled against it. But what could we do?

"Tell us where we can communicate," began Smith.

"Hurry! I shall be suspected! Do you want him to kill me?"

We moved away. All was very still now, and the lights glimmered faintly ahead. Not a wisp of cloud brushed the moon's disk.

"Good night, Karamaneh," I whispered softly.

"So that's troublin' you. I reckon it needn't! You see it was this way. I come round the house an' seen that fat party an' heard him talkin' loud. Then he seen me, an' very impolite goes straight for his gun. He oughtn't have tried to throw a gun on me—whatever his reason was. For that's meetin' me on my own grounds. I've seen runnin' molasses that was quicker'n him. Now I didn't know who it was, visitor or friend or relation of yours, though I seen he was a Mormon all over, an' I couldn't get serious about shootin'. So I winged him—put a bullet through his arm as he was pullin' at his gun. An' he dropped the gun there, an' a little blood. I told him he'd introduced himself sufficient, an' to please move out of my vicinity. An' he went."

"He drew on you first, and you deliberately shot to cripple him—you wouldn't kill him—you—Lassiter!"

"That's about the size of it."

Jane kissed his hand.

All that was calm and cool about Lassiter instantly vanished.

"Don't do that! I won't stand it! An' I don't care a d——n who that party was."

He helped Jane to her feet and to a chair. Then with the wet scarf he had used to bathe her face he wiped the blood from the stone flags, and, picking up the gun, he threw it upon a couch. With that he bagan to pace the court, and his silver spurs jangled musically, and the great gun sheaths softly brushed against his leather chaps.

"So—it's true—what I heard him say?" Lassiter asked, presently halting before her. "You made love to me—to bind my hands?"

"Yes," confessed Jane. It took all her woman's courage to meet the gray storm of his glance.

"All these days that you've been so friendly an' like a pardner—all these evenin's that have been so bewilderin' to me—your beauty—an'—an' the way you looked an' came close to me—they were woman's tricks to bind my hands?"

"Yes."

"An' your sweetness that seemed so natural, an' your throwin' little Fay an' me so much together—to make me love the child—all that was for the same reason?"

"Yes."

Lassiter flung his arms—a strange gesture for him.

"Mebbe it wasn't much in your Mormon thinkin', for you to play that game. But to ring the child in—that was hellish!"

Jane's passionate, unheeding zeal began to loom darkly.

"Lassiter, whatever my intention in the beginning, Fay loves you dearly—and I—I've—grown to—to like you."

"That's powerful kind of you, now," he said. Sarcasm and scorn made his voice that of a stranger. "An' you sit there an' look me straight in the eyes! You're a wonderful strange woman, Jane Withersteen."

"I'm not ashamed, Lassiter. I told you I'd try to change you."

"Would you mind tellin' me just what you tried?"

"I tried to make you see beauty in me and be softened by it. I wanted you to care for me so that I could influence you. It wasn't easy. At first you were stone blind. Then I hoped you'd love little Fay, and through that come to feel the horror of making children fatherless."

"Jane Withersteen, either you're a fool or noble beyond my understandin'. Mebbe you're both. I know you're blind. What you meant is one thing—what you did was to make me love you.

"Lassiter!"

"I reckon I'm a human bein', though I never loved anyone but my sister, Milly Erne. That was long"——

"Oh, are you Milly's brother?"

"Yes, I was, an' I loved her. There never was anyone but her in my life till now. Didn't I tell you that long ago I back-trailed myself from women? I was a Texas ranger till—till Milly left home, an' then I became somethin' else—Lassiter! For years I've been a lonely man set on one thing. I came here an' met you. An' now I'm not the man I was. The change was gradual, an' I took no notice of it. I understand now that never-satisfied longin' to see you, listen to you, watch you, feel you near me. It's plain now why you were never out of my thoughts. I've had no thoughts but of you. I've lived an' breathed for you. An' now when I know what it means—what you've done—I'm burnin' up with hell's fire!"

"Oh, Lassiter—no—no—you don't love me that way!" Jane cried.

"If that's what love is, then I do."

"Forgive me! I didn't mean to make you love me like that. Oh, what a tangle of our lives! You—Milly Erne's brother! And I—heedless, mad to melt your heart toward Mormons. Lassiter, I may be wicked, but not wicked enough to hate. If I couldn't hate Tull, could I hate you?"

"After all, Jane, mebbe you're only blind—Mormon blind. That only can explain what's close to selfishness"——

"I'm not selfish. I despise the very word. If I were free"——

"But you're not free. Not free of Mormonism. An' in playin' this game with me you've been unfaithful."

"Un-faithful!" faltered Jane.

"Yes, I said unfaithful. You're faithful to your Bishop an' unfaithful to yourself. You're false to your womanhood, and true to your religion. But for a savin' innocence you'd have made yourself low an' vile—betrayin' yourself, betrayin' me—all to bind my hands an' keep me from snuffin' out Mormon life. It's your damned Mormon blindness."

"Is it vile—is it blind—is it only Mormonism to save human life? No, Lassiter, that's God's law, divine, universal for all Christians."

"The blindness I mean is blindness that keeps you from seein' the truth. I've known many good Mormons. But some are blacker than hell. You won't see that even when you know it. Else, why all this blind passion to save the life of that—that" * * *

Jane shut out the light, and the hands she held over her eyes trembled and quivered against her face.

"Oh, Lassiter," exclaimed Jane, brokenly. "I feel helpless—lost—and don't know where to turn. If I am blind—then—I need someone—a friend—you, Lassiter—more than ever!"

"Well, I didn't say nothin' about goin' back on you, did I?"

A Mountain of Salt

SEVERAL hills of rock salt exist in Algeria. One of these, near Jelfa, is 300 feet high and nearly a mile across. In spite of the soluble character of the material of which it is composed, it stands up in high relief from the surrounding clay, without any signs of erosion. There are in it, however, many sink holes, into which the torrential winter rain soaks, being at once absorbed and given out again at the base of the mountain in the form of salt springs.

The Treatment of Influenza or La Grippe

It is quite refreshing these days to read of a clearly defined treatment for Influenza or La Grippe. In an article in the "Lancet-Clinic," Dr. James Bell of New York City, says he is convinced that too much medication is both unnecessary and injurious.

When called to a case of la grippe, the patient is usually seen when the fever is present, as the chill which occasionally ushers in the disease, has generally passed away. Dr. Bell then orders that the bowels be opened freely with salts, "Actoids" or citrate of magnesia. For the high fever, severe headache, pain and general soreness, one Anti-Kamnia Tablet every three hours is quickly followed by complete relief. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for headaches, neuralgia and all pains.

England and the United States. It was in 1804 that R. Trevithick, a Briton, made the first steam engine to run on rails. Three years later Robert Fulton, an American, built the first steamboat. The tubular locomotive boiler was patented in 1828 by Sequin, a Frenchman. The first portable steam fire engine was designed by Brathwaite and Ericsson, in England. J. Ericsson invented the first screw propeller for steamers in the United States in 1836.

J. Nyssanth perfected the first steam hammer in Scotland in 1842. The rotary steam turbine engine was perfected in 1891 by C. Parsons, an Englishman.

The development of electrical mechanics has been the source of some of America's greatest inventive triumphs. H. Davy of England perfected the first voltaic arc, and M. Faraday of England, in 1831, created the first serviceable magnetic-induction apparatus. But the telegraph was invented by Morse, an American, in 1844. The electric locomotive was invented by Page, another American, in 1851. The electric cable was invented by C. Field, an American, in 1868. The telephone was invented by A. G. Bell, an American, in 1876. Thomas A. Edison, an American, invented the phonograph in 1877; the incandescent electric light, in 1878; moving pictures (with M. Luhiere of France) in 1895. The first electric light was perfected by L. Foucault, a Frenchman, in 1844, and the storage battery was invented by C. Faure, a Frenchman, in 1880, but the mercury vapor electric light was invented by Cooper Hewitt, an American, in 1900.

R. Loinnec of France invented the stethoscope in 1849. The next great invention of importance to the medical world was that of antiseptic surgery, by Lord Lister, a Briton. The X-ray was perfected by C. Roentgen, a German, in 1895. A radio-activity process was perfected in 1896 by H. Becquerel, a Frenchman.

The Englishman, Faraday, in 1823, discovered a process for the liquefication and solidification of gas. C. Goodyear, an American, in 1839, perfected the first process for vulcanizing rubber. H. Bessemer of England, in 1855, invented the Bessemer steel process, and, the following year, W. H. Perkin, another Englishman, invented the first practical aniline dye. Siemens Martin of England, in 1866, invented the open hearth steel process.

The first automatic harvesting machine was perfected in 1834 by M. McCormick, an American. The double cylinder printing press, modifications of which are in use in all great newspaper offices, was the creation of R. Hoe, another American. O. Mergenthaler, another American, by the invention of the linotype, in 1884, revolutionized the printing process throughout the world.

Nor have Americans lagged behind those of other nationalities in perfecting engines of destruction. The first satisfactory revolver was the product of C. Colt of this country. Guncotton was invented by a German, C. Schoubein, in 1846, 22 years before A. Nobel, a Swede, invented dynamite. Smith & Wesson of the United States perfected the first magazine firearm. J. Ericsson, an American, invented the first armor-clad warship, in 1862, the same year in which R. Gatling, another American, invented the rapid-fire gun which bears his name. Simon Lake's American submarine was the parent of all the submarines which have proven so effective in the present war.

J. Schultze, a German, invented smokeless powder in 1863. Three years later, Whitehead, an American, invented the marine, self-propelling torpedo.

Some of the other things Americans invented and the year of the invention are:

Friction matches, J. Walker, 1827.
Typewriter, C. Thurber, 1843.
Sewing machine, E. Howe, 1846.
Shoe sewing machine, G. McKay, 1861.
Shoe machine, C. Goodyear, 1871.
Automatic airbrake, W. Westinghouse, United States.

Portland cement was invented by L. Aspdin, England, 1825; mercerized cotton by J. Mercer, England, 1850; the bicycle by E. Michaux, France, 1855.

Italy's greatest contribution to applied science was the wireless telegraph, invented by Marconi in 1896. Brazil's great son, Santos-Dumont, in 1901, perfected the first dirigible balloon.

From this summary it will be seen that American genius has invaded all the realms of inventive thought and has not had to bow in any before the best practical thinkers of any other nation

Of all the 29 great inventions ascribed to Americans, only six were developed before the year 1836. One American, T. A. Edison, was the inventor of three of the total of 65, leading any other single individual. Faraday of England and Ericsson of the United States being the only others with more than one invention accredited to each.

ST. LOUISAN DOGS' GOOD ANGEL

be enough then, to be in the way, and all would be well cared for, and have a good time. He strongly favors the drowning of puppies before their eyes are opened. When two little boys of the neighborhood came into his store the other day, and told him they had seven little puppies at their house, he told them he would give them a quarter if they would go home and drown the seven.

The next time he saw them, he asked them if they had drowned the puppies. They told him their parents would not permit it.

"Those people thought it was heartless to drown the puppies," was Nahigian's comment, "but they will not think it heartless, when the pupies are four weeks old to send them adrift to shift for themselves."

Nahigian began taking an interest in dogs 10 years ago. Seven years ago he was instrumental in having a bill introduced in the Municipal Assembly providing for doing away with the wire noose used by the dog catchers. He appeared before the committee that was considering the bill, and urged its passage, but it was defeated.

Once in a while some one who knows that Nahigian cares for homeless dogs, brings one to his door, pushes it in and hastens away. Nahigian cares for the abandoned dog, and finds a home for it. One man brought to him a dog that he could not keep any longer, and asked Nahigian to find a home for it. He cried at parting with his pet, and for 48 hours the dog was so sad that it ate nothing. Nahigian found a good home for it.

Nahigian's dearest wish is to establish a home for dogs like the Bide-a-Wee in New York, where all lost and homeless dogs could be cared for, kept a time for adoption, and, if necessary, put to death with gas as they sleep.

The broad show windows of Nahigian's store are covered with placards and clippings intended to promote humane treatment for dogs and other animals.

One of the placards reads: "No decent man born of a decent woman, will ever sick one dog on another." Another reads: "One dog is bound to be stronger than the other, but some other is stronger than that one. There's nothing to it."

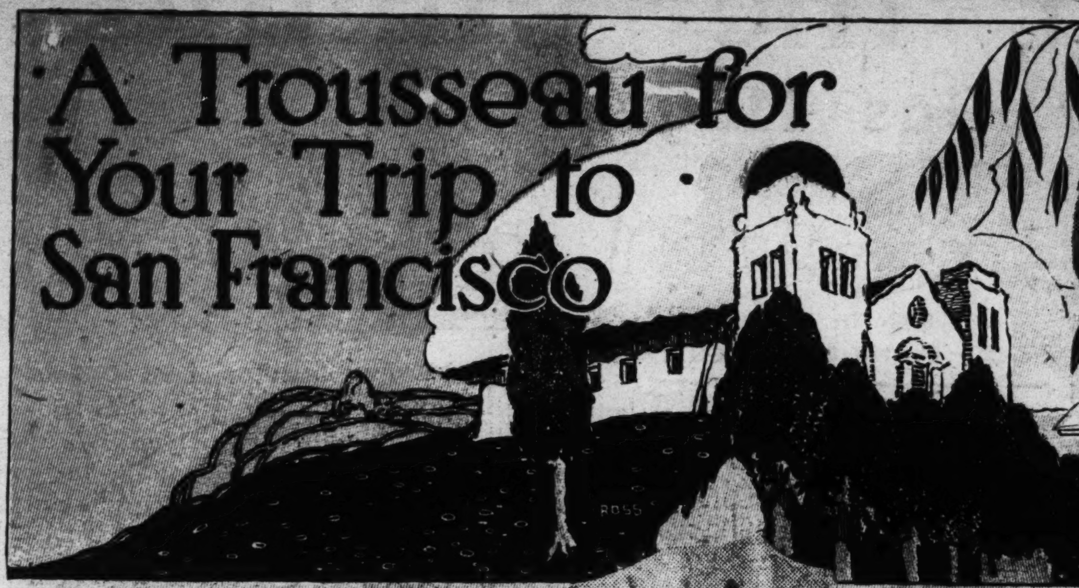
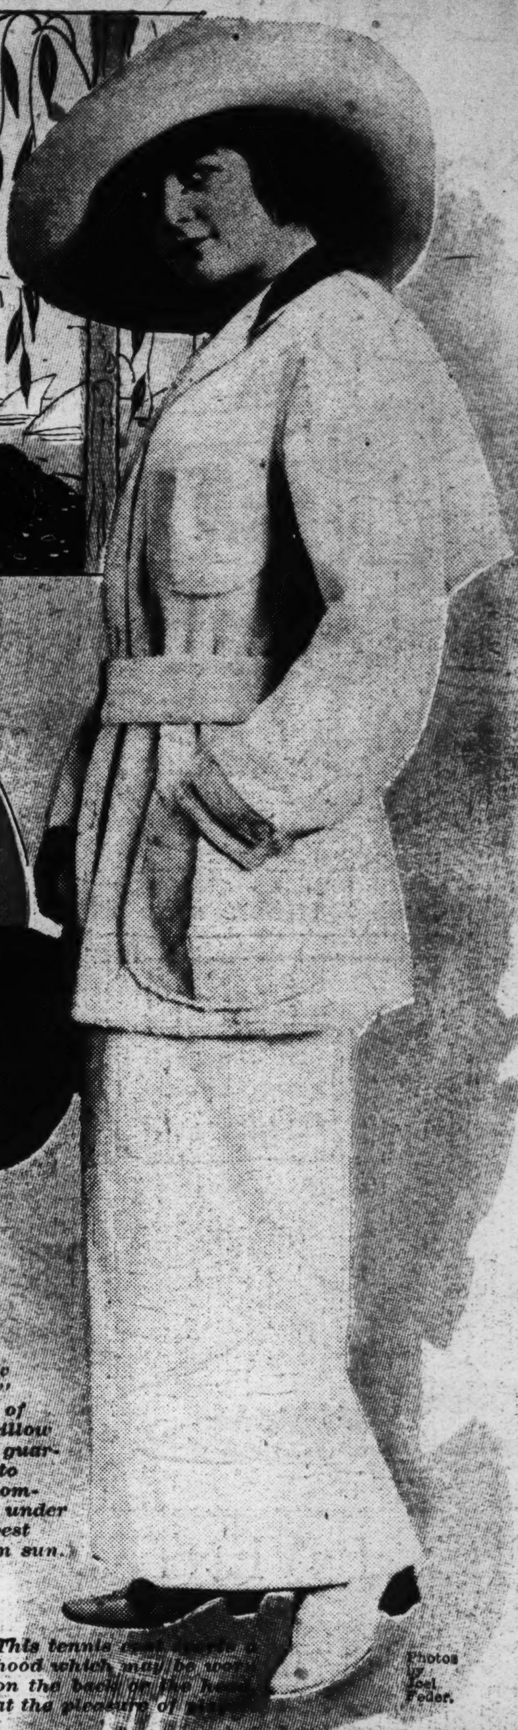
A Trousseau for Your Trip to San Francisco

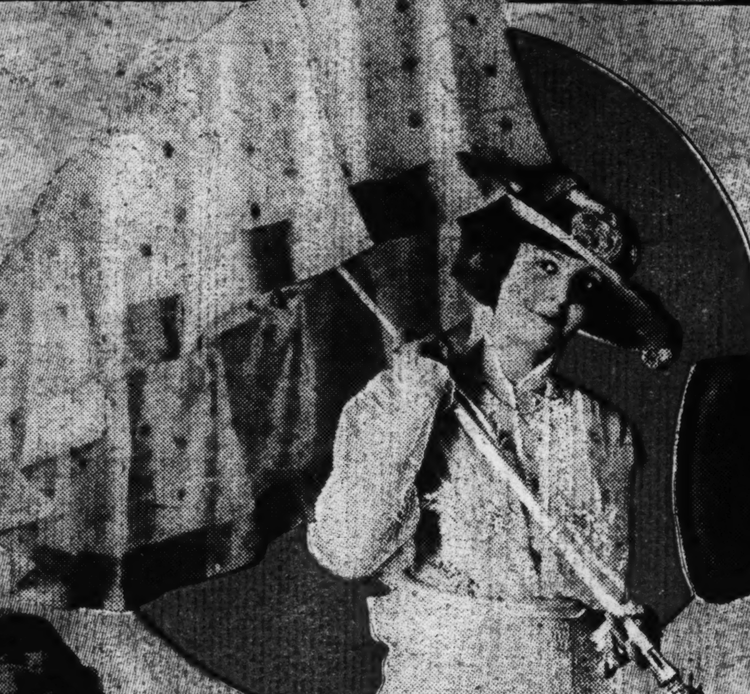




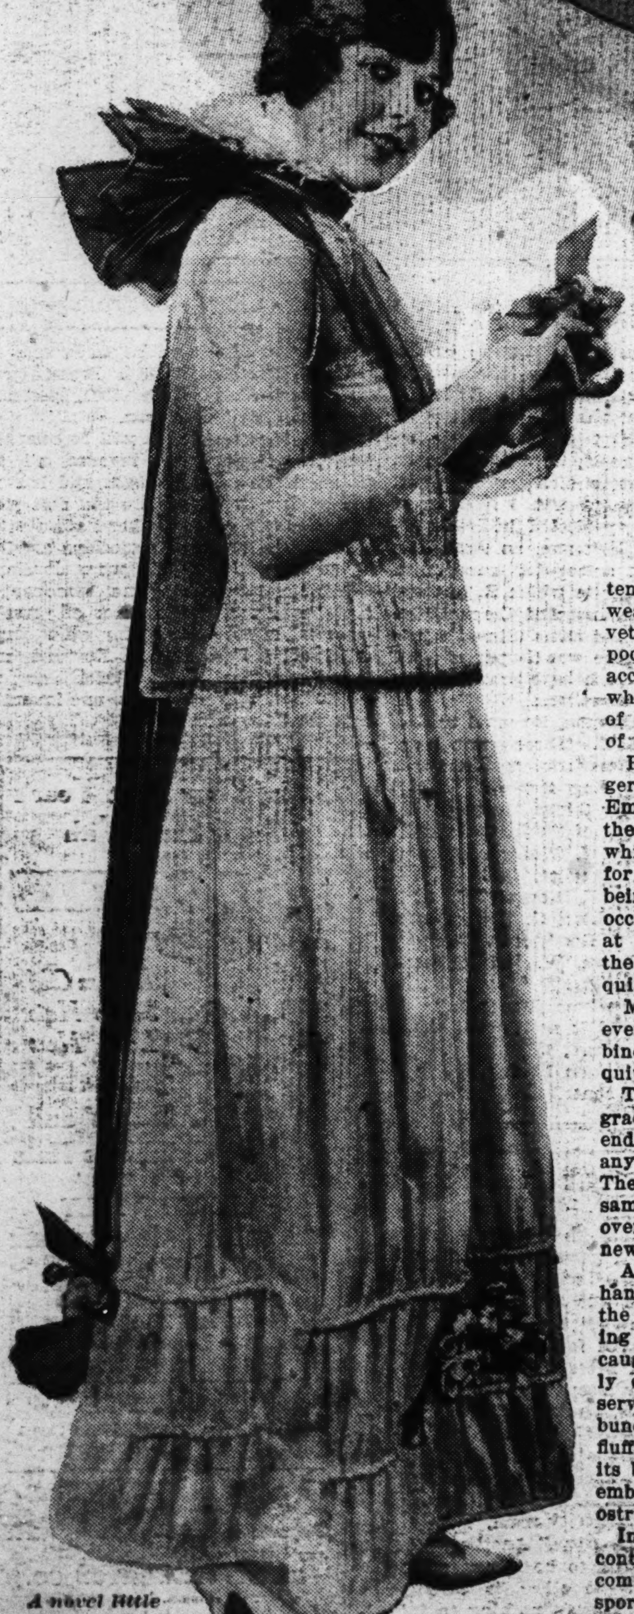
A WOMAN who changes her climate must needs change her costume. Here in outline are the needs of the visitor to the coming Exposition at San Francisco, and also the means to supply these needs.

A trim travelling suit is the prime essential. Here is a spring novelty in dark green faille, wide of skirt and showing the military braiding on the short close-fitting coat. Of leghorn is the chic little hat, with bunches of grape of varying shades of green. There is a touch of brown, too, in the trimming, reproduced in the brown bant uppers of the fashionable high shoe.

No Southern sun could penetrate to the complexion of a lady who carried the new "harem" parasol, which amply justifies its name by veiling the face of its wearer. Pussy-willow taffeta covers its frame and Dresden china forms the handle. The sportswoman who tops the page, is equally careful of her color. When she doffs her broad Panama, she may pull up her hood which now hangs carelessly down her back. For this is the latest in tennis costumes. The coat is of fine basket weave, in white, with a touch of black velvet on collar and cuffs. Note the capacious pockets, big enough to contain any woman's accessories, and the broad, easy-fitting belt which, in no way, hampers the movements of its wearer. The skirt, too, is white, made of corduroy, and cut on simple, tailored lines.



The new "harem" parasol of pussy-willow taffeta, guaranteed to guard complexion under the fiercest Southern sun.



A novel little evening gown of the latest cut.

For more formal occasions are the lingerie gown and the dainty evening frock. Embroidery and ruching have returned with the wide skirt. Both appear in the little white net frock, the one indispensable item for the girl who sojourns in the South. For, being "dressy," it is suitable for formal occasions; being simple, it can be slipped on at a moment's notice, and being liable for the laundry, it can always be made to appear quite new and fresh.

More elaborate but equally useful is the evening gown of silk and net which combines with the new wide skirt many touches quite distinctive and chic.

The frock, being of soft satin, hangs in graceful folds, only the cording around the end of the skirt causing it to stand out with any resemblance to the old-time crinoline. The bodice is close-fitting and plain, in the same shell-pink shade of the skirt, but the over-draping is elaborate and brings in two new notes in the color scheme.

A little jacket of gold-embroidered net hangs loosely and almost shapelessly from the neck. Over this comes black tulle, hanging in a panel down the back, where it is caught in a cluster of roses, trailing aimlessly down the front of the bodice, where it serves as a playtoy for idle fingers, and bunching out at the back of the throat in a fluffy soft bow. The neckpiece is novel, with its black band of velvet, supporting the gold-embroidered net, and its edging of curling ostrich feathers.

In all a complete trousseau for the transcontinental visitor, with all the necessary comfort for travel, the necessary severity for sport, and all the dainty frippery which are indispensable for the girl who wishes to discharge her social duties.
